BAFTA'S BEST MOVIES OF THE YEAR ★ HOW TO WATCH THEM ON TV

From the Editors

Lockdown changed so much about our everyday lives, from the way we worked, to how we relaxed, to the television we watched. But few areas of life changed more dramatically during the great confinements of 2020 and 2021 than the world of cinema.

Cinema used to refer to a place as much as a medium. But nowadays it's increasingly used to mean a film watched mostly on screens a great deal smaller than those found at your local multiplex, whether on your phone, your tablet, your laptop or your flatscreen TV.

This trend predates the pandemic, but as the film critic James King tells us in this issue, Covid lockdowns mean that global box office takings for 2022 remain 35 per cent short of pre-pandemic levels.

At the same time television's great streaming revolution has gathered pace and one of the benefits the rise of the likes of Netflix, Amazon, Apple and Disney have given us, is the option of watching new films often within weeks and sometimes even days of them being released.

That's certainly true of many of the films in the running for a Bafta, in a ceremony that will be broadcast live on Sunday. Gone are the days when you'd watch and wonder if the movies in the running were any good. Instead, with the right streaming subscriptions, you can watch many of them at home long before a celebrity opens an envelope and says 'The winner is…'

For those that can afford it, this is a huge benefit of subscribing to a streaming service and if you turn to page 22 you will find our guide to where to watch many of this year's Bafta nominees. For the gloomy cinephile it might feel like the beginning of the end. But as James reminds us, the film industry successfully adapted to the advent of TV and the birth of video. No doubt in time we will discover how streaming movies straight into viewers' homes came to be seen as cinema's great opportunity not a threat.

BAFTA SPECIAL

HOW TO MAKE A BAFTA MASK

Originally designed in 1955 by US sculptor Mitzi Cunliffe, the famous Bafta masks have been made in the UK since 1976 – and this year, they're being manufactured by FSE Foundry in Braintree, Essex.

"We make around 300 Baftas every year for the different awards ceremonies," Hugh Bisset, group director at FSE Foundry tells RT. "We started making the parts in November and had them ready two weeks before the ceremony."

Each Bafta is hand-poured from molten phosphor bronze, a copper and tin alloy chosen for its resistance to corrosion, keeping the awards golden and shiny for years to come – this is apparently the trickiest step in the process.

"It's a short moment where highly skilled staff pour metal at the specified temperature – over 1,000°C – at high speed," says Bisset. "So far this year we've had a zero-per-cent reject rate, but when we do have a reject, we recycle all material; the metal goes straight back in the furnace."

This casting and moulding stage takes two weeks, while the next steps – which include trimming, machining, polishing and assembling – can take up to six weeks. Each award is also inscribed with a unique code on the back.

"It's a proud moment for everyone in our business; all 50 of our staff have been involved in one way or another," Bisset says. "Handmade in the UK, it's a British-made, high-quality award made for the best of British film.

"We just hope that the winners are able to pick them up. Phosphor bronze is a very dense material and the mask and base come in at 6kg in total – they're heavier than they look!" HUW FULLERTON

The Bafta Film Awards are on Sunday 7pm BBC1

GRAPEVINE

WINGING IT

Bob Mortimer is on a roll with his pal Paul Whitehouse on BBC2's Gone Fishing, and now his erstwhile comedy partner Jim Moir (aka Vic Reeves, above) is also going back to nature for a gentle round-Britain trip. For Sky Arts' Painting Birds with Jim and Nancy Moir, the comedian and his wife go birdwatching and Moir paints what he finds – including, to his delight, a great bearded tit. Pals joining the couple include fellow aviphile Chris Packham, plus Jools Holland and artist Cornelia Parker.

ISLAND HOPPING

Channel 4 is shrinking local history down to its core with a celebration of Britain's smallest islands. Daytime show Tiny Islands will explore the select few of the UK's 6,289 islands that are inhabitable to showcase their farming, fishing and artistic communities and traditions. That should finally put them on the map…

TRIPLE WHAMMY

It looks like Lennie James's Sky drama Save Me could finally return, three years after second series, Save Me Too. James has often hinted that he wants to complete a trilogy – and Sky has given the best indication yet that it will be made. Sky content boss Zai Bennett has said he has a set of scripts on his desk. The tricky bit is finding room in James's schedule…

EMILY IN PALACE

Gillian Anderson (below) is set to play former Newsnight presenter Emily Maitlis in Scoop, a Netflix film depicting the BBC's notorious 2019 interview with Prince Andrew. Equally intriguing is the casting of Prince Andrew – having played disgraced Prime Minister Lord Melbourne in ITV's Victoria, Rufus Sewell is no stranger to portraying establishment figures caught up in sex scandals…

TEN QUESTIONS WITH

SHANIA TWAIN

The country music legend on saving her voice – and joining ITV's Starstruck

As the bestselling female artist in the history of country music, with 100 million record sales to her name – including 40 million alone for her 1997 album Come On Over – Shania Twain could be forgiven for sitting in her Swiss home and counting her royalties. Instead, she's busier than ever, with a new album, Queen of Me, and a new role as a judge on ITV's talent show, Starstruck...

Who persuaded a record-breaking country music star, known to millions around the world, to turn up on an ITV talent show?
[Fellow judge] Adam Lambert. He's an incredible vocalist, so I was interested in meeting him and spending time with such a talent. The rest of the panel is wonderful, we have a lot of laughs. Plus, I love the whole concept – everyday people that want to give it a go.

You'll be handing out tips – what do you wish someone had told you when you were starting out?
Just go for it, if it's something you've always wanted to try. Don't hesitate and don't let fear get in your way. Worst-case scenario – you don't win but you get a fabulous experience and you grow.

After some time out of the spotlight, you're calling this period – new TV show, new album – your "rehabilitation". How do you feel about performing again?
I'm feeling like celebrating, having overcome so much. I'm still here, still doing it. [Following vocal cord surgery in 2018] I have a voice that I love to use right now, and I'm enjoying exploring that new voice, using it while I can in case it doesn't last, making the most of it.

You've documented your past challenges with your voice – how do you protect it now?
In the earlier years, I didn't even need to warm up, my voice was just always there, always reliable. I now need a few days to get the muscle memory going before I get up on stage. Once I'm rolling, it's no problem, it's just a 15-minute warm up, and I watch what I eat. There's no more maintenance than that. I'm pretty lucky.

Your new lyrics include "I'm a queen who doesn't need a king". You're a married woman, but is that the message of a solitary crusader?
I'm fiercely independent. I need the space to make my own decisions, to drive my own bus, be my own person. Queen of Me is about taking charge of your mindset. Recognise what your skills are, what you're good at, then use them, put them into action.

SHUTTERSTOCK; SARAH MAKHARINE; COURTESY OF LUCY PARDEE

IMPRESSED? Shania Twain joins Adam Lambert, Beverley Knight and Jason Manford for the second series of ITV's Starstruck

You wrote this album during lockdown. Was it an antidote?
It was written in solitary for two years during the pandemic. Getting into the studio, recording lyrics and tempos that would get me out of my anxious frame of mind over Covid and my family. I would write songs about taking charge of my own thinking. My songwriting is my therapist.

When are you happier, songwriting or performing?
When I'm songwriting. The creative part is the most indulgent part and when my inner self is the happiest. When I'm on stage, it's a reunion, but the songwriting is a deep, personal connection to my way of thinking. It's a very reflective time.

You have been astonishingly successful in your career – what keeps your feet on the ground?
The fact that I've had so many ups and downs. When I get back up, I feel grateful, rather than "Of course this is where I belong". I'm very sensitive to so many terrible things going on in the world, so many people suffering, I just don't allow myself to not see what I have in life as extraordinary. I can relate to people who suffer just from my own experiences. It just reminds me how lucky I am and that I should be celebrating and enjoying everything that I have. Plus, in this industry, you may not always be there – there's always someone better that's going to figure. You've got to keep a little bit of humility.

Where do you get your hunger to keep going?
It's no job to retire from. The creative part is quite a self-indulgent thing. Some people go to their she shed or their man cave, I go to my guitar in whatever isolated space I can find, and that's my place, where I can shut out the world and just focus on me. There's no commitment with that. It's a free zone, a no-judgement zone, I can try anything I want with my voice. Where the commitments come in is when you're in professional mode. You have to be disciplined about how you eat and care for yourself because you have to be at your best; so now you've left that she shed and you're out in the world, out there to please.

You previously immortalised Brad Pitt in your 1997 song That Don't Impress Me Much. Who would you mention in the song if you were to write it today?
Woooh! There are a few actors now that I'm just... Who would it be? Oh, I saw the trailer just last night... it's Channing Tatum. I'm trying to think how I would sing that... [sings] 'OK, so you're Channing Tatum...' Yeah, that works! CAROLINE FROST

The new series of Starstruck starts on Saturday 8.30pm ITV1

WHAT IT'S LIKE...

to find the next big thing

Casting director Lucy Pardee reveals the secrets of spotting new talent in the street

NEW FACE Lucy Pardee (far left) cast 12-year-old newcomer Frankie Corio alongside Paul Mescal in Aftersun (above)

BORN TO ACT Street casting involves giving opportunities to people who haven't acted professionally. People are referred to as non-actors, but I prefer "first-time", or "untrained", because I think people are born with an acting bone. My job is finding people with that innate ability.

SEARCH HIGH AND LOW
To find 12-year-old Frankie Corio for Aftersun [for which Pardee is Bafta-nominated], we did a "virtual push" by circulating flyers via mums' social media groups – we had nearly 800 submissions. Then we spoke to every school, girls' football team and boxing club in Glasgow and Edinburgh.

STRIKING GOLD IS RARE
We struck gold with Frankie as she had natural range. We'd done readings online by the second lockdown, which is constraining, but then we narrowed it down to 16 girls for in-person castings. It was soon clear that Frankie could access real emotions in fictional circumstances. I cannot stress how rare that is – especially in somebody so young who had never done it before.

NOT EVERYONE GETS A BREAK There's a fallacy in the industry that if you want it badly enough, you'll make it happen – that's just not true. I couldn't do my job without schools and community associations, but youth services have been decimated in the past 15 years.

I'M ALWAYS LOOKING I found Katie Jarvis for [Bafta-winning 2009 film] Fish Tank on a train platform, having an argument with her boyfriend. I said, "We're looking for someone with fire," gave her my number, then spent 36 hours hoping she would call!

IT'S A RESPONSIBILITY I stay in touch with first-time actors – I open the door, so I hold their hand for as long as they need me to.

BRING ON THE BAFTAS Rocks [for which Pardee won a Bafta] in 2019 was one thing, but this is even bigger. No film I've worked on has had as profound an impact on me as Aftersun. I'm so excited for the Baftas – it's a bit surreal! MAX COPEMAN

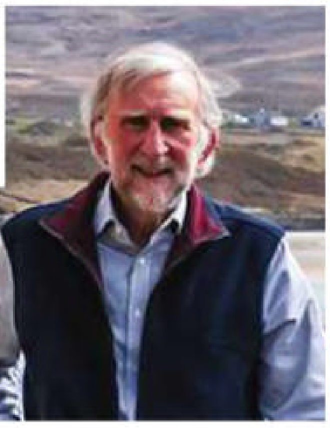
‘I’LL BE THERE TO HELP PROTECT LIFEBOAT VOLUNTEERS AT SEA. WILL YOU?’



Chris Huxley – proudly leaving a gift in his Will to the RNLI

‘It was horrendous. For 2 days and 2 nights we were at the mercy of the sea. I was with four friends, sailing from England to France. We were all seasick. Seasick and frightened.

‘We never forgot the relief we felt when the brave Newhaven lifeboat crew came to the rescue. It all happened 50 years ago – and the lifeboat volunteers are still on a mission to save every one today.

By leaving a gift in my Will, I’m helping to ensure they’ll be there tomorrow, with the kit and training they need to save lives and come home safely.

‘I’ll be there, right beside the crew when lives are on the line. And you can be there too.’

6 in 10 lifeboat launches are only possible thanks to gifts in Wills. RNLI volunteers rely on people like you and Chris to keep them safe. When we receive your gift, your name will be added to the side of a lifeboat, so you’ll be by their side on every launch.

VIEWPOINT

MY MOST DIFFICULT WAR

Reporters can't be neutral in the face of injustice, says Quentin Sommerville

IN THE FIELD Quentin Sommerville with Ukrainian artillery forces in August 2022

I HAD NO IDEA what was to come. It was 28 February 2022, four days after Russia's invasion, and I found myself for the first time in Ukraine. Moscow had launched a multi-pronged assault from the south, the east and against the capital Kyiv, from the north.

For ten years I've been based in the Middle East, before that Afghanistan. Snow was falling and it was bitterly cold. Frankly, this wasn't what I was used to. I didn't know Ukraine then, but I did know the Russian military, and how brutally effective they had been in Syria. This will likely be over in weeks, I said to myself quietly.

BBC News foreign editor Paul Danahar's instructions were straightforward: "Go where you want, take as long as you need, but get to the front line." So our team headed to the country's second-largest city, Kharkiv. It lies close to the Russian border; Moscow's forces had already breached the city.

It was a city under siege from every kind of Russian bombardment imaginable. We stayed for weeks and in coming months would do the same in the south and the east of the country.

In the early days of the war, getting to the front was much easier. In Kharkiv, a pair of military intelligence officers took us right into the thick of it. In the absence of proper vehicles, they were driving an armoured cash van. "We need weapons, we need a no-fly zone," they said. Russian corpses littered the ground – they were not happy to show us the Ukrainian bodies.

British anti-tank weapons had already made it to the front lines. "Boris Johnson!" soldiers cried, tongues firmly in cheek, whenever they heard we were from the UK.

I spent some five months last year reporting from Ukraine, as casualties mounted on both sides. I still remember the soldier who'd bought a yellow van just before the war. In its first days, he filled it with the corpses of his comrades killed in action and took them to the morgue.

> 'I might still be reporting from Ukraine next year'

And I often wonder what happened to Natasha, the widow in full make-up who refused to leave her village home, even as Russian shells were landing in her neighbours' gardens. We took shelter in an underground storeroom and tried to convince her to leave. But she refused to go. Her husband was buried in the cemetery, she explained, and she couldn't leave him. Despite later efforts to find out, I don't know what happened to her.

Courage and sacrifice are humbling to witness. However, in Ukraine, as in other conflicts, it is our duty as reporters to constantly step back. The deaths of journalists, Ukrainian and foreign, and a cultural reluctance within the Ukrainian army, made access harder to come by as the war progressed. Billions of pounds of western military aid is being supplied to Ukraine and yet, in terms of access, this has been the most difficult war I've reported on.

THE BBC PRIDES itself on its impartiality, but that does not mean being neutral in the face of wrongdoing or injustice. Russia's shifting reasons for its so-called "special military operation" were widely reported, but always in the context of Ukraine's independence and its determination to remain free. And that doesn't mean there shouldn't be accountability for the weapons flowing to Ukraine, nor should we shy away from asking when this seemingly open commitment should end.

Despite my initial erroneous expectation (shared, it seems, with Vladimir Putin), this won't be a quick war. A year on from the invasion, I'll be returning to Ukraine again this month, and likely for some time to come – and I might still be reporting from Ukraine next year, and beyond. But even if this war were to end tomorrow, it has already reshaped Ukrainian lives, and ours, for a generation. Keep watching.

Quentin Sommerville is the BBC's Middle East correspondent

THIS WEEK IN RT… 22–28 FEBRUARY 1975

As Dave Allen at Large returned for a fourth series, RT discovered that each six-week series required 300 sketches – but then, according to producer Peter Whitmore, the show was a cross between a commando unit and a rep company. On location, RT learnt that the day before, they'd followed their leader into the sea in winter for the sake of a gag. "The Irish comic makes up to his stalwart band for these occupational hazards by being warm and professionally generous."

Allen was hard to pin down on his private life. "But ask him where he finds his comic material and he'll keep you up all night." To say there was no one like Allen wasn't entirely true. He was back on the cover in April – but in the guise of mimic Mike Yarwood. MARK BRAXTON

A whole new underworld

Discover the dark realities of black markets in the brand new season of Trafficked with Mariana van Zeller, only on National Geographic

Fancy a true crime series with a difference? Trafficked with Mariana van Zeller is a gripping, Emmy-nominated docuseries that's as unsettling as it is unmissable. You'll find yourself on the edge of your seat as you watch award-winning investigative journalist Mariana van Zeller explore the inner workings of the global underworld's most dangerous illegitimate markets.

Now, she's delving even deeper into this illicit shadow economy in the much-anticipated new season of the series, premiering on National Geographic on Sunday 19 February. In each episode, Mariana infiltrates a different trafficking network to investigate the contributing factors behind various illegal trades, from drugs, guns and crypto scams to fight clubs, human organs and even black-market babies.

Uncovering the shadow economy

Mariana's investigations take her thousands of miles across the globe, from Africa to the Middle East, as well as closer to home in Europe. Along the way, she comes face to face with some of the world's most pressing political, economic and social problems.

In one episode, she follows the MDMA supply chain from LA nightclubs to its booming epicentre in Amsterdam. In another, she exposes how 3D-printed ghost guns are being funnelled into dangerous hands. Later, she visits Ukraine to find out how the war with Russia has upended the surrogacy industry.

Throughout the series, Mariana gains unprecedented access to every group she investigates. She interviews traffickers, victims and law enforcement, to give viewers a 360-degree view of this multi-trillion-dollar shadow economy. "Almost half of the world's economy is dominated by black and grey markets," she says. "This shadow economy has an impact on every single one of us, yet we know very little about it. With *Trafficke*d, we're trying to change that, and the stories in this season feel more relevant and urgent than ever before."

The new season of Trafficked with Mariana van Zeller airs on Sundays at 9pm from 19 February. Tune in on Sky (channel 129) or Virgin Media (channel 266)

I DEFY YOU NOT TO JUDGE HER

Who knows what to do with Shamima Begum? The documentary didn't help

What were you like at 15? I have the teenage diaries to prove I was surrounded by idiots who didn't understand me. It's clear now I knew absolutely nothing, but back then I was certain of pretty much everything. Personally, I find it hard to watch Shamima Begum in front of a camera and not be taken back to my own adolescent idiocy. She's now in her early 20s, but retains a degree of teenage attitude. It doesn't help her cause, whatever that is. I'm not sure she knows any more. How very, very stupid she was, though. And what a terrible price she's paid.

I wonder how many viewers will have had a genuinely open mind about Begum before they watched The Shamima Begum Story (BBC iPlayer). Very few, I'd imagine – and I'm not surprised. She left Bethnal Green in east London in 2015 with two other pupils from her school, intending to join the terrorist organisation Islamic State, lured in part by saccharine propaganda videos, and with the encouragement of a friend who'd already gone. Her family were devastated. It's clear she was loved, but was increasingly torn between the life she wanted and the one that might have been laid out for her: "I just wanted to be a bit more free. I didn't feel British or Bengali."

She's now marooned in a detention camp in Syria, her British citizenship revoked. The investigative reporter Josh Baker has followed the story for eight years and filmed interviews with her in the summer of 2021. He's just made a podcast series for the BBC about her, too – I'm Not a Monster – currently being broadcast on Radio 5 Live (and BBC Sounds) and she's also the subject of Sky's documentary The Return: Life After Isis. There's no doubt this woman fascinates. She is, in a strange, unpalatable way, box-office – much more so than the young men who leave to fight for the so-called caliphate. We don't hear anywhere near as much about them.

I defy you not to judge Begum. The niqab has gone. You will notice the nail polish, the baseball cap and the sunglasses. You will not be able to resist concluding that this is how she chooses to dress now, to send the message that there is nothing to fear here – she is an average young woman in her 20s who threatens nobody. Her answers don't always satisfy, and that's putting it mildly. There are inconsistencies, occasional smirks and a hint of arrogance. Did she really have no idea about the barbaric acts carried out by the group before she left the UK? She was 15, she says, and "didn't watch the news". Baker points out that social media was awash with stomach-churning content. It passed her by, apparently.

MAROONED Shamima Begum is currently in a detention camp in Syria

ALAMY; DAILY MAIL

The Islamic Utopia she'd been promised failed to materialise, and she was stuck in a cramped house in the Syrian town of Raqqa with other women and children. The only way to get out was to "marry" and she was paired with a Dutch fighter called Yago Riedijk.

Baker tracks him down to a prison camp for former Isis fighters. Cold-eyed and smug, Riedijk is distinctly unappealing. Begum tells Baker he was abusive. He "married" Begum when she was 15, and he was 23. He didn't think much of her – there was "not a lot of person to get to know".

There were five pregnancies, and Begum gave birth to three children, all of whom have died – two of malnutrition after the fall of Islamic State, and one of pneumonia in a camp. These details are truly pitiful.

So what should happen to Shamima Begum? I've heard the podcast and I have watched this documentary. I wanted Begum to help me by showing some contrition. But she didn't – or couldn't do it.

And what would Shamima Begum tell her 15-year-old self?

"Don't do it babes, don't do it."

'I'VE ALWAYS BEEN A FANBOY'

Richard E Grant's love of movies helped him survive childhood trauma, led him to Hollywood and now he's hosting the Baftas – so why does he still feel like an outsider?

THE RT INTERVIEW BY

SARFRAZ MANZOOR

Richard E Grant is hugely excited. And this is not hugely surprising – because frankly, being hugely excited is very much Grant's brand these days. It started when he posted a video of himself in 2019 standing outside his flat in London, reacting to the news that he had been nominated for an Oscar for his role in the film Can You Ever Forgive Me? He was, suffice to say, hugely excited.

In the same year he was hugely excited when he stood outside the home of his childhood hero Barbra Streisand, with a letter he'd sent to her when he was 14 years old – and even more excited when Streisand replied to his tweet about it. And he is – you guessed it – hugely excited about his new role hosting this year's Bafta Film Awards.

"It's like a dream come true," he tells me when we meet at Bafta's offices in central London. "I was astonished to be asked because I always thought that the people who host awards are comedians. I was surprised that they chose an actor… who's not Ricky Gervais."

Usually, when a comedian like Gervais or Chris Rock is given an awards hosting job, their role is to mock and tease the nominees – but Grant sees things differently. "I've always been a fanboy," he says, "so having the opportunity to host means [being able to] share my unabashed fandom and celebration of the movies."

I ask what he's enjoyed the most among this year's crop of film nominations. "Cate Blanchett in TÁR," he says. "It's the kind of movie that Meryl Streep would have been in in the 80s or 90s. With the vogue for Marvel and superhero stuff, to see a movie that is a real character study is something ▷

AN ACTOR'S LIFE With Melissa McCarthy in Can You Ever Forgive Me? and (below) meeting childhood hero Barbra Streisand

◁ that I hadn't expected would come around again so soon."

He also loved The Banshees of Inisherin. "I was astonished it had such awards traction," he says. "It is so local and specific to Ireland, and a chamber piece where not really a lot happens – but everything happens. I am so relieved that these movies are being made and celebrated and recognised."

Since his breakout role in Withnail & I in 1986, Grant has become one of the most established actors in Britain, appearing in such films and TV shows as LA Story, The Player, Gosford Park, Downton Abbey and the aforementioned Can You Ever Forgive Me?, for which he received his first Oscar and Bafta nominations. His love affair with film started young. Born in Swaziland, he came to Britain every three years with his parents, and it was on one such visit to London when he was 12 years old that he saw Oliver! at a cinema in Leicester Square. It was 1969.

"It made an extraordinary impression on me, because it had child actors in it," he recalls. "As somebody who wanted to be an actor secretly, seeing Mark Lester and Jack Wild was a very concentrated moment of understanding that you could become an actor, and still be young."

Living in Swaziland – the smallest country in the southern hemisphere – the idea of pursuing acting as a career was "completely fantastical and ludicrous", and not exactly welcomed by his father, a heavy drinking government administrator. When Grant was 15, he managed to see A Clockwork Orange. "It had a triple-X rating, and you couldn't see it until you were 18 years old," he says, "so I snuck in by telling the woman who was at the box office that she looked just like Elizabeth Taylor."

Grant saw the film – but when he returned home his drunken father was so angry at him, he put a gun to his son's temple and took a shot. Fortunately, he missed. Still, Grant's enthusiasm for acting remained undimmed and he enrolled at drama school. At the end of the course, his professor told him he didn't think Grant was likely to succeed as an actor "because I was very odd-looking, with a very odd face". Undeterred, Grant left Swaziland and arrived in Britain in the spring of 1982, working in a brasserie in London's Covent Garden while trying to secure acting work.

He recently met Paul Mescal – who is nominated for a Bafta and an Oscar for the independent film Aftersun and is currently appearing on stage in A Streetcar Named Desire. "It's an incredible thing for a young actor like that," he says. "He's got his whole career ahead of him." I wonder if Mescal's current moment in the sun (he already has a TV Bafta for Normal People) reminded Grant of the initial excitement around his own debut in the generation-defining Withnail & I.

'I don't have the self-control where I can say, "I'm going to rein it in"'

"No, because Withnail was seen – and is still only seen – by such a tiny percentage of people," he says. "But it got a long life as a result of video and DVD and a sort of student cult following. And it remains as such."

Withnail led to offers to work in the US with the likes of Steve Martin in LA Story – "I've been friends with Steve now for 33 years" – and some of Hollywood's finest directors: Robert Altman in Gosford Park, Martin Scorsese in The Age of Innocence and Francis Ford Coppola in Bram Stoker's Dracula.

As someone who, in his own words, has been a movie buff his whole life, how did it feel to work with the men behind some of the greatest films ever made? "Genuine gratitude coupled with real disbelief," he says. "We rehearsed [Dracula] in a big warehouse at Francis's Napa Valley estate where there was the boat from Apocalypse Now and the desk from The Godfather. You could actually go and sit at the desk, and sit in the boat. I defy anybody not to be thrilled and overwhelmed by that. That's why I've kept a diary all my life – because it's the one way of making what seems unreal and unbelievable somehow concrete, because once you've done it, you can say, 'This actually happened.'"

A STAR IS BORN With Paul McGann in 80s cult classic Withnail & I

THE SECRET HIDEOUT

In fact, Grant started his diary at the age of 11 after waking up in the back seat of a car and seeing his mother having sex with his father's best friend. The young Richard couldn't tell anyone, so confided in his diary. That childhood trauma and his parents' troubled marriage taught Grant lessons about love and secrets. "I saw the cost of divorce, because my father suffered unrequited love for my mother and essentially drank himself to death," he says. "So I thought the best way to protect myself was to never get married, and to never fall in love. But of course, as you know, real life happens in between your plans."

In real life, Grant fell in love with and married dialect coach Joan Washington in the 1980s, and they were married for 35 years before her death in September 2021. Grant later wrote about his marriage and Washington's life and death in a book based on his diaries called A Pocketful of Happiness. Speaking to Radio Times last December, Grant said that writing the book helped him "navigate the abyss of grief" he found himself in.

Much of his life is an open book: his early years were also mined for his 2005 film Wah-Wah. "Having to keep a lid on my parents' divorce and adultery and alcoholism was so toxic," he reveals. "I find that being open about everything seems the best form of protection." Though being that open does make Grant something of a pathological over-sharer, particularly on social media.

"That's an English thing," he insists. "In America, Australia, Scotland and Ireland, over-sharing is not something that I've ever heard mentioned. But in England it is. There's obviously something [I'm doing that runs] ▷

ALISON HAMMOND ▶

◁ against the English sensibility to 'rein it in'. But you are who you are. I don't have that amount of self-control where I can think, 'I'm going to rein this in'."

His dislike of the English stiff upper lip reminds Grant that, while he may have made a career playing quintessentially British roles, that is not how he sees himself. "No matter how long you've been in a place," he says, "and I've been in England for 41 years – you're still an outsider, looking in."

So do you feel like an immigrant, I ask. He pauses. "I do," he says. "People remind you that you're not from here. Somebody will always say, 'Oh, you're from there, aren't you?' And every now and again, somebody will say, 'Oh, gosh, you're not from here.' All the people that I grew up with have been in contact with me, and said, 'God, you're hosting the Baftas?' Their disbelief exactly matches what I feel. That hasn't changed even though I've been doing this for so long."

'Tell Tarantino I want to play a sleazy crooner'

Following the Bafta presenting gig, Grant will return to the day job – upcoming projects include a role in the new film from Emerald Fennell and a three-hander with Julie Delpy and Daryl McCormack (Bafta-nominated twice for best actor and rising star this year for his role in Good Luck To You, Leo Grande with Emma Thompson – see page 25).

I ask who else he would like to work with. "Do you know Quentin Tarantino?" he asks. "Can you please tell him that I want to play a washed-up, sleazy Las Vegas crooner. That's what I want to do. There are so many directors I want to work with. And when I saw Paul Mescal the other day, I said, 'I hope that within my lifetime, I get to work with you.' There's extraordinary talent emerging all the time."

The publicist indicates it's time to wrap up, so I return to Grant's trickiest role to date – Bafta frontman. Is he at all intimidated about standing in front of his acting peers as their work is judged?

"I'm just nervous about Bafta putting a clause in my contract that I can't walk around the Royal Festival Hall with my camera, taking selfies with people who I've long admired," he says. It's an answer that in its combination of starriness and humility feels quintessentially Richard E Grant – simultaneously playing the insider and outsider, the film star and the fan.

'I WILL GRAFT TO DO WELL'

From Big Brother to interviewing A-list stars, it's been quite a journey for Alison Hammond

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO BE DOING ON THE NIGHT OF THE BAFTAS?
I'm hosting the Bafta Studio. You know when you see an awards ceremony, and you see the stars go off stage, and you wonder, "What are they doing backstage there?" They're going to be doing me! They're going to be in the studio, and it's going to be an "access all areas" thing – talking about the movies, talking about the night, talking about their films.

DO YOU HAVE ANY TRICKS TO PUT AN INTERVIEWEE AT EASE?
There's no trick. That's the trick. It's just listening and being yourself. That's the way I roll. I don't like being interviewed, as you can probably detect. I'd rather interview you.

WERE YOU SURPRISED WHEN YOUR INTERVIEW WITH HARRISON FORD AND RYAN GOSLING WENT VIRAL IN 2017?
While the interview was happening, it was a bit cringe. I thought, "Oh my God, I'm not getting any content for this movie whatsoever. We're just messing around, laughing, drinking whisky. This is not going to be good." And then it went viral. It was one of those moments that you'll never re-create again. It'll just sit in time.

WHAT ADVICE WOULD YOU GIVE TO SOMEONE WHO LOOKS AT YOUR CAREER AND WANTS TO FOLLOW IN YOUR FOOTSTEPS?
I used to work in a cinema as an usher. I remember when Vanilla Sky was on, with Tom Cruise. I was obsessed with the movie – I used to watch it every day. And when I actually got to interview Tom Cruise, that was the moment I thought, "Oh my God, this is crazy." How my life has changed. And you know, it hasn't been easy all the way through. It's been a journey.

I would say that preparation is definitely key to everything. In my reports at school, my teachers would say things along the lines of: "Alison doesn't find maths easy. However, she's a grafter." So I might not find things easy, but I will graft to do well. SM

Bafta queen Cate Blanchett on playing a musical maestro, cancel culture and why #MeToo still matters

All eyes will be on Cate Blanchett this Sunday. Already a three-time Bafta winner – for Elizabeth, The Aviator and Blue Jasmine – the 53-year-old Australian is gunning for a fourth with her critically acclaimed performance in TÁR, in which she plays a highly driven conductor who has the classical music world at her feet – until she's accused of predatory sexual behaviour by some of her former protégées…

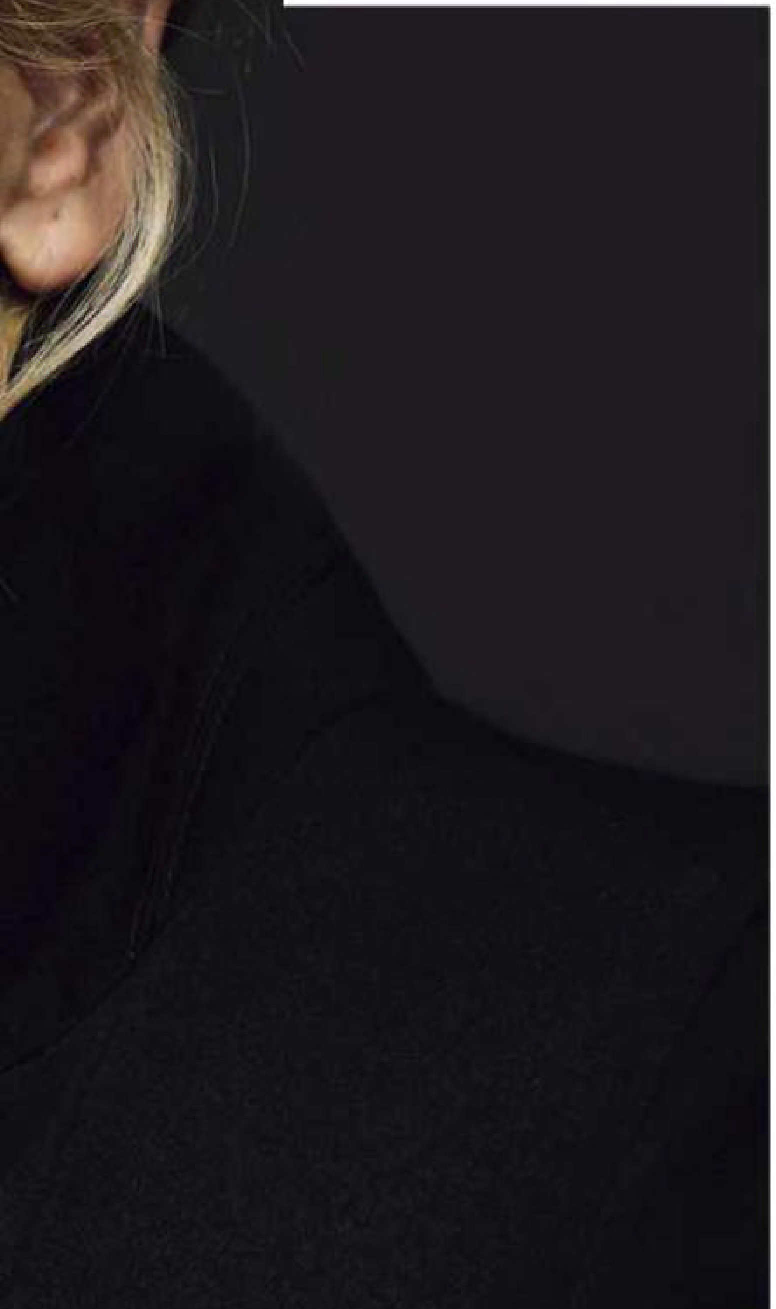
Lydia Tár is hardly a sympathetic figure. Did you think twice before taking on the role?
Well, there's two things that decide what I do and when I do it: four children, and what comes up. Recently, [the chance to work] with Adam McKay [on Don't Look Up] and Guillermo [del Toro, on Nightmare Alley] finally came up. So, of course, that was what I did. I don't know if that's coming from theatre, but I don't usually think "Oh my gosh, look at all these lines to say" – although that did cross my mind when I read this script!

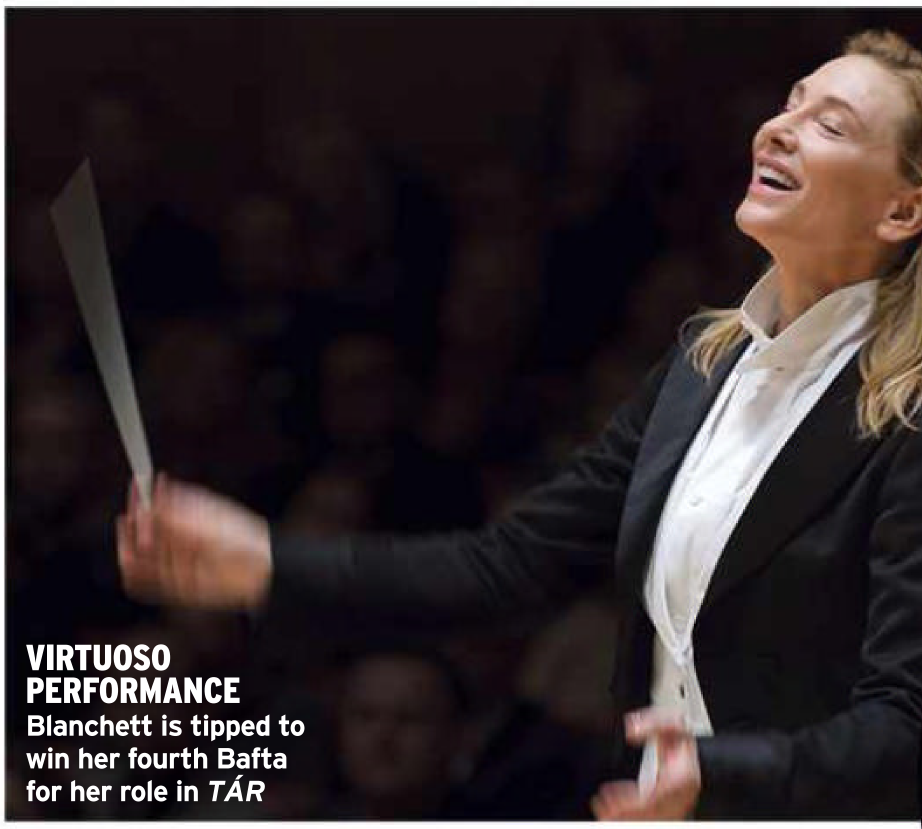
You learnt to play the piano as a child and took refresher lessons for this role. Did you also have to learn how to conduct?
I will say from the get-go that the film is not about conducting – that's something that Lydia Tár does like breathing. So I knew I had to find her way of breathing. I got really obsessed with [Austrian conductor] Carlos Kleiber and his tortured, ambivalent relationship to his work. And obviously, [groundbreaking female Dutch conductor] Antonia Brico's mentioned, and I went back and looked at her. And Marin Alsop and Nathalie Stutzmann, who I'm completely obsessed with… And with my Australian compatriot Simone Young.

Is this a reverse #MeToo story? A woman in a position of power who abuses it…
No, no… I think that whole inclusion of #MeToo, and the reason the film grapples with #MeToo, is because unfortunately it's still very relevant and present in the industry. [From the victims] there's a lot of unexamined rage, and I think exploring that is part of the creative process.

I've just been reading a book on female rage. It's really interesting, as a woman, when you're used to trying to work within an imperfect system – say the movie business – despite the problems, to find success. And then you realise in fact, will this system ever serve me? Or, instead, do I need to break the system apart?

Lydia Tár is brought down by a public outcry – so is this a film about cancel culture?
Of course [there's] cancel culture… you could lump #MeToo in with that, but I think that's a big generalisation. They're two different things. Look, fundamentally, these issues are part of the world that we're in at the moment. So, of course, themes like #MeToo and cancel culture





VIRTUOSO PERFORMANCE
Blanchett is tipped to win her fourth Bafta for her role in TÁR

FLYING HIGH

ACTING ROYALTY

'You have to know when to use your power' will be tackled in a film like this. But they're plot devices and textures from the real world, they're not the only thing we're talking about. It is, dare I say it, more existential than that.

Is it right to cancel great artists because of their personal foibles?
If you don't read older books that are slightly offensive, because of what they say in a historical context, then you will never grapple with the minds of the time. So therefore, we are destined to repeat that stuff. The philosopher Schopenhauer… is his work extraordinary? Absolutely. You look at Picasso. You can only imagine what went on in, outside and around his studio. But do you look at Guernica and say that is one of the greatest works of art ever? Yes, it's a fact. I think it's important to have a healthy critique.

You and your husband Andrew Upton were co-artistic directors of the Sydney Theatre Company for five years. Are people uncomfortable with women in positions of power?
You have to know when and where to use that power. But as a woman, when you don't wield your power – in the way we see men wield their power – then people think you don't know what you're doing, you don't know what you think. And that happens a lot. You also see it on set, less and less so, but with female directors.

SIMPLY THE BEST

You and Andrew were executive producers on the Australian film Shayda. Is it important for Aussies to stick together?
Yes. When Andrew and I were running the Sydney Theatre Company [2008-13], we really enjoyed producing other people's work. It can sometimes be "hard yakka", as they say in Australia, to forge a career in the arts. It can be a bit brutal. So if you have a chance to scaffold and support people's career development, I find that really rewarding.

You're also a goodwill ambassador for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). Should actors speak out?
If you find yourself with a platform, you can either use it for self-aggrandisement – which I do occasionally! – or to hopefully positive ends. Certainly, it's been life-changing for myself and my family to be involved in UNHCR.

How has it affected your family?
Well, my husband and I don't quarantine what we do from our children. We like to talk about it around the dinner table. Our son [Ignatius] came with us on a mission to Jordan, and just watching him play soccer with the boys in the Azraq camp… this one boy wouldn't get up to play with him, and he said, "Does he not want to play?" And I said, "No, darling, he got shot and he still has shrapnel in his foot from when he was crossing from Syria to Jordan – he can't walk properly." You could see him going, "That is so outside my experience."

RISING STAR

SHEILA ATIM

She plays a warrior in The Woman King, but will she triumph on Bafta night?

WARRIOR
Sheila Atim as Amenza in The Woman King

HOW DOES IT FEEL TO BE NOMINATED FOR A RISING STAR BAFTA?
Having done mostly theatre for the first five years of my career and then moving into TV and now film, it's exciting. Aside from the MBE and my other accolades [two Olivier Awards], The Woman King was a seminal moment for me in my career. It feels nice when your work is acknowledged in any way.

IF YOU WIN, WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH YOUR AWARD?
I've been tempted to put my other awards in the corridor as soon as people come in, but it's a bit awkward to walk straight into somebody's Olivier! So probably on my bookshelf.

WHO WOULD YOU LOVE TO MEET AT THE BAFTAS?
I really enjoyed Guillermo del Toro's Pinocchio. He's such an incredible artist. It would be nice to say hi. I'd love to meet the puppets!

WHAT WAS THE BEST BIT ABOUT DOING YOUR OWN STUNTS IN THE WOMAN KING?
The fight choreography was tailored to my character and to my body. The spear is a great weapon for me, because I'm quite a long, lean person, so it kind of looks like another limb. I practised a lot on my balcony in South Africa [where it was filmed], so a lot of passers-by saw me spinning a stick above my head.

WHAT DO YOU CONSIDER WHEN TAKING ON A ROLE?
I'm aware of the importance of bringing forth stories from groups that have been historically shut out. I can't escape being black, and I don't want to, but I don't want it to define me and all the work I do, unless it is significant, so in The Woman King and The Underground Railroad [TV series] it's significant. I just want to tell stories in general.

THE BAFTAS HAVE BEEN ACCUSED OF SHUTTING OUT BLACK ACTORS – HAVE THINGS IMPROVED?
Awards and accolades at their best are opportunities to celebrate ourselves and each other – and also opportunities to spotlight talent. Some people have never been spotlighted before and some people have since forever. Still, awards or no awards, what we made exists. I get stopped in the street every day about The Woman King. People give all kinds of wonderful feedback. In the midst of all the commentary, my job is to remind myself and my teammates that we did a good job. We keep telling each other how proud we are.

WHAT'S NEXT FOR YOU?
All Dirt Roads Taste of Salt – it's a beautiful film. Raven Jackson, the writer and director, is a poet who has taken her first big foray into film-making. I shot it just before The Woman King. It was wonderful to work on a smaller indie project, then a big budget project, both that had so much passion, and helmed by black female film-makers.

In this bizarre sci-fi story, Michelle Yeoh (above) plays a launderette owner whose tax audit is interrupted by a reality-warping, multi-universe war. But will it also clean up on Bafta night? This indie underdog has scooped up ten nominations including best actress for Yeoh, best film, best director and best supporting actor for Ke Huy Quan.

RISING STAR

DARYL McCORMACK

The double nominee on sharing a bed with Emma Thompson

YOU ARE NOMINATED FOR RISING STAR AND BEST ACTOR, HOW DOES IT FEEL?
I knew about the Rising Star category before Christmas, so I had some time to digest that. When the second nomination came through, I honestly was flabbergasted and super-grateful.

DO YOU FEEL LIKE A RISING STAR?
It's nice to be recognised as rising! To know that you're on people's radar. The category celebrates emerging talent and over the years we've seen really formidable, talented actors coming through it. I've yet to see how being nominated will benefit my career, but Bafta are the tent pole of standards, definitely within the UK. And my hope is that people will recognise the work I'm doing… and call my agent!

IT'S BEEN A GREAT YEAR FOR IRISH TALENT AT THE BAFTAS – ARE YOU HAPPY TO BE PART OF THAT?
Totally. I was born and raised in Ireland. In terms of the talent to come out of Ireland, I've always been inspired by them – way back when I started watching films. So to feel a part of it this year is like coming full circle.

WHAT WAS IT LIKE WORKING WITH A SCREEN LEGEND LIKE EMMA THOMPSON IN GOOD LUCK TO YOU, LEO GRANDE?
Doing a two-hander, there's a lot of shared responsibility and I definitely felt that pressure. But there was a particular dynamic that me and Emma found that really made it a joyful experience.

WHAT RESEARCH DID YOU DO TO PLAY A SEX WORKER?
I got to speak to sex workers prior to filming, and the main purpose was to really just bear witness to their stories and their different experiences. I had to step out of my comfort zone and embrace the whole experience.

ON TV, WILL YOU BE BACK IN BAD SISTERS?
They're in the midst of writing the second season, so I'm still waiting to hear.

AND PEAKY BLINDERS – ARE YOU BACK FOR THE MOVIE?
I've yet to hear any news. I was so grateful to have been involved in such an iconic show before it finished. They were so welcoming and amazing. And I loved dressing up as a gangster.

MEET THE TRIATHLETE NOMINEE ▶

THE FRONT RUNNER

Scotland's Lesley Paterson was a world champion triathlete – now she's hot favourite for a Bafta!

IT'S A CLASSIC British underdog story: novice outsider doggedly ploughs 16 years and £160,000 of her own money into her first movie, and now – in a feelgood ending worthy of Richard Curtis – the film is up for nine Oscars and leads the pack at this week's Bafta Film Awards with 14 nominations.

All Quiet on the Western Front is a German-language movie set during the First World War, based on the novel by Erich Maria Remarque. But the most intriguing detail in the story is that Stirling-born Lesley Paterson – who is nominated for best adapted screenplay with Ian Stokell and Edward Berger – is first and foremost a world-champion athlete with 300 triathlons under her belt, who funded the screenplay (and held on to the film rights at a cost of over £10,000 a year) through prize money. She scooped five gold world championship medals during the movie's long gestation, sometimes at a cost to her own health.

"I'm a very driven person," says the 42-year-old Paterson, who does four hours of training at her home in Los Angeles each morning before most of us start work. "When I find something I want to do, I just go after it."

Before taking up triathlons at the age of 13, Paterson enjoyed dancing and was the only girl in her rugby team. She says being the youngest of four taught her that, "You'd better just suck it up or you're going to get left behind. As the underdog, you develop the capacity to fight, even though it's an uphill battle."

BETRAYED YOUTH
All Quiet on the Western Front* is nominated for 14 Baftas

> 'It was touch and go for 16 years. We begged, borrowed, stole – we did it all'

Her interest in writing came later, when she studied English and drama at Loughborough University and then took a master's degree in theatre at San Diego State University in California. And exercise has always been key to unlocking her creativity. "Ideas can pop up even during an intense workout. You get to access different parts of your brain. I'm not someone who can just sit at a computer and start working."

When Paterson chanced upon the original novel of All Quiet on the Western Front in a bookshop, she remembered loving its "potent portrayal of betrayed youth". She felt that in today's polarised society, and with the Great War eclipsed in popular culture by its successor, a new generation needed to hear this story. Surprised that the film rights were available (the book was filmed in 1930 and won two Oscars), Paterson got to work – first with her then writing partner Stokell, and later with her husband Simon Marshall. It took two years to get the script into a shape they were happy with. "The book is like excerpts of a diary, it's quite meandering and drawn out across a long period of time," she reflects. "While it's absolutely beautiful, there's not much dramatic tension."

Though the script generated occasional interest – Daniel Radcliffe, fresh off the Harry Potter franchise, was briefly attached – the setting proved a hard sell. It took the success of Sam Mendes's movie 1917 to get people to sit up and take notice. "It was an incredibly difficult project to fund but our naivety helped, because we just kept going."

While Paterson didn't suffer imposter syndrome – "Rather than, 'Why me?', I always thought, 'Why not me?'" – she dug deep into the resilience training she'd mastered for her athletics success. Movie-making, she realised, is a triathlon, not a sprint. "No question. Roll with it and make it happen," she says. "It was an expensive endeavour and we're from moderate means, so we'd have those moments of doubt. But in my belly, I knew it could be successful if we could just hang on."

ROLL WITH IT
Paterson as a triathlon winner in 2012

The toughest moment came in 2015, when she broke her shoulder the day before a crucial triathlon in Costa Rica. "I was so fit going in and so excited to go out and hit it hard – when it happened, I was like, 'Wow, are you fing kidding me?'" she laughs. "But you have to try to reframe it, to make it into something positive. I've got a pretty good one-arm front crawl – what was the worst that can happen? I was 12 minutes down when I came out of the water, but then I finished the cycling in contention. It was an absolute lesson in never giving up."

Not only did Paterson complete the triathlon, she won it, securing much-needed prize money to hold on to the rights to the book. Five years later, German director Edward Berger (Deutschland 83, The Terror) signed on to her project and translated the script. Soon, a bidding war erupted and Netflix snapped it up.

Then Covid struck. Paterson and Marshall never even went on set during the 52-day shoot. "We were so grateful it was being made, but this was absolutely tragic. It was touch and go for 16 years – we re-mortgaged our house, begged, borrowed, stole – we've done it all. We even used our friends' credit cards, and believe me, as a Scot, it's hard to ask your mates!"

When she saw the finished film in 2021, she sat rigid throughout. "It was mind-blowing to see our words up on screen, this thing come to life that I've dreamt of every single day, with every single race, step, pedal and stroke."

Paterson and Marshall now divide their time between coaching and writing – and more screenplays are coming. In the works are a colonialism-themed period piece, projects about Navy Seals and travellers, and an adaptation of Not without My Sister, the best-selling true story of children abused in the Children of God cult.

Surely, though, her own remarkable story is a script waiting to happen? Modestly, she says she's too close to it to write herself – but it would be a surprise if Hollywood bigwigs weren't already scrapping over the rights. To borrow a phrase from Paterson she uses throughout our interview: "Game on." ROBIN PARKER

LOCKDOWN AFTERSHOCK

Covid changed cinema, says critic James King, but film will survive

We might be in the midst of 2023's film awards season, but it's still no easy thing to assess the current state of the movie industry. On the one hand, global box office takings reached a weighty $26 billion in 2022, a much-needed 27 per cent improvement on 2021. On the other, that's still some 35 per cent short of pre-pandemic levels, representing an annual loss of $14 billion.

And what about streaming? There's no doubt that Netflix, Amazon and Apple changed how we watched movies during the height of Covid, and cinemas are still paying the price. Then again, can we really be critical of anything that offers viewers more choice?

> 'Takings are 35% down on pre-pandemic levels'

Confusion over the industry's future is nothing new. Rewind to the 1980s, and there was a similar uncertainty – would we continue to go to the cinema when we could rent a video from the local corner shop? The answer, of course, was that the two formats ultimately worked together. Today, big studios realise the value of embracing the opposition rather than fighting it, just as they did before with video.

It has been a similarly challenging time for film awards. The big ceremonies have had to prove their relevance in recent years, and the Baftas in particular have shown their class with some smart voting changes to help honour Britain's film-making landscape. As a result, this year's nominations are a fascinating mix, reflecting the wider trends of awards season (multiple nods for The Banshees of Inisherin, Everything Everywhere All at Once and Elvis, for instance) as well as having its own distinct personality (the micro-budget Brian and Charles is up for a major gong). And thanks to categories for outstanding debut, British film and rising star, the Baftas consistently champion new talent and local success.

TRAGICOMEDY
The Banshees of Inisherin*, starring Brendan Gleeson and Colin Farrell, has received ten nominations

Theoretically, that nominations list of multiplex blockbusters, arthouse indies and streaming successes keeps the widest range of movie fans happy and gets TV viewers watching. Nevertheless, something will always be left out. For example, what does it say that this year's Oscar nominees (unlike Bafta's) for best director are – once again – all men?

There are many reasons why certain films don't get awards love. Maybe they're just not "the right type" of story, or perhaps they weren't pushed to voters in the first place. Awareness is key in getting votes. As industry upstarts, streamers want the credibility of awards success, so they put in serious time and money when it comes to campaigning. It has certainly paid off for this year's most nominated film at the Baftas, Netflix's All Quiet on the Western Front.

Will this German First World War epic, shortlisted for 14 prizes, do better than Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid's still-record nine Bafta wins in 1969? Or is it destined to do a Finding Neverland, which failed to turn any of its 11 nominations into a single victory in 2005? Like the future of the film industry, it's hard to predict.

But then has the movie world ever been settled? Is today's concern so different to the 1950s, when cinemas were trying to cope with the new threat of television? Or the 1920s, when there was unrest at the coming of sound? Maybe this current turbulence isn't the end of anything, but just another evolution in a constantly changing business. The film industry wouldn't have kept us entertained for so long had it not adapted and developed along the way.

That's the thing with awards season: it's an imperfect system. As the mighty Clint Eastwood once said, "There's a lot of great movies that have won the Academy Award, and a lot of great movies that haven't."

Any flaws ultimately make the whole process, for me at least, even more gripping. Events like the Baftas can be both a bit of fun and socially important – a place where priceless outfits mix with political statements, where tiny dramas battle mega epics and A-list stars mingle with backroom visual effects teams. They're a glorious hotchpotch of contrasts, yet ultimately everyone – from attendees to viewers – is united by one simple thing: a love of cinema.

KRIS MARSHALL

Return to paradise

Why would you swap a Caribbean island for your mother-in-law's back bedroom in Devon? Death in Paradise star Kris Marshall and on-screen wife Sally Bretton reveal all

Being the star of Death in Paradise must be one of British TV's best jobs. Big ratings, guaranteed recommissions, great guest stars, sun-kissed beaches…Why would anyone leave?

"There have been several times where I've thought, 'What a bloody stupid thing to do!'" laughs Kris Marshall, whose bumbling but brilliant DI Humphrey Goodman swapped cracking crimes on the fictional Caribbean island of Saint Marie for a new start in London with Martha Lloyd (Sally Bretton) in 2017.

"Back then, I could spend five months in the Caribbean because the kids [Thomas and Elsie, his children with wife Hannah] were transportable. Gradually though, they've got their own lives, and I didn't want to leave them for months on end. I've always had slightly itchy feet as an actor – I could have stayed in My Family for 12 years and that would have been fine, but I did three, loved it and then thought, 'What's next?' I've been foolhardy because it could have crashed, but fortunate that it hasn't."

Clearly no bridges were burned, for he and Bretton are both back in Beyond Paradise. The series finds them not in London but in Shipton Abbott, Martha's idyllic if fictional Devon home town. They are living in her mother-in-law's (Barbara Flynn) back bedroom, Martha attempting to open a restaurant and Humphrey settling into leading the slightly shambolic local police force. "There must be a simple explanation," declares Zahra Ahmadi's DS Esther Williams when confronted with their first case, clearly unfamiliar with her new boss's CV.

"The idea of a spin-off was first vaguely mooted soon after I left Death in Paradise," says Marshall. "I thought it could be something interesting, but then Covid happened, everyone went into stasis and I sort of forgot about it until the middle of 2021, when it came back. I read the first script and loved it."

For Bretton, who's known as Lee Mack's long-suffering wife Lucy in the sitcom Not Going Out, the timing could hardly have been better. "I got a lovely call in the middle of deepest, darkest lockdown when the phone was silent. They were bouncing this idea around and wanted to know whether I would be interested in playing Martha again. I had no reservations about saying yes – even if it didn't come to anything, it would be a light to carry me through for a while."

Had Marshall missed Humphrey Goodman? "Yes and no. Yes, in that he's delightful to play and also challenging in many ways because he's got no side to him, no darkness – the clue's in his name. Fortunately, he's a brilliant detective, ▷

TEAM TROPICS
Kris Marshall with co-star Sara Martins in Death in Paradise

◁ so you can inject him with other things. But also no, because I'd put him back in his box. I thought he was gone. I did worry about returning to him in the back of my mind, but as soon as I put the brogues and jacket back on, I was like, this is the same guy who arrived in the Caribbean in 2014. Excited, open-minded, wanting to make the best of things. I even found some of the notes that I'd written for the previous show in his pockets."

It was a welcome opportunity for Bretton to re-engage with a character she had initially taken as a stand-alone job. "I didn't know if Martha would go beyond one episode," she says. "They may have been testing me slightly, having a look to see whether the chemistry would work."

It did, to the extent that Humphrey and Martha are now engaged, having weathered their own Covid storm in London as the pandemic dashed her dreams of running a restaurant and claimed the life of her father.

"They've had a testing couple of years," Marshall says. "Humphrey struggled with the reality of moving back from the Caribbean, he found it hard to adjust to the madness of London and the type of crimes he was dealing with in the Met. When Martha's father dies, they decide life is too short and they should settle down to a slower pace."

'I'm fond of both Lee and Humphrey. Can I have a bigamous marriage?'

SALLY BRETTON

The title of the spin-off is no accident: while the crimes are often complex, they are rarely fatal. They also bring a little of what Marshall terms "South-Westerliness", a dash of ethereal, pagan mysticism that finds root in Humphrey's first two cases hinting respectively at witchcraft and a Marie Celeste-style disappearance. Most crucially, it allows Humphrey and Martha's relationship to become as central to the drama as the crimes.

"This was an opportunity to ask, what happens after happy ever after?" muses Marshall. "It's not a Utopia, there's a reality to it. It's also about two people who have found each other later in life, facing up to new challenges and going on this journey together. Being in the Caribbean had the bathos and hi-jinks of the fish-out-of-water thing, but this had to be a gentler journey, more personal."

The personal becomes almost painful as the couple embark upon what Humphrey calls "the whole wretched journey" of IVF. "It is so many people's journey and has such different outcomes for everybody," says Bretton. "These are personal issues that are personal to lots of people, not just the characters, so trying to address it as sensitively and truthfully as possible was important. I knew it needed care, and that was really in the writing."

Not too much, though. Humphrey also packs in plenty of the sort of "falling-out-of-the-window stuff" (in Marshall's words) that makes Death in Paradise slip down like a piña colada. Marshall's way with a pratfall is, however, purely a performance. "I'm not really a klutz," he insists. "I think people are surprised by that. I've got quite small feet for my height. They're more like hooves – I'm agile like a mountain goat!"

HUMPHREY'S BUFFOONERY MIGHT prove wearing for some. Why does Martha stick with him? "He is incredibly considerate and kind," says Bretton. "He's so open-hearted and gives people his full attention – Martha loves that vulnerability coupled with his brilliance in his job."

So would the actress rather spend the rest of her life with Humphrey or Lee, with whom she is reuniting to film a 13th series of Not Going Out?

"Oh, my God," she gasps. "It's so stressful being Lucy because of what Lee gets up to, but it's never dull. Maybe Humphrey for an easier life, but Lee for one where you never stop laughing." She sighs. "I'm very fond of both of them. Can I have a bigamous marriage?"

Anything's possible in Shipton Abbott, a place so brimming with opportunity that even Marshall, who now lives with his family in the New Forest, might rest those itchy feet awhile. "I'm a watersports person, so filming this from July to October is a dream job. Before or after work, I'd get in the sea whether it's for paddle boarding or sailing or just a swim. I get the choice of two coasts under an hour away. Why wouldn't I want to do that for the next ten years?"

Our favourite comedy and drama sequels

GEORGE AND MILDRED 1976–79 Brian Murphy and Yootha Joyce (right) played the constantly sparring married couple who first appeared as neighbours to Richard O'Sullivan in Man about the House, before getting their own series with a move to Hampton Wick.

The show ran for five series until Joyce's sudden death in 1980. Forty years later, the sight of Mildred in the sidecar of George's motorbike remains instantly recognisable.

GOING STRAIGHT 1978 Following the success of Porridge, Dick Clement and Ian La Frenais penned the exploits of Norman Stanley Fletcher on his release from prison. Ronnie Barker (left) and Richard Beckinsale, who had played cell mates in the previous show, co-starred once again, but the series only ran for six episodes before Beckinsale's death.

LEWIS 2006–15 After more than a decade as a sergeant at the side of John Thaw's Inspector Morse, Kevin Whately (far right) was promoted to Detective Inspector for his own titled series and given his own sidekick, Laurence Fox's DS Hathaway. The success of this show, plus the subsequent Endeavour – Morse's origin story – underlined the appeal of crimes set beneath Oxford's spires.

RALPH & KATIE 2022 Leon Harrop and Sarah Gordy (below) first had supporting roles in Peter Bowker's The A Word, which included the couple's on-screen wedding. The spin-off, with Pooky Quesnel reprising her role of Ralph's mother, explored life for a married couple with Down's syndrome. Broadcast by the BBC, the show has been bought by Disney+ and aired across Europe.

Secrets of the Jurassic Dinosaurs
Sunday 8.00pm BBC2 (not Wales)

‘I’ve been there… I’m not going there again’

After Chris Packham revealed he was suffering from eco-anxiety, Liz Bonnin says therapy saved her from the same fate

Liz Bonnin has been diving off the coast of the Caribbean island of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines. “I know it sounds amazing, but I’m working,” she quickly points out. “I’m not on holiday.” Such seemingly glamorous trips to exotic, far-flung locations is one of the perks of life as a natural history presenter, but in the end it’s still work. And for Bonnin it all became too much. She cracked, both mentally and physically. More of which shortly.

The 46-year-old presenter has taken a short break from filming to promote her new two-part BBC2 series Secrets of the Jurassic Dinosaurs. As well as talking about old bones and boulders, how about something a bit more of the moment? And so the conversation takes a diversion towards the subject of mental health.

Many of us concerned about life on Earth will wrestle with anxiety to some degree, but those like Bonnin, whose lives are immersed in environmental doomsday data, can be especially vulnerable. Our conversation takes place a few days after Chris Packham told Radio Times he was taking a three-month sabbatical due in part to his eco-anxiety.

Bonnin happily acknowledges she has had therapy to deal with aspects of her anxiety and, while it’s not the topic that she has surfaced to talk about, she is content to help destigmatise and cleanse for what many remains a dirty word.

There was a time, she admits, when she was one of those people herself. “My stepmother was American and when I was a kid, I remember her talking about therapy. And I was like, ‘Oh my gosh, Americans and their therapy, what’s that all about?’ But as I got older, and with the things I was facing with my job, I decided to get help. And I just thought, how is it that we don’t do this on a regular basis? We take care of our muscles, but we don’t take care of our emotions and our spirit. When we’re facing so many difficult things, it stands to reason we need help to process it.”

Bonnin’s problems date back to 2015 when her heavy workload caused her to burn out. “I was completely stressed emotionally and I didn’t listen to my mind and body. I came crashing down at home. I was in a whirlwind of work and didn’t know how to stop. But my body stopped me for me.”

She stayed off work for six months to recover and take stock. “I started with a life coach, and that led me to sort of spiritual life coaching and then more neurological therapy – how to process feelings and emotions. In a way it was the best thing that could have happened. I’m grateful that I had the awareness to realise what was going on and to get help for it both physically and mentally. Now I’ve never loved my job more and I think I take better care of myself. So, yes, I've been there – and I'm not going there again."

GIANT STEPS
Liz Bonnin takes us back to the Jurassic era, when sauropods roamed Earth

Today, her coping toolbox still features therapy, plus meditation and exercise – which aren't, of course, universally available to everyone. So how do we all avoid catastrophising about the future? She provides a bit of free counselling straight from the therapist's couch.

"We're facing an existential crisis so it's probably not surprising that we're all experiencing anxiety. It's overwhelming and what I've learned is the more you try to push it away, the more it persists and the bigger it gets. We have to understand that we don't need to be scared of those emotions, we almost need to embrace them. We need to lean into them and then work through them. It's actually quite a beautiful thing to do for yourself."

So, back to Secrets of the Jurassic Dinosaurs. Last summer, Bonnin spent two weeks in Wyoming helping an international team of scientists excavate what's described as one of the richest sites of dinosaur remains in the world. The dinosaurs uncovered date from the Jurassic period 150 million years ago. To date, 15 skeletons have been teased out of the rock that has entombed them – ten long-necked sauropods like diplodocus and five predatory allosaurus, a much earlier relative of T-Rex.

The working conditions are extreme – sky-high temperatures one moment, violent rainstorms the next, and then, worst of all, sand blizzards. "I've had a few extreme episodes in my career but this was something I'd never experienced before and I was pretty scared. You think, 'Oh, this is great telly, this will make a great little sequence,' but then you're being battered by sand and bits of rock, and the scientists are screaming, 'Get up the hill and get into the cars!'"

Such volatile weather conditions are thought to have been responsible for the deaths of many of the dinosaurs found buried closely together on this globally important site. Back then, the now-barren wasteland supported lush vegetation and, crucially, a waterhole that passing dinosaurs would have paused at. Using an assortment of scientific observations (and a fistful of conjecture), the palaeontologists believe that the huge sauropods might have perished after becoming stuck in mud and slowly starved to death. Their bodies were then encased in mud from the following season's flood and preserved for the next 150 million years.

THE RESULT IS A treasure trove of skeletal remains. But there's more than just bones. Bonnin cracks open an unpromising looking rock only to find herself staring at the stem of a perfectly preserved horsetail plant. And it's not all hands on. With the instruction "You're not a true palaeontologist until you've eaten some rock", Bonnin is encouraged to lick a stony sample – if it sticks to her tongue (it does) it proves it's a fossil. "I thought, is this really OK to do this to a bone that has just been unearthed for the first time in 150 million years? It did seem a bit disrespectful."

Thirty years ago, the film Jurassic Park was released. It's the potential of sites like the one in Wyoming that the Our Changing Planet co-presenter believes makes this familiar story an enduring one. "The way we can use computer modelling and ever-improving technologies means we can paint a better, more comprehensive picture of the lives and deaths of the dinosaurs, but also some of their behaviours. So there's still more to discover."

But there's a compelling human ingredient too. "The reason I was keen to do this programme is that I hope it reaffirms or reignites a passion and an awe for our planet and what it's been through, that hopefully encourages in us a will to protect it and honour it. It's about recognising just how miraculous this place really is, and how lucky we are to be here." TERRY PAYNE

(K)nox: the Rob Knox Story From Thursday ITVX

HARRY POTTER STAR MURDERED

Rob Knox had just made it as an actor when his life was brutally cut short

When Harry Potter actor Rob Knox was a tiny baby, his father brought him home from hospital and cradled him in his arms. Stepping into his garden, he told his son he would always keep him safe – but 18 years later, the promising young actor was dead, an innocent victim of knife crime.

The teenager was murdered four days after he completed filming the breakthrough role of Hogwarts student Marcus Belby in Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince. Now the movie’s director David Yates, Rob’s co-star Jim Broadbent, his family and friends celebrate Rob’s mischievous and loyal character in ITVX’s (K)nox: the Rob Knox Story. As well as home videos, the documentary contains a harrowing account of Rob’s murder on 24 May 2008.

But his dad Colin prefers to think about the moment his first-born son arrived in the world. “I remember him coming out! You’re single, get married and it’s just the two of you. Then all of a sudden, there’s this third, lovely person who pops into your life,” he says.

“When he came out of hospital, I took him back to our home, took him to the garden and held him in my arms. And I said to him, ‘Son, welcome into our family. I will protect you.’

“In the end, I couldn’t because he was a man. That’s what I promised him,” he says, wiping away tears. “I speak to Rob, to the upper stratosphere, every day. I tell him, ‘I always look up to you. You’re a greater person than I’ll ever be.’”

The death of a gifted actor who was about to appear in one of the biggest film franchises sparked headlines and calls for action against knife crime. Instead it has risen at an alarming rate. There were 11,517 knife or sharp instrument offences recorded by the Metropolitan Police in the year ending September 2022. Colin, 70, hopes a forensic look at how it blighted his family will amplify the message that more must be done.

Two precious memories “encapsulate Rob”. When Colin and Rob’s mother separated, he handed his son a bottle full of coins. “I said, ‘Treat yourself.’ I thought he’d buy Nikes or jeans. Robbie gave every penny to Children in Need.” And Kent Police awarded Rob a posthumous bravery award for helping to apprehend two men who assaulted someone in Marks and Spencer. “Robert chased this guy… he held him until the police came,” Colin says.

Rob’s mum Sally Holder recalls the day, aged 17, when he held her hand in Bluewater shopping centre: “I said, ‘That’s not going to do your street cred any good.’ Rob replied: ‘I don’t care. Everyone can know that I love my mum.’”

At the Harry Potter film premiere, Daniel Radcliffe and Emma Watson wore ribbons to remember their co-star. Colin wore a dinner suit and bow tie. “I was so proud of my son. But he should have been there,” he says. He recalls the film’s Slughorn’s Supper scene when Rob politely ignored Jim Broadbent’s advice to nibble his profiteroles lest he get too full. “He ate 32 of them!” Colin laughs.

Rob’s life ended when he was stabbed five times outside a bar in Sidcup, south-east London, while trying to protect his younger brother, Jamie. Karl Bishop, 22, who was sentenced to life in prison for Rob’s murder, had a previous conviction for a knife attack and habitually carried knives.

Colin warned Rob about knives in their last conversation: “I told him, ‘Be careful out there.’ Then he was gone.” He laments a lack of political action even after high-profile killings such as that of MP Sir David Amess in 2021. “You can paint the Houses of Parliament red or blue, but neither have done anything.”

Despite immense pride in his son’s achievements, when Colin wonders what Rob would be doing today, he imagines how his personal life – not his career – would have taken shape. “I think about his [future] girlfriend, his fiancée, his wife, my grandchild…”

When Rob died, Colin says, “I virtually shut myself off from civilisation. I didn’t come out of the flat. The curtains were always drawn.”

Eventually the family set up the Rob Knox Foundation: “You can rant and rave, but we decided to use Rob’s legacy to put a message out there,” he says. “We used that as a vehicle to fight knife crime, not just be angry.”

I ask Colin whether it’s painful to talk about his first-born child. “No, it’s not painful. It’s emotional,” he says. “My love for my son started on the day that he was born. And it will stay with me until the day I die.” SHERNA NOAH

A CRICKET CONUNDRUM

It's the Women's T20 World Cup – and my allegiance is split…

Perhaps freedom is about choice and the number of different paths you are able to take. Back in my schooldays, sport seemed to limit our freedoms, as it tried to make all of us boys act and turn out the same. But one of the great things about the rise of women's sport in recent decades has been the exact opposite – the idea that sport can offer new options about who and what you choose to be.

That's why, as the Women's T20 World Cup gets into its stride, I find my patriotism under threat. England play India and Pakistan this week – and it will be hard not to cheer for the likes of India's Renuka Singh Thakur or Pakistan's Nida Dar, known as "Lady Boom Boom", who perfectly embody the additional choices for women all over the world.

> 'It's hard not to cheer for "Lady Boom Boom" – Pakistan's Nida Dar'

I am reminded of a girl's football team I used to support. It was based in rural Bihar, the poorest state in India and run by the local eye hospital (many of the players were training as ophthalmic nurses). They did so with backing from the superb charity Second Sight and a column I wrote at the time would carry regular photos of the girls at practice, some in shorts and with short haircuts, some in salwar kameez. Readers were greatly taken by the tale and backed Second Sight in their turn.

So I might just find a cheer or two for England's subcontinental opponents. India are a strong side, as they were the only team to beat Australia last year. And at the Commonwealth Games – thanks to some seam bowling from Thakur – they had the Aussies on the rocks, even though they lost in the end.

It will be rather more of a shock if Pakistan make England suffer, as they are still reeling from a series of hammerings by Australia. However, Nida Dar has been a key player for what seems like an eternity. At 36, she still hits the ball a long way and bowls some canny off-spin. She borrowed her nickname – Lady Boom Boom – from the great male Pakistan player Shahid Afridi. It'll be thrilling to see her at her best.

England might well be able to silence my well-meaning disloyalty. They have, it seems, been affected by the urgency of the men's team under the captaincy of Ben Stokes and his philosophy of "If in doubt, go all in". Not that Stokes seems to do doubt – and nor, it seemed, did the women's team in a warm-up match against the hosts South Africa.

It was as if England's batters were playing a private fastest to 50 competition. Alice Capsey, back from collar-bone surgery, took 28 balls, veteran Nat Sciver-Brunt took 24, but Sophie Dunkley carried the day with just 15.

Big-hitting, high-scoring players are gold dust in this format, but bowlers who can stop them are diamonds. England are likely to open the bowling with the seamer Lauren Bell, who took three wickets as South Africa replied to a daunting England total and fell short.

Australia are big favourites. They've won every World Cup since 2017 and have won five out of the seven T20 World Cups. Look out for Kim Garth, formerly of Ireland (well, it's just next door), and Heather Graham, who recently took a hat-trick against India.

If you want a real underdog, you could cheer for Bangladesh. They pulled off a shock result in the recent under-19 T20 World Cup, beating Australia by seven wickets, and three of the team that did so have made the squad in South Africa. Nigar Sultana, the wicket-keeper and top-scoring batter, will need to be in inspirational form.

Women's sport has opened a lot of minds and, more importantly, opened a thrilling new range of possibilities for billions of people. It has gone rapidly from fringe to mainstream and is now an inevitable part of the lives of sports fans. In South Africa we can expect a great tournament – no matter who we might be cheering for.

IN IT TO WIN IT Pakistan's Nida Dar and England's Lauren Bell

The Women's T20 World Cup continues on Saturday with England v India, while England v Pakistan is on Tuesday. Both matches are on from 12.30pm on Sky Sports Main Event/ Cricket and 5 Sports Extra

NATURE

David Attenborough's Natural Curiosities

Available from 16 February

Originally shown on the UKTV satellite/cable channels Eden and W and now with series 1–3 on iPlayer, this 2013 nature series sees David Attenborough introduce and explain some of his own favourite quirks of evolution. It's filmed all around the world, but the most delightful sequences are dead simple, as Attenborough – on camera, not just narrating – educates us directly on such strange topics as the advanced visual memory of the raven (with help from Sir David's raven friend, Bran) and the impressive strength of the flea. The whole family will learn a lot. Meanwhile, the naturalist will be back on home turf for his new series Wild Isles, coming soon to the BBC. JACK SEALE

DRAMA

Waterloo Road

Series 1–11 available now

FULL BOX SET

When the original run of Waterloo Road became an unexpected hit on iPlayer, a revamped version was hurried into production. Some viewers cried foul, feeling that money that could have been spent on keeping Holby City going was being ploughed into this new project. But the BBC stuck to its guns – and the result, starring Angela Griffin (above) as head teacher Kim Campbell, is a grounded continuation of the schools drama that takes issues of relevance to tons of people by the scruff of the neck and puts them up there on screen. DAVID BROWN

Autumnwatch

Available now

Following the BBC's announcement earlier this month that it has axed Autumnwatch, Michaela Strachan (who hosts alongside Chris Packham, below) has been "overwhelmed" by viewers' outcry, with an online Change.org petition to save the show having garnered more than 100,000 signatures as RT went to press. Hopefully it will help nudge the BBC towards reversing the decision. In the meantime, make sure to enjoy last year's run of the show while you still can... FRANCES TAYLOR

WHAT I'M STREAMING

KRIS MARSHALL

"I found the documentary Fight the Power: How Hip Hop Changed the World, featuring Chuck D [above], really scintillating," says the Beyond Paradise actor. "I loved it as that music is a world I grew up with, but I didn't know too much about it in terms of its inception because I got into rap with N.W.A and Eminem in the early-to-mid-90s."

Fight the Power: How Hip Hop Changed the World is available on iPlayer. For more on Beyond Paradise (Friday 8pm BBC1), see p30.

CRIME DRAMA

Luther

FULL BOX SET

Idris Elba is back on the big screen this week in Luther: the Fallen Sun, ahead of its arrival on Netflix in a few weeks' time. To prepare for the movie, here's a reminder that not all heroes wear capes – some prefer grey Harris tweed overcoats. Yet in many other respects DCI John Luther feels like a brooding Batman-style archetype, with London his Gotham City and Ruth Wilson (as the psychopathic Alice Morgan) acting as a Joker-esque adversary. It's very knowingly noirish and melodramatic – but undeniably thrilling. DB

DOCUMENTARY

Putin vs the West

Available now

One of those prestige political documentaries that only talks to very senior politicians – the people who were in the room when the big stuff happened – this three-parter looks at how Vladimir Putin became the West's leading foe, starting with his incursion into Crimea in 2014 and then examining his role in the Syrian civil war before concluding with the full invasion of Ukraine. As the likes of David Cameron, Boris Johnson and François Hollande look back, it's a mix of farcically delicate diplomacy and frighteningly callous displays of military strength. JS

(K)nox: the Rob Knox Story

Available from Thursday

A film made in tribute to Rob Knox, the promising young Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince actor who, aged 18, was murdered in 2008 in a knife attack outside a bar in Sidcup, south-east London. Most of the film is a simple biography of Knox and a harrowing minute-by-minute account by witnesses of the circumstances leading up to the attack, but it also shows how Knox's family have tried to prevent similar tragedies by campaigning in his name for greater awareness of the problem of young people carrying knives on Britain's streets. JS

All 3 episodes available Thursday

A heartfelt romantic drama starring Sophia Brown and Harry Lawtey (above) as Jess and Ben, who meet cutely while running for a London bus and start a life together – but a parallel flashforward storyline showing us Ben alone and bereft tells us it won't work out as planned. With Jessica Barden completing a love triangle of sorts as a theatre actor whose ambition hides her own tragic past, and a strong supporting cast that includes Andi Osho and Julie Hesmondhalgh, You & Me is an involving story that might prompt a good old-fashioned cry. JS

COMEDY DRAMA

Official Competition

★★★★ 15

Available from 15 February

The making of a prestige picture is at the heart of this captivating comedy from Argentinian directors Mariano Cohn and Gastón Duprat. Set in Spain, it follows Penélope Cruz's maverick film-maker Lola (above) as she prepares her latest project. After she casts megastar Félix (Antonio Banderas) and thespian Iván (Oscar Martínez), their on-screen rivalry spills into real life and results in all manner of drama. Blending elegance and absurdity, the film satirises the hypocrisies and pretensions of the film industry. EMMA SIMMONDS

The Strays ★★★ 15

Available from Wednesday

A woman's past comes back to taunt her in the directorial debut of Nathaniel Martello-White. Black retail worker Cheryl (Ashley Madekwe, above) reinvents herself in leafy suburbia as a prim and proper snob who tries to keep up with the Joneses. Marrying a wealthy white man (Justin Salinger), she ends up in denial about her blackness, an issue that is inflamed by the appearance of two individuals from her previous life. Evoking Jordan Peele's Get Out, this is a cleverly conceived, fitfully tense horror satire that offers a nightmarish look at fears regarding race. ES

Peter Rabbit 2

★★ U

Available from Sunday

Beatrix Potter's creations return in this sequel to the 2017 hit. Bea (Rose Byrne) has secured a book deal based on her stories about the mischievous bunnies, but her publisher (David Oyelowo) wants to portray Peter as a "bad seed". Feeling misunderstood, Peter runs away and gets mixed up with a gang of furry thieves. The haywire plotting sends the movie into crime-caper territory that feels unsuitable for a young audience. It's a waste of impeccable effects, made more unbearable by James Corden's irritating vocal turn in the title role. TREVOR JOHNSTON

Murdaugh Murders: a Southern Scandal

All 3 episodes available Wednesday

A family of attorneys who perhaps wield a little too much power, brought down by a series of mysterious deaths? It sounds like the premise for a prestige drama but it's real, and the history of the Murtaugh clan's dominance of coastal South Carolina's 14th district gives this true-crime documentary plenty to chew on. The intrigue begins with the death of a young family friend in a 2019 boating accident, but when the Murdaughs themselves are hit by violent tragedy, more than one historical incident is re-examined. JS

Formula 1: Drive to Survive

All 10 episodes of season 5 available from Friday

Having sparked a wave of imitators covering other sports, the original and best behind-the-scenes sports doc is back to tell the real story of Grand Prix racing's 2022 season. But a programme about sport can only be as exciting as the sport itself, and 2022 in Formula One wasn't a classic. As Dutch defending champion Max Verstappen (above) cruises to another title, the chat about wholesale changes to the sport's regulations – on car design, tyres and how points are awarded – might mean this year's Drive to Survive is one for hardcore F1 aficionados only.

Manhattan doctor and dad of two Toby Fleishman (Jesse Eisenberg, above) has just emerged from a bad marriage to the apparently hideous Rachel (Claire Danes); he is just starting to enjoy a new life of one-night stands and rekindled old friendships when a mysterious event causes him to re-evaluate his life. What seems like naughty fun proves to be an astute, bracingly honest take on class and careers as well as life and love in one's 40s. JS

Fire of Love ★★★★ PG

Available now

Nominated for a Bafta and an Oscar, Sara Dosa's wonderfully offbeat documentary tells the story of a truly explosive romance. From the late 1960s through to the early 90s, French couple Katia and Maurice Krafft travelled the world together to better understand volcanic activity, putting themselves in the line of fire – and lava – in the name of science. The audio and film footage they left behind is simply incredible, and this archive is skilfully woven together by Dosa, with Miranda July providing poetic narration.

ENJOY YOUR RETIREMENT WITH EQUITY RELEASE

Could you join the thousands choosing to access their property wealth with equity release?

The number of new equity release plans taken out reached a record high in 2022, with customers making use of improved products and added protections.

WHAT IS EQUITY RELEASE?

Equity release allows homeowners aged 55 or over to access a percentage of their property value, tax-free, whilst continuing to own 100 per cent of their home with a lifetime mortgage.

FLEXIBLE REPAYMENTS

The money you unlock from your home can be accessed as a lump sum or smaller instalments at a later date, and it's yours to enjoy spending once you've repaid any existing mortgage. You can choose whether to make repayments as the money that you release, plus the interest that you accrue, is repaid when you die or go into long-term care and your property is sold. Some plans allow you to pay off a portion of the interest each month, meaning you can reduce the amount of debt being rolled up.

SAFEGUARD A PERCENTAGE OF YOUR PROPERTY

All equity release plans come with a no negative equity guarantee, which means that you can never pass on the debt to your estate, providing the property is sold for a reasonable amount. There are also plans that allow you to safeguard a percentage of your property value so that you can still pass on an inheritance to your loved ones.

FIND OUT MORE

Radio Times are working with Age Partnership+, part of the UK's number one equity release adviser*, to offer an equity release service. Through our service, your dedicated adviser can provide you with a personalised illustration so you can understand the features and risks and find out how much you could release. They will help you understand if equity release could be right for you and they will tell you everything you need to know, including the effect on the amount of inheritance you can leave and if your entitlement to means-tested benefits could be affected now or in the future.

Your adviser will review a wide range of plans from the whole of the market to find the most suitable solution for your individual circumstances.

It's important to know that equity release may involve a home reversion plan or a lifetime mortgage, which is secured against your property. Your quotation is free and you are under no obligation to proceed. Only if you choose to proceed and your case completes would a fee of £1,995 be payable.

ACTION THRILLER

Those Who Wish Me Dead ★★★ 15

Available from Friday

Angelina Jolie brings grit, groundedness and mussed-up glamour to this otherwise routine tale of a firefighter with a haunted past. Hannah (Jolie) confidently trades banter with her elite firefighting team, but a mistake has left her racked with guilt. When she comes across a boy (Finn Little) being pursued by assassins (a chilling Aidan Gillen and Nicholas Hoult), she must draw on her survival skills to save him. Visceral bursts of violence and the propulsive directing style of Taylor Sheridan (Wind River) help distract from the film's more obvious genre trappings. STEPHEN APPLEBAUM

The Consultant

All episodes available from Friday

Few actors are more convincing as a menacing weirdo than Christoph Waltz, who makes a rare foray into TV for a black-comedy thriller that plays on the seamier elements of corporate America. Waltz is a management consultant brought in to shake up a gaming app company – his demands for remote workers to return to the office are soon eclipsed by the strong feeling that the employees' lives might be in danger. Based on Bentley Little's novel, it's scripted by Brit Tony Basgallop, whose previous US project was Servant for Apple TV+. JACK SEALE

Sharper ★★★ 15

Available from 17 February

A tale of con artists and their wealthy marks, this smartly written thriller centres on bookstore manager Tom (Justice Smith), who falls for a customer (Briana Middleton) who isn't quite what she seems. Meanwhile, we meet Tom's father (John Lithgow), his partner (Julianne Moore) and her son (Sebastian Stan), all of whom are attempting to outwit one another. British director Benjamin Caron gives Sharper a pleasing, Succession-like sheen. JAMES MOTTRAM

Liaison

Episode 1 available from Friday

Vincent Cassel and Eva Green lead an international thriller that, sadly, succumbs to a common problem with cross-border collaborations: the UK-set scenes don't ring true. Do French and Syrian viewers think the same about the parts set in their countries? Cassel (above, with Green) is a mercenary tasked by the French state with hiring two Syrian cyber-warriors, only for them to pitch up in London instead. Much of the dialogue is stilted, but Cassel is convincing as a hard-man fixer. JS

STEVEN MOFFAT

"I've just started watching Shrinking [starring Lukita Maxwell and Harrison Ford, above], a new show on Apple TV+," says the producer and writer. "I thought it was really great. And The Traitors (iPlayer) – that was fantastic. We live in a great time for television, there's so much bloody good TV. I don't know how you get through it all. I almost think there's too much good TV left for me to be able to see before I die!"

SOAP

Neighbours

Available from Thursday

Rumours of the death of Neighbours were greatly exaggerated in 2022 with its cancellation swiftly followed by news of a resurrection, this time on Freevee rather than Channel 5. Ahead of that revival later this year, fans are first being given the chance to mine the archive, with a who's who of its alumni featuring in classic episodes. Kylie Minogue, Jason Donovan, Margot Robbie, Guy Pearce, Natalie Imbruglia – they're all here. And those wanting to see more recent residents of Ramsay Street will be well served too, with revisits of drama from the 2000s also available. DAVID BROWN

Having suffered a mysterious seizure, Jewish academic Leah (Ellie Kendrick) is cared for in London by her new partner, Maja (Josephine Park). Leah's mother (The Killing's Sofie Grabol) lives in the same building and pressures her daughter to observe her traditional Hasidic upbringing, but there's a malign presence in the house… Confidently dealing in suspense and ambiguity, first-time director Gabriel Bier Gislason delivers a solid supernatural thriller with nods to Jewish folklore. TERRY STAUNTON

Bones and All ★★★★ 18 Available now

Italian director Luca Guadagnino reunites with his Call Me by Your Name star Timothée Chalamet for this very different sort of love story. Based on a novel by Camille DeAngelis, it sees Chalamet and Taylor Russell playing runaways who embark on a road trip across Reagan-era America while bonding over their insatiable appetite for human flesh. It might sound like the basis for a schlocky pulp romance, but Guadagnino has crafted a tender study of young love between outsiders. Chloë Sevigny, Michael Stuhlbarg and Mark Rylance provide memorable support. PATRICK CREMONA

ANIMATION

The Deer King ★★★ 15

Available from Monday

Two former animators for Japan's Studio Ghibli combine for this epic drama that is both a far-flung fantasy and a film about a pandemic. In the fictional Empire of Zol, an enslaved rebel and a young girl go on the run. As they travel from mines to sacred forests and beyond, a deadly virus spreads across the land via savage black wolves. Despite its striking visuals, The Deer King suffers from a convoluted plot, meaning it's unlikely to appeal to anybody except keen anime fans. MAX COPEMAN

STARS COME OUT Host Olly Murs, centre, with judges (from left) Adam Lambert, Beverley Knight, Shania Twain and Jason Manford

ENTERTAINMENT

Starstruck

8.30pm ITV1 Catch up via ITVX

As one zany singing show reaches a series finale (The Masked Singer, see below), another one returns. Despite mixed reviews and so-so ratings, this glossy and slightly convoluted take on Stars in Their Eyes is back for a second series. It sees three members of the public all performing as the same superstar (last year included the likes of Freddie Mercury, Lady Gaga and Cher) and once the different groups of artists have sung, the studio audience vote an eventual winner through to the final.

It sounds more complicated than it is, and if you can push through the overt cheesiness and the unintentional ropiness of some of the aesthetics (some physical likenesses are excellent; others are almost nonexistent), it's a bit of irreverent fun. ITV were right to have another run at it.

This series Shania Twain joins the surprisingly starry line-up of judges (not to be cynical, but she does have a new album out), stepping into the shoes left by outgoing Sheridan Smith. It'd spoil the reveals to say who the contestants transform into, but some of the singers are outstanding and it's criminal that these amateurs aren't full-time professionals. FRANCES TAYLOR TV PREVIEWS EDITOR

SERIES FINALE

Almost as surprising and random as the celebrity reveals are those who turn up as guest panellists. Earlier this series we've seen Peter Crouch return (after being a judge on The Masked Dancer) and Stephen Mulhern popping up. In tonight's grand final, comedian Lee Mack is the couldn't-have-predicted-he'd-make-an-appearance name joining Davina McCall, Mo Gilligan, Jonathan Ross and Rita Ora.

There are more surprise guests among the singers, too, as the three finalists will duet with some familiar furry faces. Fox (Denise van Outen), Harlequin (Gabrielle) and Traffic Cone (Aled Jones) will sing alongside the as yet-unmasked stars who've made it to the barmy, bitter end. FT

HISTORY

Bettany Hughes's Treasures of the World

7.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

The globetrotting historian this week ventures to Jordan. The country has been a regular stop for sightseers since the early 19th century, all keen to visit the newly "discovered" city of Petra. But it's been a crossroads of cultures and religions for millennia, and Hughes is keen to explore some of the other historical highlights.

There's the Roman city of Jerash and a wealth of biblical sites, including Machaerus, where John the Baptist met his fate. And other conflicts have never been far away, as she discovers at the hilltop Karak Castle, built by the Crusaders, but which fell to the Muslim commander Saladin in the late 12th century. (Last week's episode was changed after recent events in Turkey.) GILL CRAWFORD

Living Wild: How to Change Your Life

8.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Change and transformation are on the agenda again as Sophie Morgan travels the UK to meet more people who have decided to carve out new lives away from the urban grind.

Jen and Matt have decamped to a Hebridean island to farm pigs, while Andy and Aneela are defying his MS diagnosis to set up a mountain biking company in the Scottish borders.

Most isolated of all is Sue who runs a hostel alone in the wilds of the Lake District, but the story that will really stick with you is that of Sally and Rachel. Morgan meets them in a Midlands boatyard where the 60-somethings are working on the narrow boat they intend to live in. Its name? Ola, which stands for One Last Adventure… CERI THOMAS

The arrival of a heroic new doctor is usually accompanied by a large-scale crisis, and Max Cristie certainly doesn't break with that tradition. He's first seen tending to patients in the aftermath of a train derailment. But once at the hospital, it turns out that not everyone thinks of Max as a saviour, with Dylan, for one, having past beef with him.

Max, though, is here to stay, as he's set to be made the ED's new clinical lead. And in the role is someone who long-time soap fans will undoubtedly recognise: it's Nigel Harman, still known primarily as EastEnders' Dennis Rickman – a role that won him several sexiest male awards in the less-enlightened early 2000s. DAVID BROWN

FINAL EPISODE

You know a character in a crime drama means business when they stand at a burning brazier under the cover of darkness torching incriminatory documents. So it shouldn't come as much of a surprise that as well as doing that, Adamma also decides to turf out her feckless article of a husband, Aidan.

He's essentially been the catalyst for all the calamities that have befallen this rural fishing community, and in this double-bill finale, he remains useless, leaving it to sister Ciara to neutralise the threat to the family. It all makes for a satisfying wrap-up – and one that leaves us feeling an appropriately icy shiver down the spine. DB

Atlantic Crossing

9pm Drama Catch up via UKTV Play

Although the Japanese have just bombed Pearl Harbor, our focus is still mainly on the infatuation of Franklin Roosevelt (Kyle MacLachlan) with Martha, the Crown Princess of Norway (Sofia Helin). Understandably, her husband Olaf (Tobias Santelmann) is upset by rumours of the relationship, while a jealous Missy (Lucy Russell), FDR's devoted assistant, drunkenly tells Martha some harsh facts.

There's some truth in all this but clearly much of it is fictionalised. Atlantic Crossing certainly makes being the US president seem like fun – it's all cocktail parties, country drives and visits to the beach – but things get more serious when German soldiers land close to Martha's Long Island summer house. JANE RACKHAM

David Bowie: Love You Till Tuesday

10.20pm Sky Arts

A late-night David Bowie marathon begins with a delightful snapshot of the icon in his pre-fame Anthony Newley/twee hippy folk-influenced phase. A showcase for Bowie's talents as a singer/songwriter, actor and mime artist, this fascinating historical document was produced with high hopes in 1969 but didn't see the light of day until 1984.

The evening continues with Discovering: David Bowie, in which various talking heads analyse his multifaceted legacy, Beside Bowie: the Mick Ronson Story, an in-depth profile of the Dame's legendary guitarist, and his crowd-pleasing 2004 concert in Isle of Wight Festival Greatest Hits. PAUL WHITELAW

Popcorn time for the Saturday pop compilation: a widescreen collection of songs that instantly flag up the films they're from. So Take My Breath Away from Top Gun, Grease from Grease, they're easy enough. Less obviously, we also get Independent Women Part I from Charlie's Angels… which makes for a great pub-quiz "Question".

There's a clutch of classics, too, from a moustachioed Simon and "Hair Bear" Garfunkel performing Scarborough Fair from The Graduate in 75 to a perky Dolly doing the 9 to 5 on Wogan in 83. The live versions are particularly good: Warren Zevon's pitch-perfect werewolf howls and Matt ("the singing bus driver") Monro with his still affecting Born Free. And the fun facts always stick: I love that Born to Be Wild was used by Nasa to "wake up" its 2003 Mars rover. Then again, it was written by Mars Bonfire… MARK BRAXTON

FILM REVIEWS

FILM OF THE DAY

Gravity ★★★★★

7.15-8.40pm BBC2 (not in Wales) 12

SCI-FI Director Alfonso Cuarón's intimate yet spectacular space drama stars Sandra Bullock as an engineer on her first space-shuttle mission alongside veteran astronaut George Clooney. As they carry out a service on the Hubble telescope, a planned missile strike on a defunct Russian satellite destroys their shuttle. With limited oxygen supplies remaining, Bullock and Clooney must fight for their survival. The special effects are stunning, and Bullock imbues the film with a humanity that complements Cuarón's breathtaking vision. DAMON WISE (US/UK 2013, edited for language, HD)

Sing ★★★★

12.05-2.15pm 5 Star U

MUSICAL A fast-talking koala stages a singing contest to save his theatre in this joyous animated movie. Among the entrants are a much-hassled hausfrau pig, a shy elephant with a big voice, a teenage gorilla from a bad home and an egomaniac mouse with a Sinatra complex. Director Garth Jennings puts plenty of heart into the animal antics. TREVOR JOHNSTON (US 2016, HD)

How the West Was Won

★★★★ 2.00-4.25pm
BBC2 (not in Wales) PG

WESTERN This epic telling of the settling of the American west, as seen through the eyes of a single family, has an all-star cast to match its impressive visual scale. James Stewart and Gregory Peck pair with feisty pioneers Carroll Baker and Debbie Reynolds, while genre icons John Wayne and Henry Fonda also make an impact. TONY SLOMAN (US 1962, violence, HD)

Twister ★★★

3.05-5.20pm C5 PG

ACTION Speed director Jan De Bont takes destruction to new levels in this daft but fun adventure. Bill Paxton stars as a weatherman who is drawn back to his former profession as a storm chaser to help his estranged wife Helen Hunt place a tornado device in the eye of a twister. Ignore the laboured plot, just enjoy the eye-popping action. JOHN FERGUSON (US 1996, edited for content, HD)

Walk the Line ★★★★

6.20-9.00pm
Great Movies 12

BIOPIC Joaquin Phoenix gives a fabulous performance in this portrait of music legend Johnny Cash. The film begins with Cash's live recording at Folsom Prison in 1968, before flashing back to key points in his life. Reese Witherspoon won an Oscar for her turn as June Carter, the woman Cash pursued for years and provided his eventual salvation. BRIAN PENDREIGH (US/Ger 2005, edited for content)

Mile 22 ★★

9.00-10.50pm C4 18

ACTION Mark Wahlberg is up to his neck in trouble here, playing a CIA operative in charge of escorting a valuable foreign asset (played by The Raid's Iko Uwais) on a life-or-death trek to an airbase. With its staccato editing and odd camera angles, the film is all flash and no narrative bang. Showing in a Wahlberg double bill with 2003's The Italian Job. JAMES LUXFORD (US 2018, violence, swearing, HD)

King Arthur ★★★

9.00-11.30pm 5 Action 12

ADVENTURE Antoine Fuqua's film is as much a Dark Ages twist on The Magnificent Seven as a re-imagining of the Arthurian legend. There's no wizardry, no Camelot and no love triangle; instead we get Arthur (Clive Owen) recast as a Roman soldier posted to Hadrian's Wall and Guinevere (Keira Knightley) as a woad-wearing warrior. GARETH MOSES (US/Ire/UK 2004, violence, swearing, a sex scene, HD)

Moonstruck ★★★★

10.40pm-12.15am BBC2
(not in Wales) PG

ROMCOM This movie proved once and for all that Cher could act. She gives an Oscar-winning performance as a widow who looks set to be married to Danny Aiello, but falls for his moody younger brother Nicolas Cage. There's enough quirky touches to prevent the romance from turning to treacle. Cher is back tomorrow night in The Witches of Eastwick – see p65. JF (US 1987, swearing, HD)

The Lost Boys ★★★

11.50pm-1.25am BBC1
(starts 1.05am in Scotland) 15

HORROR COMEDY This glossy take on vampire mythology has a clever script that's packed with twists. Dianne Wiest is the divorcee who moves with her two sons (Jason Patric and Corey Haim) to a Californian town, whose local gang is a pack of punk vampires. Kiefer Sutherland's charismatic performance as their leader is an early career highlight. ALAN JONES (US 1987, violence, swearing, nudity, HD)

GRANT ACCESS

AWARDS

The Bafta Film Awards

*7.00pm BBC1
Catch up via iPlayer

There's one title that will be on everyone's lips this evening: anti-war film All Quiet on the Western Front has 14 nominations, a remarkable feat for a non-English language film matched only by Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon two decades ago.

Not far behind are the dark Irish drama about friendship The Banshees of Inisherin and the twisty action comedy Everything Everywhere All at Once, each with ten nods. Interesting to note that Spielberg's lavish love letter to film-making The Fabelmans – much nominated for the Oscars – is largely overlooked, but gratifying to see smaller films such as The Quiet Girl being acknowledged.

The Baftas is traditionally an evening of glamour and glitz but this year it's also one of firsts: Sandy Powell is the first costume designer to be awarded a Fellowship, while the main four categories of the evening will be broadcast live (rather than "as live"). With no chance to cut disappointed expressions or unfortunate swearing, will this test the nominees' acting skills?

After several years where the hosts haven't quite hit the mark, all eyes will be on the urbane Richard E Grant as, hopefully, he steers a course between amusing and relevant without swerving off into the awkward or boring.

World's Most Secret Hotels

*6.45pm C4
Catch up via All 4

Where BBC2's Amazing Hotels: Life beyond the Lobby featured luxurious hotels run by an army of staff, this series has unearthed some unique, quirky hotels that are often ridiculously well hidden from view.

In the Netherlands you can spend a cosy night high up in a docklands crane, while in Sweden you can go back to basics in Hobbit-sized huts in the forest. An isolated setting is often the key to being classified as a secret hotel, but it doesn't always mean its guests must rough it. The modern, five-star Jabal Akhdar resort perched on Oman's version of the Grand Canyon may look familiar because Monica Galetti and Giles Coren "worked" here, too. JR

CRAFT

The Great Pottery Throw Down

7.45pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Just like Bake Off's Tent of Dreams in the latter stages, the Stoke studio is now looking more gappy, with just six potters remaining in the competition. And they're being encouraged to tap into their wild side by sculpting endangered animals, which are then fired in oil drums, before they're faced with a another potential banana skin: to throw a tall, thin-necked vase.

Otherwise, expect cheering, Sunday-night business as usual. Judges Keith and Rich will dovetail with their encouragement and evaluation; a mod-heavy soundtrack will help to raise the temperature; and Siobhán McSweeney will no doubt do her best to conjure more tumbleweeds with her majestically tortured puns. MARK BRAXTON

8.00pm (not Wales) BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

Some might reach for a paint-drying analogy when 'ologists of one discipline or another appear on our screens diligently excavating ancient sites. "Look, can you see it?" they'll whoop with the joy of a child at Christmas. Er, actually, no we can't...

Happily, that's not so in this excellent two-parter following the exhumation of dinosaur fossils in the Wyoming desert, where there are prehistoric body parts aplenty – all from the Jurassic period, dating back to 150 million years ago. "It's addictive and it's exciting," swoons presenter Liz Bonnin as she gets hands on with a team of palaeontologists. Her joy is confirmed when she's shown the tail of a giant, long-necked sauropod.

DRAMA

Vera

*8.00pm ITV1
Catch up via ITVX

We haven't had an adaptation of an Ann Cleeves Vera novel for a while, so the sight of one of her recent books, The Darkest Evening, being brought to the screen is a welcome one. As in the original tale, we get to spend time with some of DCI Stanhope's wealthy, snooty relatives, all of whom look down upon her for being a police officer. But with a baby having been found in an abandoned car close to the family estate, Vera's not-so-nearest and dearest have little choice but to put up with her presence.

Needless to say, she gets to the bottom of the matter in the two-hour run-time, but not before pointed remarks are made about her ne'er-do-well late dad, Hector.

The Gold

9.00pm BBC1 All eps on iPlayer

Remaining inconspicuous while pulling off one of the biggest heists in history isn't easy. A far-stretching network is spreading its tentacles across the country – shifting, smelting and stashing – their potential financial futures shining as brightly as the bullion reflecting in their eyes. John has set up a "cash for gold" business to mask the Brink's-Mat haul he is in possession of, but is horrified to find a shiny new red convertible on the drive that wife Marnie has excitedly bought. Discreet it is not.

The police are on the criminals' trail, but time is slipping away. It's a race – and it's one the thieves are so far winning in this fable of class, privilege, sexism and the corruptive power of money. FRANCES TAYLOR

DOCUMENTARY

Guy Martin's Great British Power Trip

9.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Hidden away at a top-secret location – and disguised as a mid-range country hotel – is the room that controls the flow of electricity to all of Britain. They've let Guy Martin in for a rare look around as he continues his three-part look behind the scenes of the power industry, and the normally cheery Lincolnshire mechanic is clearly bricking it when they allow him to push a few crucial buttons.

He's more at home later, when he visits an armed forces solar plant and flies out to an offshore windfarm. His beaming delight at getting close to one of the gigantic blades for a wind turbine radiates through the screen: "Precision aerodynamics on an industrial scale, is that." CERI THOMAS

REALITY

Go Hard or Go Home

9.00pm BBC3 Catch up via iPlayer

NEW SERIES

This new challenge reality series may be set on a beautiful island, but the experience is far from idyllic. Eight young Brits ("trainees") in need of a change are pushed to their physical and mental limits by their "warrior" mentors for 28 days, in the hope of leading to radical transformations. From conquering their fear of heights and enduring tough "beasting" sessions, initially the hardest part is partnering with their favourite warrior before another trainee nabs them.

It gives hellish PE lesson vibes, but it's interesting to see the warriors' techniques for helping them, ranging from motivational quotes to physically dragging them. KAY RIBEIRO

Ukraine from Above: Secrets from the Front Line

10.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

A schoolboy, a rock star and a lighting engineer seem unlikely heroes in the defence of Ukraine but, as a Hollywood actor once put it, they have a special set of skills that are inflicting huge damage to the Russian military machine. They, and scores like them, are part of a volunteer army of drone operators who are targeting enemy positions.

"This is a pilot from God," says one resistance fighter in a documentary that marks, along with others this week, the one-year anniversary of the invasion.

The programme shows both the destruction caused by Russian missile strikes and the Ukrainian response.

In a workshop, domestic drones are adapted to carry and drop small missiles. The aim is to produce 500 a month.

"It is simple mathematics," the lighting engineer says with understatement. "With a drone worth $2,500 and a release mechanism worth $50, we can destroy equipment worth several million." TP

FILM REVIEWS

FILM OF THE DAY

Farmageddon ★★★★

2.15-3.35pm BBC1 U

ADVENTURE Life at Mossy Bottom Farm is enlivened by the arrival of a benign alien in Aardman's out-of-this-world sequel featuring Shaun the Sheep. The intergalactic theme is the cue for a fusillade of hilarious sci-fi references, from Men in Black to Alien, with a garage called "HG Wheels" among the inventive visual gags. Particular praise should go to the talented voice cast, who tell the story in an Esperanto of squeaks and grunts, while Tom Howe's score towers above the slapstick fun as a thing of reverential beauty. ANDREW COLLINS (UK/US/Fr 2019, HD)

I Was Monty's Double

★★★★ 12.30-2.05pm BBC2 (not in Wales) U

WAR Based on a true story, this slick Second World War film stars John Mills and Cecil Parker as British officers plotting to deceive the Germans. ME Clifton James plays himself, the "double" of the title, whose likeness to military leader General Montgomery makes him invaluable to the mission. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1958, BW, HD)

The Adventures of Robin Hood ★★★★★

2.05-3.45pm BBC2 (not in Wales) U

ADVENTURE This classic swashbuckler still delights audiences of all ages. Errol Flynn stars as Sherwood's noblest outlaw, who woos Olivia de Havilland and crosses swords with Basil Rathbone and Claude Rains. Director William Keighley was replaced with Michael Curtiz a few weeks into production, and the film went on to become a hit. ADRIAN TURNER (US 1938, HD)

All Creatures Great and Small ★★★

4.50-6.55pm 5 Select PG

DRAMA The animals are incidental in this film prequel to TV's popular memoirs of vet James Herriot. Though episodic in nature, it has warm-hearted performances from Simon Ward as the young Herriot, Lisa Harrow as his future wife Helen and Anthony Hopkins as local vet Siegfried Farnon. TOM HUTCHINSON (UK 1974, HD)

Hidden Figures ★★★★

6.15-9.00pm Film4 PG

DRAMA Three unsung heroes of the 1960s Space Race are given their moment in the sun in this true story. Taraji P Henson, Janelle Monáe and Oscar-nominated Octavia Spencer star as the African-American women working at Nasa during a time of racial segregation. The can-do spirit of these ladies makes for uplifting and enlightening entertainment. STELLA PAPAMICHAEL (US 2016, edited for content, col/BW, HD)

Kong: Skull Island ★★★★

9.00-11.25pm 5 Star 12

FANTASY Hollywood's most iconic primate returns in this fun adventure. In 1973, a ragtag team (including colonel Samuel L Jackson and pushy scientist John Goodman) journeys to the island that is the lair of Kong and sundry other beasties. Naturally, events don't follow the visitors' plans, and they soon find themselves in peril. TERRY STAUNTON (US 2017, violence, swearing, HD)

The Mule ★★★★

10.00-11.50pm BBC2 (starts 11.00pm in N Ireland, Wales) 15

CRIME DRAMA This is Clint Eastwood's best film since 2008's Gran Torino – the last time he directed himself in a picture. He stars as Earl, a man in his late 80s, who accepts a job that requires him to drive across borders. But he soon discovers that he's transporting cocaine for a drugs cartel. STEPHEN CARTY (US 2018, swearing, discriminatory language, nudity, HD)

Master and Commander: the Far Side of the World ★★★★

11.00pm-1.25am C4 12

ADVENTURE A 19th-century British warship is the setting for this adaptation of Patrick O'Brian's popular book series. Russell Crowe gives a full-blooded performance as Captain Jack Aubrey, who leads the HMS Surprise in pursuit of a "phantom" French vessel. Director Peter Weir helms some stunning action sequences and shows a keen eye for period detail. ADAM SMITH (US 2003, violence, swearing, HD)

The Witches of Eastwick

★★★★ 11.30pm-1.20am BBC1 (starts 12 midnight in Wales, 12.30am in Scotland) 18

COMEDY DRAMA This raunchy metaphor for the battle between the sexes sees three romance-starved suburban women (Cher, Michelle Pfeiffer and Susan Sarandon) conjure up Jack Nicholson's horny devil. It may be swamped with special effects, but the film soars with inspired lunacy. ALAN JONES (US 1987, swearing, sex scenes, HD)

LAST EPISODE

It's no wonder that Helen (Lisa McGrillis), Catherine (Lara Pulver) and Maryam (Parminder Nagra) are struggling to keep things together as Jacqui Honess-Martin's sharply written medical drama reaches its climax. One has an alcoholic husband who's attempted suicide, another has realised that as a single parent her dreams of working as a consultant are probably unattainable and the third is facing a disciplinary committee over a child who died during her first shift back from maternity leave. All three must make some difficult decisions so there are some painful scenes for us to endure – alongside a few heart-warming and even amusing ones.

The series has cleverly highlighted misogyny within the NHS as well as the intense pressure but there's also a clear underlying message that the health service, while a wonderful institution with dedicated staff, is at breaking point.

There's no news about a second series but Maternal has been well received by viewers, so surely the prognosis is good. JANE RACKHAM

You'll have tears in your eyes as you watch the pupils at Ysgol y Deri happily running into their school after the summer holidays, all excited to be back, eager to see their teachers and keen to have new learning experiences.

It's a joyous sight but this extraordinary school in Penarth caters for differently abled children so every day the staff must calmly deal with a range of behavioural issues from uncontrolled temper to fear of dogs.

As headteacher Chris Britten explains, "You need to stop watching this behaviour and listen to it because what these children are doing is communicating in the only way they know how at that moment." JR

Better

9.00pm BBC1 All episodes available now on iPlayer

The choice Lou Slack faces seems clear: cut ties with drug dealer Col McHugh and she'll be free, but broke. Before that decision is made, she decides to seek advice from a former bent copper who isn't exactly a poster boy for life spent on the take. Vernon Marley (Anton Lesser), you see, spent time inside and is now seeing out his days in a dingy home with walls the colour of nicotine.

Lesser is, naturally, terrific, though the material on offer in episode two isn't exactly subtle. For instance, Lou appears worried about getting metaphorical blood on her hands. And, to hammer the point home, she then ends up with actual blood on her hands. You see what they did there? DAVID BROWN

More often than not, law-and-order docs tend to focus on punishment, with sentences seen either being handed down or served. But here it's another aspect to prison life being scrutinised: rehabilitation. In particular, whether two inmates who committed very different crimes are now showing enough remorse to warrant release. One is a convicted killer, the other a fraudster and both now need to demonstrate contrition in front of the board. Playing a more passive role are we viewers, but we're essentially doing the same job as the officials – that of weighing up pleas, statements and body language, as well as the odd curveball that could well alter your own thinking on the cases being presented. DB

SAS: Who Dares Wins – Jungle Hell

*9.00pm C4
Catch up via All 4

Nine recruits have survived the gruelling selection process so far but, after numerous energy-sapping exercises in the intense heat of the Vietnamese jungle, those who are fit enough to continue are being sent on a mission to test their survival skills. Split into two teams they must navigate their way through the jungle to find a hidden cache without being captured by the "enemy". Frankly, their prize – a few bars of chocolate – hardly seems worth the pain they have to endure.

First, though, there's an incredibly emotional scene as they read out the farewell letters they've written to their loved ones. JR

LAST EPISODE

Putting faith above family was a risky decision for Fiona, who's deleted Rachel's application to university. If her aim was to bind her daughter more tightly to religion, this is possibly not the best way to go...

There's some more light-hearted absurdity in this final episode: Seb Cardinal (one half of C4 sketch duo Cardinal Burns) makes a memorable cameo as Elder Dunstan at a cross-church party, sparking daft rivalries over lemon drizzle cake and who's been able to enlist the most new recruits. Given the success of this series, a second feels inevitable. Hopefully, there's enough parochial parody still to be squeezed out. FRANCES TAYLOR

Inside Russia: Traitors and Heroes – Storyville

10.00pm BBC4

Catch up via iPlayer

In March 2022 the Russian government passed new laws preventing the dissemination of "unreliable information about" or "discrediting of" the military and its operations, so media outlets can't cover the invasion of Ukraine, while thousands have been detained or fined for speaking out against it.

There's a lot of Ukraine-related programming marking the year-long conflict but here two Russians have bravely recorded the realities of life in their country, where staying silent is the safest option. Russia at War: Putin's Home Front (8pm Sky Docs) also explores the lives of ordinary Russians since the invasion. JR

Another day, another punishing competition to test strength, character, endurance, and teamwork. Hosted by Mark Wright, this one features famous faces – mostly reality stars, but some sporty folk too – who have agreed to endure a range of physically demanding and, well, brutal challenges. It has more than a whiff of The Hunger Games about it. Take, for example, one task that sees The Only Way Is Essex's James Locke facing off with Made in Chelsea's Tristan Phipps to see who can push the other off a platform into the sea, resulting in a couple of fractured eye sockets. Yep, that's entertainment... KAY RIBEIRO

DRAMA

The Last of Us

9.00pm Sky Atlantic

Catch up via Sky Go/Now

This video game adaptation has defied all expectations to become one of the most talked-about TV shows. Its third episode, which followed a love story playing out in the midst of the apocalypse, receiving particular plaudits.

Since then, things have taken a bleaker turn for travellers Joel (Pedro Pascal) and Ellie (Bella Ramsay). The Cordyceps fungal apocalypse has brought out the worst in humanity; we've seen fascist "Quarantine Zones", brutal raiders, survivalists living in bunkers and a people's republic obsessed with internal purges – but that cynicism might be about to dissipate.

After months on the road Joel tracks down his brother Tommy (Gabriel Luna), who's helped build a utopian off-the-grid settlement. But it's not quite the reunion he had in mind... HUW FULLERTON

FILM REVIEWS

FILM OF THE DAY

A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood

★★★★ 6.45-9.00pm Film4 PG

DRAMA Tom Hanks channels the spirit of Fred Rogers, America's best-loved children's TV host, in director Marielle Heller's delightfully deep drama. Based on a 1990s Esquire article, the film follows Lloyd Vogel (Matthew Rhys), a troubled journalist whose editor, concerned about his wellbeing, sends him to interview Rogers. Initially furious, Vogel is soon opening up to Rogers about his toxic relationship with his father (Chris Cooper). Hanks received Bafta and Oscar nominations for his endearing performance. KAREN KRIZANOVICH (US/Chi 2019, violence, swearing, HD)

Our Relations ★★★

10.55am-12.25pm
Talking Pictures TV U

COMEDY Laurel and Hardy turn in four performances for the price of two in this farcical tale. Our heroes find themselves up to their necks in misunderstandings and slapstick when they meet their long-lost identical twin brothers, a pair of sailors who are on shore leave. DICK FIDDY (US 1936, BW)

The Black Shield of Falworth ★★

3.00-5.05pm Film4 U

ADVENTURE Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis cavort across Ye Merrie Olde Englande (or rather the Universal backlot) to save King Henry IV from scheming factions within his court. This swashbuckler features a suave turn from Herbert Marshall as Leigh's father, a handful of decent swordfights and some pretty exquisite Brooklyn accents. ADRIAN TURNER (US 1954, HD)

The Treasure of the Sierra Madre ★★★★★

4.25-7.05pm TCM PG

WESTERN Humphrey Bogart gives a great performance here as a cynical drifter who, along with Tim Holt's young idealist, latches onto gnarled old prospector Walter Huston in a search for gold in Mexico. A modern biblical fable about greed and human despair, the movie benefits from a truly thunderous Max Steiner score. John Huston won Oscars for his direction and screenplay. AT (US 1947, BW, HD)

The Last Witch Hunter

★★★ 9.00-11.10pm
Great Movies 15

ACTION Cut from the same fantasy cloth as Highlander, this romp finds Vin Diesel cursed with immortality and trying to stop the rebirth in modern Manhattan of a witch queen. Diesel centres the magical mischief with his winning muscular charm, while Michael Caine adds a welcome touch of class as a priestly adviser. ALAN JONES (US 2015, some violence, swearing)

A Private Function

★★★★ 9.00-11.00pm
Talking Pictures TV 15

COMEDY Scripted by Alan Bennett, this is a wonderful throwback to the spirit of Ealing. Set in a postwar Yorkshire town, it sees three pillars of the community defy food rationing by secretly fattening a pig for a civic dinner. Michael Palin plays the meek man who is encouraged to steal the animal by his wife, Maggie Smith. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1984, some swearing)

Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome ★★★

10.15pm-12.20am ITV4 15

ACTION The third in the Mad Max series is the weakest, but it remains an entertaining futuristic spectacular. Mel Gibson's Max finds himself a reluctant surrogate father to a lost tribe of youngsters, as well as getting mired in gladiatorial battles in a city ruled over by Tina Turner. Co-directors George Miller and George Ogilvie stage some exhilarating (and utterly mad) set pieces. JOHN FERGUSON (Aus 1985, violence, swearing, HD)

The Howling ★★★★

10.45pm-12.35am Legend 18

HORROR Director Joe Dante and co-writer John Sayles have huge fun turning werewolf clichés on their head in this rare beast of a horror that gore fans and film buffs will both enjoy. The witty plot sees sceptical TV journalist Dee Wallace uncover a werewolf colony that's trying – quite unsuccessfully – to tame its animal instincts. The lupine make-up by Rob Bottin is still amazing. JF (US 1981, violence, swearing, nudity)

Suburbicon ★★★★

11.15pm-12.50am BBC2
(starts 11.55pm in N Ireland) 15

CRIME This venomous satire, directed by George Clooney from an old Coen brothers script, finds 1950s family man Matt Damon plotting to kill his wife (Julianne Moore), while the middle-class idyll of their small town is shattered by the arrival of a respectable black family. The escalating race riot gives the film bite, reflecting white America's obsession with maintaining its own privilege. DAMON WISE (US 2017, violence, swearing, a sex scene, HD)

NEW SERIES

Goodness, bank clerk Rowan Taylor (Amanda Abbington) is a cheery soul. She's a single parent living in a council flat and doesn't have much money, but she's proud of her son Finn (Jesse Cescatti-McFarlane), enjoys her work and when she smiles at the customers or her colleagues, it's genuine. However, her life is about to take a very dark turn in this four-part thriller.

Finn inadvertently gets involved in a drug deal, but being caught by the police is not the main worry for him. It's the gang's leader, who is threatening him and his mum.

We know roughly where this is going from the brief pre-titles sequence showing an alarmed Rowan being interviewed by a very determined police officer (Jonathan Nyati), but it's still horribly tense, thanks to Rowan's incredible bad luck and a solid cast that includes Sunetra Sarker, Warren Brown and Francis Magee. Continues tomorrow. JANE RACKHAM

Great British Menu

8.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

I have often thought it must be difficult to judge a dish if you really hate a particular ingredient, but it's impossible if you have an allergy to it. However, Lisa Goodwin-Allen, the veteran judge for this week's north-west region heat, has the answer. Because she's allergic to shellfish, she gets Spencer Metzger, the head chef of the Ritz, to taste the chefs' fish course.

No such problems for her with the vegan starter, so she tries dishes inspired by the Wombles, Dennis the Menace, Aardman Animations' penguin villain Feathers McGraw and the Astounding Broccoli Boy – I wonder what vegetable that could involve? Tomorrow there are nods to Alice in Wonderland and Watchmen. JR

Ukraine's War Diaries

9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

If there was any doubt just how devastatingly painful Putin's invasion of Ukraine has been to its citizens, consider the graphic summary of TV presenter-turned-humanitarian aid driver Denys: "It's like your dad is dismembering your mum right in front of you." Denys is one of five Ukrainians invited to keep a video diary of their life amid Russian shelling over the past 12 months.

Others include Maksym, a biology student who abandoned his studies to enlist in the army and Iryna, who volunteered as a frontline medic. A smart idea powerfully realised, this captures not just the hardship and misery endured by the Ukrainian people, but also the strength and stoicism that you sense will help them prevail. TERRY PAYNE

SAS: Who Dares Wins

9.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

LAST EPISODE

"We're not looking for the fastest or the fittest… It's the mind that will win the fight," chief instructor Billy explains to us about the gruelling SAS selection process.

To this end the remaining seven recruits are being tested on their resistance to interrogation. It's mainly psychological torture rather than physical (although they are sleep-deprived and kept in painful stress positions), but it's deeply unpleasant.

Several fail, not because they blab about their mission, but because they don't perform well enough for the mysterious "Umpire".

Congratulations if you've lasted through the series or – as Foxy puts it, "Fing good effort!" JR

U-Boat Wargamers

*9.00pm Sky History
Catch up via Sky Go/Now

NEW SERIES

The Nazi tactic of using U-boats to sink Atlantic food convoys almost brought Britain – which imported 70 per cent of its food – to starvation. The first part of this oddly structured affair takes us to 1940, as defeat looms for Britain, and blends archive footage, Derek Jacobi's stentorian narration, assorted talking heads and budget-conscious dramatic scenes. It pitches Karl Dönitz, commander of the U-boat programme, against naval wargame strategist Gilbert Roberts and former suffragette Vera Laughton Mathews who, in an era when women were not allowed aboard Royal Navy ships, gathered a team of Wrens who would prove invaluable… JOHN AIZLEWOOD

10.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Celebrities renovating their homes on TV is suddenly de rigueur, whether it's Amanda Holden and Alan Carr on BBC1 or Pamela Anderson's More4 series. But Channel 4 might have bitten off more than they can chew with Katie Price…

No preview was available for this second series following Price as she refurbishes her West Sussex home, although tabloid reports late last year said that filming was halted because her abode was – wait for it – "too dirty" to film in. It sounds like Price needs Stacey Solomon and the BBC1 Sort Your Life Out team to pay a visit. That's a crossover show that any telly execs reading should endeavour to materialise… FRANCES TAYLOR

The Dangerous Rise of Andrew Tate

10.00pm BBC3 Catch up via iPlayer

I'm guessing that some RT readers will only have been alerted to the activities of self-confessed misogynist Andrew Tate following his recent arrest in Romania. Yet Tate has been the online poster boy for toxic masculinity for years, to the extent that schools, for instance, are now having to deal with the influence he's had on pupils who – despite the allegations made against him, which include human trafficking and rape – consider him a role model.

In this exploration of how someone so dogged by controversy has managed to achieve such fame, we hear from some of the women who allege they were abused by him. DAVID BROWN

Help! My Home Is Disgusting

11.05pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Cockroaches, toilets overflowing with raw sewage, mushrooms growing in the shower, collapsed ceilings and damp… so much damp. Not all social housing is blighted by such problems, but some certainly is, as campaigner Kwajo Tweneboa discovers. (He's endured appalling housing himself.)

Administered by councils or housing associations, social housing was meant to be a safety net for those unable to afford to rent or buy. Admirably unafraid to name and shame, Tweneboa visits a succession of properties, uninhabitable despite sometimes years of complaints.

Even when Tweneboa visits homes in the private sector, he is shocked to find things do not get better. JA

LIKE-MINDED Chris Packham talks to Anton about viewing the world through the lens of autism

DOCUMENTARY

Inside Our Autistic Minds

9.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

Like many autistic people, 26-year-old Anton finds it difficult to cope with the unexpected. Leaving home for work just a minute and a half later than usual can throw him off course and spark tears. Not that his friends know that. Meanwhile, college student Ethan, 19, is isolated and struggles with sensory overload. Even the sound of footsteps can be too much.

In the conclusion of Chris Packham's illuminating two-part documentary, Ethan and Anton make powerful and beautiful films to give friends and closest family a fresh insight into how it feels to process the world as they do.

Both Packham – who struggled with his Asperger's syndrome in his youth – and the contributors gain much from the experience packed into this uplifting programme, which is also a rallying call for acceptance. SHERNA NOAH

FILM OF THE DAY

The Thin Red Line ★★★★★

9.00pm-12.25am Great Movies Action 15

WAR Terrence Malick's third feature came a full 20 years after 1978's Days of Heaven, but proved worth the wait. His account of the 1942/43 battle for Guadalcanal island in the South Pacific is a long, discursive and deeply philosophical evocation of war. The cast includes Sean Penn (above) as a cynical sergeant and Nick Nolte as an uncompromising officer, with Jim Caviezel as an idealist who seems completely at one with the tropical surroundings. However, it's Malick's extraordinary direction that is the real star of the show. ADRIAN TURNER (US 1998, violence, swearing)

Samson and Delilah ★★★

11.00am-1.40pm Film4 U

EPIC Victor Mature stars as the hirsute hero of this biblical drama from Cecil B DeMille. Hedy Lamarr brings a gorgeous woodenness to the role of Delilah, the Philistine whose envy over Samson's fondness for her sister Semadar (Angela Lansbury) leads to treachery. The fight scene between Samson and a lion is so lousy it's brilliant. DAVID PARKINSON (US 1949 HD)

A Scandal in Paris ★★★

11.45am-1.50pm Talking Pictures TV

DRAMA Directing his third film, Douglas Sirk chronicles the escapades of real-life rogue-about-town François Vidocq during the Napoleonic era. Armed with a sardonic wit, George Sanders gives an appealing performance as the wily jailbird who inveigles his way into the upper echelons of society in order to steal valuable gems. JEREMY ASPINALL (US 1946, BW)

Angel and the Badman ★★★

1.45-4.00pm 5 Action U

WESTERN As Republic's one major star, John Wayne used his clout to make his producing debut with this absorbingly offbeat western. Wayne stars as an injured gunman, nursed back to health by Quakers, who falls for the daughter of the house, Gail Russell. Wayne's writer friend James Edward Grant delivers some ingenious twists, as well as directs the movie. ALLEN EYLES (US 1947, BW)

Buster ★★★

4.50-6.55pm Great Movies 15

BIOPIC Musician Phil Collins stars here as Buster Edwards, one of the gang involved in the Great Train Robbery of 1963. Julie Walters plays his wife and steals the acting honours as a woman missing the comforts of home when the pair flee London for Acapulco. It's an entertaining but fairy-tale view of law-breaking. TOM HUTCHINSON (UK 1988, edited for content)

Star Trek into Darkness ★★★★

6.25-9.00pm Film4 12

SCI-FI Director JJ Abrams pulls out all the stops for this first sequel in the rebooted Star Trek series, in which the Enterprise crew pursues a rogue Starfleet officer (Benedict Cumberbatch). The thrill-a-minute action is given emotional grounding by the growing friendship between Kirk (Chris Pine) and Spock (Zachary Quinto). ALAN JONES (US 2013, edited for content, HD)

The Devil's Double ★★

9.00-11.10pm Great Movies 18

DRAMA New to Great Movies this week is this shocking true-story tale based on the exploits of Latif Yahia, the Iraqi soldier forced to be the body double for Saddam Hussein's sadistic son Uday. Dominic Cooper carries the film with his demanding twin role, but director Lee Tamahori fails to generate much suspense. TREVOR JOHNSTON (Bel 2011, violence, swearing, drug abuse, sex scenes, nudity)

Gloria ★★★★

9.05-11.30pm Talking Pictures TV 15

THRILLER Gena Rowlands was Oscar-nominated for her formidable performance in this terrific movie. She plays a woman living in the Bronx who takes charge of a boy (John Adames) whose parents have been killed by the Mafia. Director John Cassavetes matches his freewheeling camerawork to Rowlands's incendiary portrayal. TH (US 1980, violence, swearing)

12 Years a Slave ★★★★★

11.20pm-2.00am Film4 15

DRAMA Director Steve McQueen's powerful drama is based on the memoirs of Solomon Northup, a freeborn man who was kidnapped and sold into slavery. Chiwetel Ejiofor gives a wonderfully restrained performance in the lead, and the classy support cast features Michael Fassbender and an Oscar-winning Lupita Nyong'o. LESLIE FELPERIN (US 2013, violence, racist language, sex scenes, nudity, HD)

Journey's End ★★★

12.15-1.55am BBC2 12

See Thursday for review, p105. (UK/Neth/Bel 2017, violence, swearing, HD)

Medical staff fight to help casualties from road accidents

Surgeons: at the Edge of Life

FINAL EPISODE

Road accidents lead to 150,000 casualties a year in the UK, so it's little wonder that both of the emergency operations in this last episode are a result of traffic collisions. As always, it's hard not to marvel at the up-close access that the film-makers have secured. The cameras show exactly what the surgeons are seeing in this pair of operations.

First on the table is 55-year-old Carolyn. She's already been assessed at another hospital and then dispatched to Addenbrooke's in Cambridge for their specialist teams to work on. Her accident has caused a bleed on her brain, but her shattered leg needs to be sorted out first to stave off long-term nerve and tissue damage. However the brain bleed means that a general anaesthetic is out of the question, so they're going to have to reset the bones in her leg under minimal sedation.

Then there's Joan – a collision with a van has left the 75-year-old with full-body trauma, but what concerns the doctors most, though, is the amount of skin missing from her foot. Is there even enough left to save it? CERI THOMAS

Kirstie and Phil's Love It or List It

8.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Kirstie Allsopp revisits clients Gary and Bill from Edinburgh, whom she and Phil Spencer first met in 2020. Gary hated the higgledy-piggledy layout of their Victorian cemetery lodge and was fed up with the noise from the road and the small kitchen and garden. Bill, on the other hand, adored the quirkiness of their home and all its nooks and crannies that stored his vast collection of books, CDs and pop memorabilia.

While Phil showed them some amazing alternatives, Kirstie's "love it" efforts included reconfiguring the layout of the house and jazzing up the garden, and the couple also installed a swanky new £16,000 kitchen. Now she's back to find out what happened next. KAY RIBEIRO

ART

Landscape Artist of the Year

*8.00pm Sky Arts
Catch up via Sky Go/Now

The River Thames has long attracted visionary artists, from Constable and Turner to Whistler, Monet and Canaletto. Yet none of that esteemed company had to wrestle with the view today's semi-final contestants are faced with – the Thames Barrier. It's a mighty feat of engineering that stretches 520m across the river at Woolwich, with its ten steel gates reaching the height of a five-storey building when opened.

I can't wait to see what bonkers creatures the Italian punk surrealist from the third heat will perch atop the Barrier. And will there be an artist bold enough, with the final so close, to turn their easel and ignore it completely? DAVID CRAWFORD

Sort Your Life Out with Stacey Solomon

9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

Stacey Solomon's team face a particularly emotional challenge this week. Raaj and Roydel moved in to care for their nieces and nephew after the children's mum, Raaj's sister, died of Covid, but combining two households has left their Welwyn Garden City three-bedroom terraced house bursting at the seams.

Raaj's reluctance to part with apparently superfluous objects has its roots in her grief – it's heartbreaking to see the empty spice jars she's kept because they were touched by her sister's hands. And Roydel's "stuff" testifies to hobbies set aside to care for an expanded brood. No one could fail to root for them as they set about creating a new life. ORLA THOMAS

TALENT SHOW

The Piano

9.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Some celebrity judges take the glamorous TV jobs, bedecked in Strictly finery or served luscious banquets on MasterChef. But The Piano's experts (popstar Mika and classical pianist Lang Lang) have drawn the short straw, trading in their worldwide tours to sit in a small cupboard next to a public toilet, secretly ranking amateur pianists at Leeds railway station.

As ever, Claudia Winkleman is on hand to grease wheels and crack jokes – but as with last week, don't expect major drama. Without even knowing they're in competition, one unwitting player hits all the right notes and strikes a chord with the judges. It's so tension-free, you might need to call in a tuner to check the piano wires. HUW FULLERTON

Catch up via My5

Having explored every legal way of raising the money that she and her son owe gang boss Kristof (Gabor Nagypal), bank clerk Rowan (Amanda Abbington) decides that the only answer is to rob the bank where she works. It's a laughable idea because she's completely out of her depth but, after what happened in episode one, she's desperate.

Fortunately, she knows people who are rather more au fait with such criminal activities and who might help her. Mind you, her gang of robbers are a motley crew. We also learn a bit more about her colleague Varisha (Sunetra Sarker). It turns out that she's equally desperate, albeit for different reasons. JANE RACKHAM

DOCUMENTARY

Amanda Owen's Farming Lives

9.00pm More4 Catch up via All 4

Yorkshire Shepherdess Amanda Owen heads to Nottinghamshire to visit a farm overlooking the Vale of Belvoir. Her host is David Rose, who runs a successful 500-acre arable business with a twist – it's also an "eco-farm".

Owen rightly questions what "eco", a common catch-all, means in this context, and so Rose takes her through the basics of agroforesty (you plant fruit trees in spaced rows across arable land, benefitting both the land and the environment). But he's even prouder of his outbuildings: this is a farm with not just a standard café or shop but a gym and a beauty salon, and has become a focal point for the area. BENJI WILSON

DRAMA

Edge of Darkness

10.00pm, 10.50pm BBC4

Catch up via iPlayer

There's a reason people still talk about this six-part crime/political/nuclear thriller nearly 40 years after it was first shown: because it's unimprovable. The story of a private grief that magnifies into a global conspiracy excels in every department: story, casting, acting, direction, photography, music…

As any fan will tell you, the series is one fantastic moment after another: tonight, the Commons inquiry, and a shattering showdown. But the focus throughout is Bob Peck as a widowed Yorkshire detective whose stumble in the dark is almost Shakespearean.

Critics say it's among the best TV dramas of all time… I think they're underselling it. MARK BRAXTON

DOCUMENTARY

The Billionaires Who Made Our World: Jeff Bezos 10.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Having last week profiled a mogul with a broadly positive public image, Storm Theunissen's series shifts focus from fundamentally good egg Bill Gates to a man whose reputation is more complex (next week's final instalment travels further down this road with Meta's Mark Zuckerberg).

With his foundation and aggressive expansion of Amazon, Jeff Bezos has unarguably made our lives easier and cheaper – but at what cost? This documentary consults friends and critics to examine Amazon's business practices, employment record and environmental impact. It also asks whether Bezos's boys-with-toys space race with Elon Musk and Richard Branson is a ludicrous, ego-driven waste of his fortune, or a genuinely altruistic mission to consider the future of humankind away from Earth. GABRIEL TATE

8.00 The Repair Shop

Widow Eve Robinson is hoping goldsmith Richard Talman can rescue her husband Keith's wedding ring – a cherished memory of 30 happy years of marriage – which she designed herself but was badly damaged when paramedics had to cut it from Keith's finger. Knowing that Eve wants to wear it herself, Richard needs to replace the lost diamonds while calling on all of his 25 years of experience to make the ring whole again. The other items brought in are a six-foot 1960s mannequin modelled on a Bollywood starlet, a penny arcade machine rescued over 40 years ago from a bonfire by the current owner's father, and a pair of tree spurs left to Clive Freeman of Dudley by his lumberjack father.

FILM REVIEWS

FILM OF THE DAY

Shirley Valentine ★★★★
9.00-11.15pm 5 Star 15

COMEDY Pauline Collins gives a wonderful performance here as the long-suffering housewife who decamps to a Greek island. Willy Russell adapts from his own stage play, with director Lewis Gilbert retaining many of his theatrical devices – Shirley talking to the kitchen wall, for instance – while opening out the action for the big screen. The supporting cast, particularly Bernard Hill as Collins's Neanderthal husband, is equally convincing, with only the hammy Tom Conti striking a false note with his appalling Greek accent. SIMON ROSE (US/UK 1989, swearing, brief nudity, HD)

Murder at the Gallop ★★★
11.50am-1.30pm TCM U

MYSTERY Robert Morley and Flora Robson add a touch of class to the list of suspects here, as Margaret Rutherford's Miss Marple investigates the murder of a rich recluse. While the police scratch their heads in bewilderment, Agatha Christie's sleuth lures the killer into a trap using herself as bait. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1963, BW, HD)

The First of the Few
Great Movies Action U

WAR After Gone with the Wind, Leslie Howard chose to leave Hollywood and return to England to make films designed to boost wartime morale. He directs and stars here as visionary aircraft designer RJ Mitchell, the father of the Spitfire. The fine cast also includes Rosamund John as his wife and David Niven as the test pilot. ADRIAN TURNER (UK 1942, BW)

Percy Jackson: Sea of Monsters ★★ 6.50-9.00pm Great Movies PG

FANTASY New to Great Movies this week, this sequel sees the return of the half-human son of sea god Poseidon. This time, Percy (Logan Lerman) goes on a quest for the Golden Fleece, leading him to the ominous-sounding "Sea of Monsters". The story often hits choppy waters, and it only just about stays afloat. DAVE ALDRIDGE (US 2013, edited for violence)

Addams Family Values
7.10-9.00pm Film4 PG

COMEDY This sequel has an even blacker vein of humour than the 1991 original. Gomez and Morticia (Raul Julia and Anjelica Huston) now have a new baby, while Uncle Fester (Christopher Lloyd) has fallen under the spell of a black widow (Joan Cusack). But, once again, it's Christina Ricci who steals the show as young Wednesday. JOHN FERGUSON (US 1993, HD)

Silverado ★★★★
9.00-11.35pm
Great Movies Action PG

WESTERN With this rousing tale, Lawrence Kasdan rustles ideas from virtually every B-western made. The plot sees Scott Glenn's cowboy arriving in town to find it's being terrorised by Brian Dennehy's sheriff. Kevin Costner and Danny Glover provide solid support, and John Cleese enjoys his cameo as an English lawman. DP (US 1985, some violence, swearing)

The Kingdom ★★★
9.00-11.25pm 5 Action 15

ACTION This high-energy thriller stars Jamie Foxx as the leader of an American team of counter-terrorism experts whose secret investigation is hampered by the Saudi authorities. While the film eventually devolves into Hollywood cliché, Foxx is well supported by a cast that includes Jennifer Garner and Chris Cooper. ADAM SMITH (US 2007, violence, swearing, HD)

Slumdog Millionaire
10.55pm-1.15am Film4 15

DRAMA Shot largely on the streets of Mumbai, director Danny Boyle's rags-to-riches tale dazzles and delights. Dev Patel plays the "slumdog" of the title, an orphan who's just one answer away from winning the jackpot on Who Wants to Be a Millionaire? when the police are brought in. During his interrogation, various episodes from his extraordinary life unfold. AS (UK 2008, violence, swearing, HD)

The Negotiator ★★★★
11.25pm-1.35am 5 Action 15

THRILLER Mad Men's Jon Hamm stars here as an alcoholic former US diplomat who is sent to Beirut to broker the release of a kidnapped CIA station chief. Rosamund Pike is the agent assigned to babysit him. The film's plausibility declines towards the end, but it's largely an exciting and impeccably played affair. DA (US 2018, violence, swearing, HD)

Edie ★★★★ 12.15-1.50am
BBC2 (not in N Ireland) 12

See Thursday for review, p105. (UK 2017, swearing, HD)

DOCUMENTARY

The Supervet: Safari Special

9.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Professor Noel Fitzpatrick may be great at devising cutting-edge health solutions for domestic animals, but just how will his abilities stand-up when he's called out to South Africa to help treat some considerably bigger and wilder beasts? Will operating expertise honed on dogs be able to help a tiger with arthritis? And while he's a dab hand at making prosthetic limbs for British pets, will he really be able to help make the first one that can support the weight of a one-tonne rhino?

There's a degree of culture shock – in the UK, Noel rarely has to chase down his patients in a helicopter and then hit them with a tranquillizer dart before he can treat them, for instance – but Noel's calm professionalism and genuine affection for all the animals he encounters sustain him. It's hard not to share his clear admiration for the wildlife vets, too. As he says at one point, "My job at home is to look after a cat or a dog. Their job is to look after a species on the edge of extinction…" CERI THOMAS

REALITY

Dragons' Den

8.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

This broiling business cauldron has been a TV fixture for nearly two decades, and still entrepreneurs arrive in their droves. This latest episode stars a married couple with a multipurpose garden rake, an engaged couple with a plant-based food delivery service, two fellas who believe they've discovered a solution for dog theft – and an ethical fashion designer with some stylish and practical clothing for people with disabilities.

The Dragons are so much nicer these days. The last thing viewers should have to endure in our straitened times are millionaires sneering at people trying to earn an honest crust. PAUL WHITELAW

DOCUMENTARY

The Dog House

8.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

Another trip to Cambridgeshire for more happy families and waggy charm sees the Reeds from Stockport on the search for a lurcher ("People see them and think they're a bit feral, which sometimes they are"); London couple John and Sammy looking for anything "with short legs" and rollerskating mental health nurse Cat looking for… a dog. Cue much hilarity.

At times The Dog House is a canine First Dates without the wine, but by the end at least one of the parties looking for love is guaranteed to have you smitten. It also performs a useful service, reminding all potential dog owners that a four-legged friend can be a real handful. BENJI WILSON

Build Your Dream Home in the Country

*8.00pm Channel 5
Catch up via My5

"We literally met over a dead body." True crime isn't the usual angle of this show, but 50-somethings Paul and Leigh met on a police case when he was a detective, and she was in forensics. The semi-retired couple are now pursuing their dream of a home in the picturesque South Downs. They've bought an "ugly duckling" 1950s redbrick house and plan to add extra bedrooms and a kitchen diner, ideal for family gatherings. They're also covering the exterior in timber cladding, but as delays lengthen and costs spiral, can host Mark Millar keep up their morale? And will all the stress be worth it? MICHAEL HOGAN

REALITY

The Apprentice

9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

It's week eight out of 12 – or as your average Apprentice candidate might say we're, er, 95 per cent of the way there… The task this week for the teams is to host an "immersive event" – like an Escape Room or a Murder Mystery – and what's worse, the candidates will be "in character" and taking performance art to previously unsounded depths.

Aptly the setting is a prison and they must organise tickets, entertainment, food and drink, which leaves countless opportunities for incompetence. One team deals with confused convicts, while the other nearly has a dining disaster. (What is it with The Apprentice and catering calamities?) In the boardroom, it's all about avoiding early release. BW

DOCUMENTARY

Life and War: Ukraine a Year On

9.00pm ITV1 Catch up via ITVX

At the time of writing, press coverage of the war in Ukraine was centred on politicians, with Volodymyr Zelensky having just urged Rishi Sunak to supply his country with fighter jets. But as the grim one-year anniversary of the Russian invasion is marked, ITV is switching focus to the civilians.

Global security editor Rohit Kachroo spent many weeks on the ground in Ukraine in 2022, and here he re-encounters some of those he met on that original trip. How have lives been changed since he saw them last? What has it meant for these ordinary working people to have been fighting in a modern war? And can they envisage life ever going back to what it once was? DB

Murdoch Mysteries

9.00pm Alibi

Catch up via Sky Go/Now

No TV detective can take a holiday without becoming embroiled in a case. But, as usual, Murdoch and Julia take things to extremes when the discovery of a body leads to them going under cover in a community of Mennonites, who shun modernity in much the same way as the Amish.

A comparison could, therefore, be made between this mystery and the Harrison Ford movie Witness, but there are differences. In the film, the cop was seeking refuge, but here there's suspicion within this supposedly peaceable group. And, within a day of arriving, Murdoch has discovered that the local baker, for one, has good reasons for wanting to keep his identity concealed… DB

BOOKED AND BUSY
The star of Gemma Arterton's Barbara continues to rise

COMEDY DRAMA

Funny Woman

9.00pm Sky Max

Catch up via Sky Go/Now

Barbara may now be a long way from Blackpool, but she isn't currently heading down an Educating Rita-style path where she temporarily forgets her roots. In fact, when the scripts for her sitcom start to become edgier and more provocative, her concern is that the jokes won't be well received back home by her dad and Auntie Marie. But this is the 1960s, a decade when comedy was considered to have missed its mark if it wasn't being satirical and pushing at boundaries.

Not that there wasn't also still a place for traditional light entertainment in the TV schedules; something we see for ourselves when Barbara (now fully established with her stage name of Sophie Straw) gets booked as a guest on The Val Doonican Show. It's a reminder that, once upon time, all that was needed to please viewers on a Saturday night was some crooning, a cardigan and a rocking chair. DB

FILM OF THE DAY

Journey's End ★★★

9.00-10.40pm BBC4 12

WAR Fine performances lift director Saul Dibb's worthy adaptation of RC Sherriff's play about life in the rat-infested trenches at the end of the First World War. The focus is on alcoholic Captain Stanhope (Sam Claflin, above), whose six-day command encompasses a major offensive. But when old school chum Raleigh (Asa Butterfield) is drafted into his unit, emotions begin to get in the way of duty. Dibb keeps his camera moving to overcome the staginess of the material, while Toby Jones's cook offers some welcome world-weary comic relief. ALAN JONES (UK/Neth/Bel 2017, violence, swearing, HD)

Men in War ★★★

Talking Pictures TV PG

DRAMA War movies were thick on the ground in the 1950s, but this account of a US platoon in Korea is made watchable by Anthony Mann, who directed it the same year as The Tin Star (see below). Robert Ryan's battle-exhausted lieutenant is a character whose attitude says more about war's futility than many a major epic. TOM HUTCHINSON (US 1957, BW)

The Tin Star ★★★★★

2.50-4.40pm Film4 PG

WESTERN Here's a finely wrought western from masters of the genre in their prime. Henry Fonda plays the bounty hunter who helps sheriff Anthony Perkins to hold down his job in a town beset by outlaws. Dudley Nichols was Oscar-nominated for his screenplay and director Anthony Mann allows the setting and characters to tell the story. TONY SLOMAN (US 1957, some violence, BW, HD)

Robin and Marian ★★★★

5.00-7.10pm Great Movies PG

ADVENTURE This gorgeous elegy for a vanished age sees a disillusioned Robin Hood return from the Crusades to find Sherwood empty of outlaws, Marian in a nunnery and the Sheriff of Nottingham still up to no good. Audrey Hepburn is simply exquisite as Marian, while Sean Connery's gruff turn as Robin ennobles the picture. Robert Shaw and Ronnie Barker are great in support, too. ADRIAN TURNER (UK 1976, some violence)

Dr Syn ★★★ 5.10-6.45pm

Talking Pictures TV U

ADVENTURE George Arliss retired from movies after starring in this sprightly 19th-century smuggling adventure. Defying his 69 years and reputation for stuffiness, he gives a rousing performance as a respected vicar who uses the cover of darkness to masquerade as the ruthless Dr Syn, scourge of the Kent coast. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1937, BW)

Churchill ★★★★

6.45-8.40pm TCM PG

DRAMA This heartfelt film is anchored by a magnificent lead performance from Brian Cox as Winston Churchill. On the brink of D-Day, Allied forces await the leader's orders, but he is scared of making a mistake. So it's up to his no-nonsense wife Clementine (Miranda Richardson) to restore his confidence. History lessons are rarely so engaging. AJ (UK/US/Swi 2016, HD)

Kindergarten Cop ★★★

6.50-9.00pm Film4 15

ACTION COMEDY Arnold Schwarzenegger stars here as an undercover cop who's forced to teach toddlers while searching for a crook's ex-wife and son, in the hope that her testimony will put him away. Arnie is at his best when jousting with the tykes, and although his romance with Penelope Ann Miller is less than convincing, it's never that intrusive. DP (US 1990, edited for content, HD)

Edie ★★★★

10.40pm-12.15am BBC4 12

DRAMA This film about seizing the day in later life proves a worthy vehicle for Sheila Hancock, who celebrates her 90th birthday this week. She plays an elderly wife and mother who goes to Scotland to scale the 731-metre Suilven mountain that her father always wanted to climb, but never did. The result is a touching and empowering film that speaks to all ages. ANDREW COLLINS (UK 2017, swearing, HD)

The Outlaw Josey Wales ★★★★

11.25pm-2.10am TCM 18

WESTERN Clint Eastwood directs this tough post-Civil War epic, in which he also plays the part of a wronged farmer bent on revenge. The film may lack the tightness of structure of Eastwood's later masterwork Unforgiven, but there's much to enjoy, including Jerry Fielding's fine score and Chief Dan George's dryly humorous Lone Watie. TS (US 1976, violence, swearing, nudity, HD)

DRAMA

Beyond Paradise/Death in Paradise

8.00pm/9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

NEW SERIES

Death in Paradise has had several lead detectives, all of whom have been at odds with their surroundings in some way or another. It was too hot, they were too uptight, or bumbling, or the food on offer wasn't plain enough. You get the idea.

The issue with this new spin-off is that it takes one of those awkward, oddball Brits – Kris Marshall's DI Humphrey Goodman – and relocates them to somewhere filled with people exactly like them: Britain. Specifically, Devon. I suspect this is supposed to give Beyond Paradise a villagey Doc Martin vibe, only with mysteries taking the place of medical crises, but the necessary culture clash isn't distinctive enough – at least not yet.

The fact that it is scheduled before the season finale of Death in Paradise (9pm BBC1) doesn't help matters either. Ralf Little's DI Neville Parker is, for my money, the most well-rounded of the ex-pat crime-solvers to have been stationed on Saint Marie over the years, and his latest episodes have, rather successfully, been putting him through the emotional wringer.

It's little wonder that Nev's now thinking afresh about his future on the island. DAVID BROWN

LAST EPISODE

While this series isn't the best advert for DIY house renovation, it certainly makes you want to spend the summer in Sicily.

Amanda Holden and Alan Carr are almost at the end of their holiday – er, sorry, project – so in between trips to the beach and five-a-side football matches, they buy vintage tiles in Palermo and hold a plastering party. While the latter's got nothing to do with alcohol, they do eventually throw a house-warming party at Casa Alamanda. This series has hardly been life-changing viewing, but it has given us some very welcome sunny escapism. JANE RACKHAM

Hotel Portofino

9.00pm ITV1 Full series on ITVX

Maybe it's the effect of spending long, lazy days in the Italian sunshine, but the hotel guests are noticeably more relaxed. Even the most tightly buttoned-up – I'm looking at you, Lady Latchmere (Anna Chancellor) – are loosening their stays a little. She's considering "becoming a little more modern and a little less judgemental". Crikey, pass the smelling salts.

However, it's Anish (Assad Zaman) who's really playing fast and loose since meeting a handsome anti-fascist activist, which could be very dangerous if he's caught by Signor Danioni (Pasquale Esposito) and his thugs. Meanwhile, there's the grand unveiling of the Ainsworths' painting and a lot of skulking around the hotel's corridors at night. JR

REALITY

Gogglebox

9.00pm C4 Catch up via All 4

The return of Gogglebox for a new run somehow makes Friday nights feel complete. Sadly, however, one much-loved sofa will be absent from this latest series. London-based couple Marcus Luther and Mica Ven have departed after a five-year stint on the show, saying it was "time to put down the remote and see what else God has in store for us".

The spiky-but-soppy couple will be missed, but one of the format's many strengths is that it can withstand such cast changes with minimal fuss. All our other favourites are back in their familiar positions, offering their unfiltered views on the last seven days' programming. In its tenth anniversary year, Gogglebox remains precious TV gold.

SERIES FINALE

You have probably watched most of this thriller through your fingers as Rowan Taylor (Amanda Abbington) lurches from one crisis to another. Other than a short scene when she seemed like a real criminal mastermind briefing the gang about her bank robbery plans, she's clearly not cut out for nefarious activities. She certainly wasn't prepared for the shocking turn of events in the bank vault. Then again, neither were we…

Things are looking decidedly bleak in tonight's final episode, especially for her son, who's still being held at gunpoint. But you can't help hoping that Rowan will somehow extricate herself from this situation, although who knows if she's capable of it. JR

SPOOF DOCUMENTARY

The Kemps: All True

9.30pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

Showbiz giants Gary and Martin Kemp from Spandau Ballet join Rhys Thomas to look back at their careers while they record a charity album, promote their vegan meat substitute and launch a gangster film franchise.

All nonsense, of course: this is a mock rockumentary, first aired in 2020, that parodies the Kemp legend as much as it taps into the spirit of a certain infamous Bros profile and, inescapably, This Is Spinal Tap. It's the brainchild of Thomas, who writes and directs with an eye for daft gags. Crucially, the brothers can mostly carry off the naturalistic acting this kind of spoof needs, and there are fun cameos from the likes of Daniel Mays and Michael Kitchen. It's all magnificently silly. DAVID BUTCHER

MUSIC

Guy Garvey: from the Vaults

10.15pm Sky Arts
Catch up via Sky Go/Now

The hard-working miners who chip away at ITV's regional archives have unearthed more gold with this fourth series of Vaulting ambition. After the thrash and energy of 1978 last week, we now have both the evolution from punk and the reaction to it, with 1982. And what delights there are, from XTC making one of their final TV appearances with Senses Working Overtime to a ripping live vocal from Alison Moyet on Yazoo's Don't Go.

It's a classy assortment that'll make you want to rediscover Squeeze or Dexys; a fun one, too – a never-aired hair discussion with Mari, Toyah and a lead Seagull, for instance, or a chat over chips with a charmingly coy Clare Grogan. Happy days. MARK BRAXTON

Couples Therapy

11.05pm, 11.35pm BBC2
Full series available on iPlayer

If you can get over the uncomfortably voyeuristic premise of watching strangers reveal intimate details of their lives, this series is utterly riveting. And while you may not have precisely the same relationship issues as Dr Orna Guralnik's clients, certain elements of their revelations may well strike a chord.

In tonight's double bill, we're back in Guralnik's office with the couples we met last week, including Ping and Will, who are, she says, stuck "doing the same dance". You can feel the tension between them even before they open their mouths, so it will be fascinating to watch their therapy journey and see if things are resolved by the time the series ends. JR

QI

9.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

Filler it may be, but this compilation episode from the most recent series of QI – focused on "T" – is superior filler indeed, and proof of the deep well of comedic talent from which panel-show bookers can draw these days.

Bill Bailey riffs on Amazonian fish enjoying Oktoberfest in an intimate area and reduces host Sandi Toksvig to hysterical tears of laughter; Jack Dee advocates use of a hessian sack with recalcitrant toddlers; Guz Khan recalls his mistreatment of a Moroccan turtle; Fozzie Bear and Basil Brush make telling cameos; and Alan Davies demonstrates his unique, enduring value to the whole project as it approaches the home stretch.

Yes, it loses something of the comic momentum of a complete episode – there isn't a great deal of getting to the point, while rambling anecdotes far outnumber actual facts – but there are worse ways to idle away half an hour on a Friday night. GABRIEL TATE

FILM REVIEWS

FILM OF THE DAY

P Pixie ★★★ 9.00-10.50pm Film4 15

CRIME COMEDY Two Irish pals take off with a drugs stash in this darkly amusing road movie from Barnaby Thompson. Ben Hardy and Daryl McCormack are the hapless dealers, but Olivia Cooke steals every scene as the gangster's daughter who twists the duo around her finger. There are also terrific cameos from Colm Meaney, Alec Baldwin and Dylan Moran. Ribald rather than rib-tickling, this is a fun caper straight out of the Quentin Tarantino playbook. McCormack is shortlisted for this year's Bafta Rising Star award and he talks to Radio Times on p25. JEREMY ASPINALL (UK 2020, violence, swearing, drug abuse, HD)

Wild Horses ★★★
1.00-2.50pm Legend PG

WESTERN Country singer Kenny Rogers stars in this modern-day cowboy movie, which is new to Legend this week. He plays an ex-rodeo star who finds his new blue-collar life boring, and turns his back on it to take part in a wild-horse round-up. Rogers has an easy charm, and fans will enjoy his songs that have been slipped in throughout. DAVE ALDRIDGE (US/NZ TVM 1985)

Yangtse Incident ★★★
4.45-7.05pm Film4 PG

WAR This fact-based yarn concerns a British warship that sails up the Yangtse in 1949 to relieve the British embassy at Nanking. Instead, it comes under massive bombardment from Chinese communists. Richard Todd and his crew deliver some standard British heroics, with The Dam Busters' Michael Anderson in the director's chair. ADRIAN TURNER (UK 1956, some violence, BW, HD)

The Embezzler ★★★
7.05-8.20pm
Talking Pictures TV PG

THRILLER A bank clerk makes an impulsive (and illegal) cash withdrawal and then goes on the run in this compact but enjoyable B-movie. Veteran character actor Charles Victor makes the most of his only starring role as world-weary Henry Paulson, whose dreams of living it up in Rio are sidelined when he is forced to hide out in an Eastbourne guest house. JA (UK 1954, BW)

Divergent ★★★
8.00-10.10pm BBC3 12

SCI-FI Post-apocalypse teens are tested to determine their personalities before joining warring factions in this Hunger Games clone, based on Veronica Roth's hit trilogy. Shailene Woodley plays Tris, a so-called Divergent, who doesn't fit into any one group and is therefore a danger to society. It's a bit of a slog at first, but director Neil Burger delivers a rousing finale. ALAN JONES (US 2014, edited for content, HD)

The American ★★★ 9.00-10.55pm Great Movies 15

THRILLER George Clooney brings his taciturn charisma to this self-consciously arty movie about an assassin who heads for a safe house in the Italian countryside and starts to question his way of life. Director Anton Corbijn's stylishly evocative framing ensures that the proceedings retain a sense of mystery, until a decidedly predictable climactic showdown breaks the spell. TREVOR JOHNSTON (US 2010, violence, sex scenes)

Doctor Faustus ★★★
9.05-10.55pm
Talking Pictures TV PG

DRAMA It's a rare showing tonight for this screen adaptation of Christopher Marlowe's play about the man who sold his soul to the devil. It was a passion project for Richard Burton and based on his own stage version, in which he took the lead. He is joined by most of the play's cast, including his wife Elizabeth Taylor as Helen of Troy. AT (UK/It 1967)

Collateral ★★★★
10.45pm-1.00am ITV1 15

CRIME Tom Cruise stars as a ruthless hitman in Heat director Michael Mann's edgy drama. After hijacking a taxi, Cruise embarks on a series of assassinations across Los Angeles, while hapless cabbie Jamie Foxx tries to work out ways to escape. Cruise is well cast against type, but it's Mann's astonishing visual style that really marks the film out. ADAM SMITH (US 2004, violence, swearing, HD)

P Bull ★★★★
10.50pm-12.35am Film4 18

THRILLER Get Carter meets Dead Man's Shoes in this tough British gangster tale from director Paul Andrew Williams. Neil Maskell gives a brooding turn as a former enforcer who returns to his old stomping ground to find his son and dole out retribution to those who've wronged him. Maskell also stars in Ben Wheatley's Kill List, which follows. JA (UK 2021, violence, swearing, HD)

THE REAL YOKO ONO

She didn't split the Beatles but she did inspire John Lennon – and great art. As she turns 90, Radio 4 salutes the most famous conceptual artist alive

Archive on 4: Oh Yoko!
8.00pm Saturday Radio 4

The most famous contemporary artist of modern times is also the most infamous, maligned and misunderstood. Archive on 4 celebrates the 90th birthday of Yoko Ono on Saturday by seeking to release the Japanese conceptualist from the shadow of John Lennon, the Beatles and ingrained prejudice, and allowing her work to speak for itself – and not before time.

Ono has lived an extraordinary life, encompassing the atomic attack on Japan, the groundbreaking Fluxus art scene in 1960s New York, Swinging London, the end of the Beatles, heroin use, the murder of Lennon in 1980 and its long tail. Among her more than a dozen experimental films and albums, her book, Grapefruit, and performance work, Cut Piece, are widely acknowledged as seminal examples of conceptual art: the Sgt Pepper of their ilk.

When she and Lennon first met at Ono's exhibition at London's Indica Gallery in November 1966, it was a coming together of two artists of comparable stature. Yet then and now, the fact is seldom acknowledged. The combined weight of Japan's pariah status postwar; generic racism and sexism; distrust of Ono's avant-garde ideas and the popular view of her "stealing" Lennon from the Beatles all fell on the Tokyo-born artist's shoulders. Exposed to a brutal public shaming, she was vilified as a "witch", a "Dragon Lady", and worse. The Lennons didn't always help themselves, of course: their espousal of bagism and bed-ins attracted its fair share of ridicule.

"She really took a hit when she got together with John," says Archive on 4 presenter, the writer and broadcaster Jennifer Lucy Allan. "In the British press, people quite freely wrote: 'I hate Yoko.' It's very extreme. It felt like the public owned John, and Yoko bore the brunt of all of this rage and became a focal point. Yet somehow she just carries on doing what she's doing. She's quite stoic about it. Her public message becomes about world peace at this moment that she is being reviled."

Ono's formative experiences occurred in wartime Japan. "They seem to be a really important part of the story," says Allan. "She grew up in a fairly privileged family, with music lessons and travelling to America. Then came the deprivations of war. When Hiroshima and Nagasaki happened, she was 12, on the cusp of adolescence. I can't imagine that wouldn't affect you." In light of these experiences, both Ono's resilience and dedication to peace make a little more sense.

Later, she spent time living in New York, where she studied modern composers, worked with John Cage and became affiliated to the Dadaist Fluxus art movement. Though Ono strived to communicate positivity, her life has been marked by tragedy. She was separated from her daughter, Kyoko, for more than 20 years after losing custody to her second husband, film producer Anthony Cox. In 1968 she began using heroin after she suffered a miscarriage, and continued after she and Lennon were involved in a serious car accident in 1969.

During this period, Lennon moved a double bed for the convalescing Ono into the recording studio while the Beatles were making Abbey Road, much to the consternation of his bandmates. She endured the trauma of Lennon's assassination in 1980 in New York. The point is rarely made, but Ono thought she was also about to be gunned down. Afterwards, she had to grieve in public, often with little support.

The pain in her life "played out in those wordless vocals," says Allan. "It is expressed, but it's not verbal." Her music ranges from ferocious experimentation to playful pop, innovative electronics to unadorned rock 'n' roll, over which she keens, screams and shrieks. It was designed to polarise. "I find it quite thrilling because it's so radical. It's not an easy listen and it's not intended to be. She's pushing something, whether it's people's buttons or the form forward."

The programme makes the point that, as much as Lennon facilitated Ono's musical career in the late 1960s and 70s, she profoundly influenced her husband, too, as is apparent on Revolution 9 by the Beatles or Cold Turkey by the Plastic Ono Band. "Her career as an artist opened up possibilities for him," says Allan. "They both become slightly bored or calcified in what they're doing. So Yoko steps a bit into John's world and John steps a bit into Yoko's world. And people are eye-rolling at them both, but they don't care!"

At heart her work is all about connection. One Archive on 4 contributor interprets Ono's art via the Japanese concept of Ma: a pause, an interval, a space. "The space on the page but also the space for you to enter the work and complete it," says Allan. "I found it a really enlightening way of thinking about Yoko's work."

SHE REMAINED ACTIVE – and provocative – in art and music until the late 2010s, often working with younger experimental musicians, but has now withdrawn from public life. Grapefruit, created two years before she met Lennon, remains her defining work. It's a series of simple ideas and objects from everyday life recontextualised as proposals or gentle instructions. "How absolutely fresh and new it still feels," says Allan. "You don't need to know anything to enjoy it; you don't need any idea of who she is or where it comes from. Fuel for the imagination is a better way to describe it than a piece of art." It's not a bad description of Ono, either. GRAEME THOMSON

PICK OF THE WEEK

Woke: the Journey of a Word

1.45pm Monday–Friday Radio 4

"Woke" is a word that surely is now beyond parody, ever since Home Secretary Suella Braverman invoked "the tofu-eating wokerati", yet is still bandied about as an insult across the political spectrum. Author, columnist and broadcaster Matthew Syed, who admits to being guilty of having used "woke" in some articles, wants to find out how we got to this place.

He believes that the word is a key to understanding the polarised Western world, and across five well-researched episodes he conducts an etymological investigation into the roots and evolution of woke. He starts with the New Testament and the exhortation in Ephesians to "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light". But the first emergence of woke as a synonym for being aware of social injustice is on a 1938 recording by blues musician Lead Belly about the 1931 case of black men falsely accused of rape in Alabama.

As he charts how the word became freighted with different meanings, Syed treads a careful path to show how perhaps we are all people divided by a common language. DAVID CRAWFORD

The Archers this week...

Susan joins those keen to help the Aldridges with Jennifer's funeral arrangements, but she's in for a shock when a decision by Brian comes to light. While Brian is busy distracting himself with Roy and Kirsty, can Alice hold it together and avoid a relapse, before Brian comes to his senses?

Meanwhile, Ben prepares to start care work at the Laurels and Ruth and David have their hands full with calving, not to mention their B&B project, where someone steps up to "help" with a trial inspection. Elsewhere, the prospect of Lee's children moving to America has set his mind racing, but what will this mean for him and Helen? CAROLINE FROST

PODCAST LABELS NOT TO BE TRUSTED

SHOW OF THE WEEK

Talking With Cancer

TALKING WITH CANCER
Katie Phillips, who works in PR, knows all the right people with whom to discuss the experience of living with or treating cancer, from doctors to showbiz clients and friends.

When Angela's Ashes became an unexpected bestseller in the 1990s, publishers eagerly sought out similar books and took to labelling the new genre "Misery Memoirs". Everybody knows what you mean by that, just as they understand Aga Saga, Creepy Weepy, Cosy Crime and other money-spinning forms. Sadly you can't actually call them that because it seems so disrespectful of the authors and the subjects. Podcasting has its own version of the same problem – inappropriate pigeon holes. The categories podcasts are too often herded into seem to have been arrived at by a not very imaginative librarian rather than a savvy bookseller.

When PR Katie Phillips, who had no previous health issues, was diagnosed with a rare form of cancer, she decided that she would keep those close to her informed about its progress by recording conversations with her writer friend Clair Whitefield. That was a year ago and since then the podcast has developed to include chats with friends. One of those is Adam Hills, who was on her books when he was a young comedian, subsequently nominated for a Perrier award and going on to front Channel 4's The Last Leg. He talks about losing his father to leukaemia in Australia just as his career was taking off in the UK and about how he didn't feel comfortable talking about his own disability on stage until he was a good enough comic to be able to do it.

LET'S TALK
Clair Whitefield and Katie Phillips open up about cancer

The strength of Phillips's podcast Talking with Cancer lies in the situation it arises from. She can interview medical professionals and showbiz types and the agenda for the conversation writes itself. The subject is her and them and, well, life. Inevitably you can find this under Health and Fitness, which may make you think of saline drips and track suits. It should come under the heading of a new section called Friends Talking, because that's what all the best podcasts seem to be. This, in turn, could be a sub-division of Human Interest, which is the thing that people look to podcasts for.

OTHER MISPLACED PODCASTS

NAZIS: THE ROAD TO POWER

The BBC's dramatisation of the story of Hitler (spoiler alert – bad lot) strays into coarse acting territory from time to time, such as when a knot of thespians gather around a microphone to chant the dictator's surname rhythmically as though he were the manager of a football team. But it must be doing something right because according to Apple it's the most popular podcast in the category labelled Fiction. If only, Apple. If only.

SHAMELESS

This is an appropriate title for a podcast where three drawling Aussies reheat the details of the lives of celebs such as Lindsay Lohan, Chrissy Teigen and Selena Gomez. The adjective could just as easily apply to the prurient interest of the listeners. You will be disappointed if you go looking for this in a section called Gossip, because there is no such section. In fact you'll find it under Society and Culture.

The Therapy Crouch

THE THERAPY CROUCH

Top of the charts in the Comedy section of Apple's podcasts are a husband and wife talking about the mundane details of their domestic life. The husband is former footballer Peter Crouch and the wife former model Abbey Clancy, which explains it all. He's just come back from a four-day golf trip. She's been minding the kids because her mother – the cheek of it – has been under the weather. In a well-ordered universe this would be in a section called Footballers' Lives, because that's one thing we clearly can't get enough of.

IDLE TALK

I found this spin-off from the Collecting Cars podcast at the top of the section labelled Leisure, which seems a pretty basic misunderstanding. For people like the guys chatting here this is not a matter of life and death; it's more important than that. Whether the subject is ostensibly the goings-on at Formula One or the next car they plan to buy, the conversation is a deeply coded cover for talking about the topic that matters more to men than any other. There should be a category called Status.

SOMETHING NEW

FAME WITH JO ELVIN

The former women's magazine editor talks to beneficiaries or victims of fame about how it feels to cross over to a state when you begin to suspect that everyone wants something from you. Interviewees so far have included Amy Schumer, Tracy-Ann Oberman and Amanda de Cadenet, all of whom are at pains to reassure her they have their feet on the ground, unlike, the implication is, everybody else.

SHEILA COOK

Ordinary people have extraordinary stories, too

When the controller of Radio 4 commissioned Four Thought back in 2011, he wanted a series of talks that would be a platform for people who had never been published or had never broadcast before. Each speaker would take part only once, and share not just an idea, but also the personal experience that shaped it.

As the series finally ends I find I've been lucky enough to produce 148 out of nearly 400 talks – over a decade of encounters with remarkable people. I remember them all.

Teacher and headmaster Dick Moore's son, Barney, had taken his own life at the age of 21, after struggling for years with depression. At the recording of Dick's Four Thought in front of a live audience, I could feel the intensity of the silence, as everyone listened.

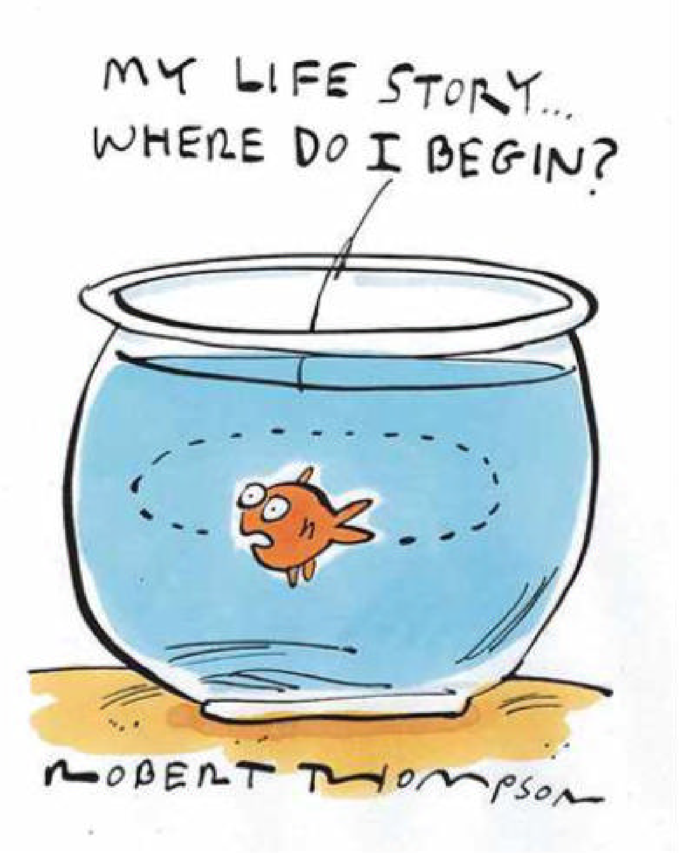
Likewise when Stuart J Cole told the story of how he conquered his addiction to drink and drugs. Leaving his girlfriend and daughter behind, Stuart took the extreme step of getting himself arrested and jailed for possession of drugs on St Lucia. During two years in prison, he wrote the story of his life in tiny handwriting on scraps of paper, which he subsequently turned into a book.

> 'These stories have left me with hope for humanity'

Syrian musician Maya Youssef is a virtuoso performer on the qanun, a 78-stringed Middle Eastern harp. Maya migrated to the UK after the outbreak of war in Syria. Her voice broke with emotion as she wondered when she would see her parents again. "To me the act of playing music is the opposite of death," said Maya. "It is a life- and hope-affirming act."

Other speakers wanted to preserve something important from our past or our present way of life. The cultural historian Travis Elborough wanted to protect public parks as institutions for the people; Andrew Martin argued for keeping cash in the face of the advancing tide of electronic banking. Matthew Engel made a secular case for reclaiming the peace of the Sabbath, asserting that a proper day of rest would make us healthier, happier and more productive. And Dr Mark Williams spoke from his experience as a GP about the need to preserve the traditional home visit.

Some people really are extraordinary. Amy Golden suffered from meningitis as a baby and was left unable to speak and can only move her right arm. She communicates by pointing to letters on a board. For her talk we arranged Rhiannon Needs to sit alongside Amy reading her script. As Amy said, "I try to get on and think of other things. Most days are good… I am happy now because if I wasn't like I am I wouldn't be who I am."



MY LIFE STORY…
WHERE DO I BEGIN?
ROBERT THOMPSON

At the age of 19, Adam Morse found he was losing his sight to a rare eye disease. His ambition was to be a film director. He eventually found a backer for his first feature film, despite having only slight peripheral vision. Adam told the producer, cinematographer and lead actor about his disability, but he kept it secret from the rest of the cast and crew until the film was about to be premiered. Adam was confident of his ability to direct actors, despite his loss of sight. "It's as though I'm using my inner eye to look into someone's soul."

Few of these people are famous and yet they all have remarkable stories to tell – stories that have left me with hope for humanity. Dick Moore went on to give 500 talks to schools and 100 talks to businesses in the UK and abroad. At a time when so much in the news seems bleak, it's good to remember that our Four Thoughters are out there and, if we look, their like are all around us, quietly making the world a better place.

Sheila Cook presents the last ever Four Thought on Wednesday at 8.45pm on Radio 4. Hundreds of episodes are available on BBC Sounds

Drama: Gaslight

3.00pm Radio 4

The power of Patrick Hamilton's 1938 stage thriller Gaslight can hardly have diminished given how much we hear nowadays of cases of coercive control, and to hear the voice of James Purefoy, as the film producer antagonist of this superb modern reimagining, switch from upper-middle-class charm to seething resentment while talking to his deluded wife (Rebecca Night) will make your skin crawl. Playwright Jonathan Holloway adds a new dimension by framing the action through the eyes of a scheming intern, played by EastEnders' Lacey Turner, but keeps the power dynamic feminist with a female saviour. The drama will also be available in five episodic chunks on BBC Sounds, with four bonus scenes that add additional clues to the plot. DAVID CRAWFORD

Opera on 3: Britten's The Turn of the Screw

6.30pm Radio 3

Britten from Budapest? Not the barrel-scraping it might appear. Ivan Fischer, who conducts tonight's The Turn of the Screw, has strong British/Brittenish links, having been Kent Opera's music director from 1984, the year after he founded his fabulous Budapest Festival Orchestra (13 of whom form tonight's select band), until 1989, when Peter Grimes was the last new production he conducted with the company before the Arts Council shut it down in an early rehearsal for its latest attack on ENO. The cast are all English-speakers too, led by UK-based Swedish soprano Miah Persson as the ghostbusting Governess.

5.00 J to Z
In the first of today's two programmes celebrating the singular American singer/songwriter and civil rights activist Nina Simone – ahead of Tuesday's 90th anniversary of her birth – Kevin Le Gendre explores her music and legacy. Featuring classic recordings, lesser-known tracks and highlights of a remarkable 1988 concert. Le Gendre also tells the stories behind her songs, touching on her early life as an aspiring concert pianist, her involvement in the civil rights movement and her celebration of her African identity. The programme features archive candid interviews with Simone, who died in 2003. Vocalists Nnenna Freelon and Zara McFarlane, saxophonist Cassie Kinoshi and pianist Vijay Iyer share their favourite tracks and reflect on her legacy.

Today's Choices

ILLUSTRATION BY NICHOLAS STEVENSON

Drama on 3: The Seagull

7.30pm Radio 3

Following their success with The Cherry Orchard in 2021, writer Katherine Tozer, composer John Chambers and director Toby Swift have returned to Chekhov to create this equally brilliant new version of The Seagull. Emma Fielding rejoins the old crew, too, in the coveted role of Irene Arkadina, a grande dame of the stage with an arsenal of withering putdowns up her dainty sleeve. In this play about artists – writers and actors – and their various struggles in work and love, it is interesting to note how the role of ingenue Nina has become more complex today. The hot mess of a young actress, destroyed by an older man, is here played with a punch rather than a whimper by Erin Doherty (who you may have seen as young Princess Anne in The Crown).

FIONA HUGHES

The Ultimate Choice

7.15pm Radio 4

Piloted last July, this comic spin on the philosophical debate "Would you rather..?" was picked up almost immediately for the series that begins tonight. "Not all the elements of the show will survive," I predicted, with my customary inaccuracy. It's essentially the same schtick, complete with well-prepped audience interaction and expert testimony. Perhaps the choices are less surreal than before (tonight's include the possibilities of living in either Albert Square or Mordor) – or perhaps I'm just determined to appear as though I have influence. Whatever the case I still think Steph McGovern, who returns to the chair, is good at her job and should do more of the same.

The Essay: Walking the Causeways

10.45pm Radio 3

The familiar outline of St Michael's Mount rising up out of the sea (above) says Cornwall more than any other landmark. Novelist Patrick Gale knows it well, having made Cornwall his home since the 1980s and the setting for many of his books. With the tide out, he takes us with him on the thrilling walk to St Michael's from Marazion on the mainland across the cobbled causeway that only appears twice a day. For a moment, he says, you can think you're walking on water. Later in the week, other writers dipping their toes in include Evie Wyld crossing the Freshwater Causeway on the Isle of Wight and WN Herbert following the route of pilgrims to Lindisfarne. FIONA HUGHES

Book at Bedtime: Eugene Onegin

10.45pm Radio 4

Has a novel in verse – which is what Alexander Pushkin's Eugene Onegin is – ever featured in Book at Bedtime? Co-producer Mary Ward-Lowery says she wonders that herself, and certainly this feels like a departure – an altogether delightful journey into the heart of 19th-century imperial Russia, where intriguing fates await the title character and those around him. Verse may require more concentration than prose, and the option of having the text to hand is an attractive one. The translation used here is by James E Falen (part of the Oxford World's Classics series), and its wit and rhythms are beautifully captured in Rhashan Stone's reading. SIMON O'HAGAN

Today's Choices

BENJAMIN NORMAN/NEW YORK TIMES/REDUX/EYEVINE

In the Studio

BBC World Service

The name of Keith McNally may be unfamiliar to many on this side of the Atlantic, despite the 71-year-old New York restaurateur (above) hitting the headlines last year for banning chat-show host James Corden from his eateries. But there is more to the man than the Corden brouhaha. Born into a working-class family in Bethnal Green, young Keith embraced acting – he was in the original cast of Alan Bennett's Forty Years On in 1968 – before decamping to the Big Apple in the 1970s where his huge success saw him dubbed "The Restaurateur Who Invented Downtown". Presented by William Miller (son of satirist supreme Jonathan Miller), this portrait of a creative visionary whose culinary emporiums are more like nights at the theatre, should go at the top of your listening menu. JEREMY ASPINALL

Word of Mouth

4.00pm Radio 4

The six-year-old Richard Osman was a big fan of the children's TV show Champion the Wonder Horse. Then he came across the name Weston-super-Mare, and he put the two together. Champion the Wonder Horse is a western. A mare is a horse, and a super mare is a wonder. It's just one of many lovely moments in which we get to glimpse the inner workings of a brain that gave us the hit TV quiz show Pointless as well as the bestselling Thursday Murder Club crime novels. The Word of Mouth format doesn't usually involve Michael Rosen sitting down with someone well known to discuss their relationship with language – perhaps it should happen more often.

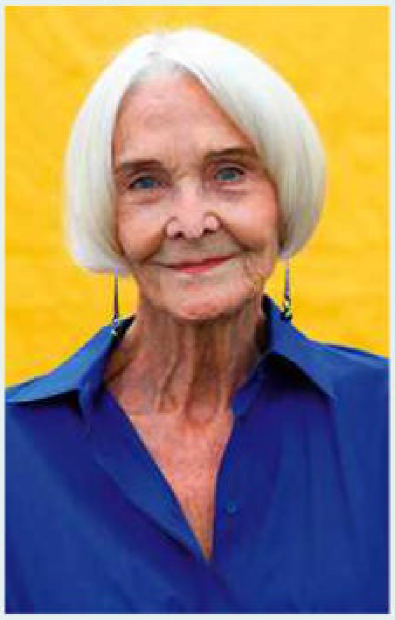
Today's Choices



In Extremis

10.00am/3.00pm
Radio 4 Extra

To mark the 90th birthday of Sheila Hancock (above), here is a gift of a two-hander. Originally broadcast in 2002, it re-imagines the meeting on 24 March 1895 between a society palm reader and Oscar Wilde. But why would "the most talked-about man in London" be seeking advice from a total stranger? Hancock and Corin Redgrave re-create the roles Neil Bartlett wrote for them in his National Theatre play, so their chemistry is a given. Hancock's Mrs Robinson proves to be entertainingly garrulous as well as a skilled observer of human nature – "interpretation is my profession" – while Redgrave dispenses Wilde's wit and epigrams ("incomprehension is the sincerest form of flattery") with deft precision. Their cat-and-mouse game may be erudite and amusing, but there's also an air of melancholy. JEREMY ASPINALL

8.00pm Radio 4 Extra

At the time this first aired in 2020, YouTube faced considerable controversy when it emerged that some of the site's algorithms appeared to be optimising content for paedophiles; it was subsequently accused of neglecting user safety. To determine the many ways in which YouTube has affected us, tech journalist Chris Stokel-Walker rows back to the mid-2000s to discover its beginnings as a showcase for "silly" videos and to reveal how sinister overtones, where impressionable people began to be influenced by extremist propaganda, crept in. Stokel-Walker's account is incisive throughout, peppered with compelling anecdotal evidence from proto-vloggers, YouTube pioneers and today's stars of the site. CHRIS GARDNER

Meet David Sedaris

6.30pm Radio 4

The first series of Meet David Sedaris aired back in 2010, and the one starting today makes it nine and counting. Yet to hear this supreme humourist (above) is always an event. Those of us lucky enough to attend the recording of his latest series – which took place at a venue in west London called the Tabernacle – can testify to the sense of anticipation Sedaris creates in an audience. We're alert not just to the jokes but to the poignancy – never more so than in the wonderful essay with which he kicks things off, an account of a visit to his 97-year-old father in his assisted-living facility in North Carolina. Sedaris – US-raised but now a longtime resident of West Sussex – offers a delicious bonus in extracts from his diaries. SIMON O'HAGAN

The Forum

10.05am BBC World Service

It's hard to overstate the importance of standardised shipping containers to the global economy. Before their widespread introduction in the 1960s, it would take dockers ten days to load and unload cargo from a ship – a dirty, dangerous job that could often prove fatal. Standardised containers helped drive down shipping costs to such an extent that economists would often discount them from their calculations. They are the backbone of just-in-time supply chains, but after the disruption of Covid these chains are under increasing strain. Here Rajan Datar and guests, professor of logistics Alan McKinnon and Marc Levinson, author of The Box: How the Shipping Container Made the World Smaller and the World Economy Bigger, discuss their history and possible future. DAVID CRAWFORD

The Documentary: Ukraine – a Year at War

1.30pm/8.30pm World Service

At the time of going to press President Volodymyr Zelensky is coming to the end of his surprise visit to the UK, his first since Russia invaded Ukraine one year ago on 24 February 2022. The solemn anniversary is marked by this panel discussion, a collaboration between the World Service and BBC podcast Ukrainecast, which has been answering vital questions about the conflict – recent example: why do so many Russians support the war? – since its first day. Hosts are Ukrainecast presenter Victoria Derbyshire and BBC Monitoring's Russia editor Vitaly Shevchenko. Their guests will be journalists and international correspondents, who will be answering listeners' questions. They're expected to include, "What is President Vladimir Putin really thinking?" DAVID McGILLIVRAY

Radio 3 in Concert

7.30pm Radio 3

Winner of the 2021 Solti Conducting Award and a former resident conductor of the St Louis Symphony Orchestra, New Zealand-born Gemma New has chosen an all-American programme for her BBC SO debut tonight. There's nothing overtly American about Barber's one-movement First Symphony – written in the French Alps, modelled after Sibelius and premiered in Rome – but there's a foxtrot in John Adams's Maoist fantasy The Chairman Dances and hints of both the Charleston and the blues in Gershwin's Piano Concerto, while Valerie Coleman's Umoja, whose 2019 premiere made her the first living, female African-American composer ever performed by the Philadelphia Orchestra, offers an "Anthem of Unity" to a diverse world. MARK PAPPENHEIM

Age 28

Current job Presenter of the Kiss early breakfast show (weekdays, 4-7am) since January. "I'm there for the ones who've been out all night, for the night shift workers, and for people who think that getting to the gym at 5am is reasonable." Also presents the Heat Radio drivetime show (weekdays, 4-7pm), Friday Night Hits on Hits Radio (7-10pm), Hits Radio Pride Breakfast (weekdays, 7-11am) and Kiss Sundays (2-5pm). "I think I'm trying to prove that I don't need sleep!"

CV Born in Dumfries, he was raised in Marlow, Bucks. While still at school he volunteered for Marlow FM. He went on to train at Trinity Laban in contemporary dance. In 2019, he did cover shifts at Hits Radio, which led to presenting their evening show. From 2019-20 he presented Heat's Love Island after-show spin-off on YouTube. He is also a DJ. "For my first gig, in 2019, I was thrown in at the deep end, doing a 12 minute warm-up for Hits Live at Manchester Arena. For six minutes I just looked down. Then I looked up and saw that the crowd were with me. That was the most thrilling thing I've ever done."

Social media – yes or no? "It has both the power for good and bad. But the little moments of joy are the reason I still have faith in it."

Best moments "Launching Hits Radio Pride. It was life-changing, to have the chance to be the first voice on a national queer radio station. Long may it continue! It was supposed to be a six-month pop-up – we're here nearly three years later and we've got big plans."

Worst moments "It was my first drive show on Heat Radio. Our software is so simple, as long as you press the green button. But I don't think I pressed it. So I accidentally filled the ad break with Gotta Get through This by Daniel Bedingfield on repeat!"

Off air Lives in Manchester with his boyfriend, producer Joe Wilmot, and their cockapoo Harley.

First radio memory "We didn't have a radio in the house. Even in the car my parents would put in cassettes. We had the TV on all the time and I really wanted to tap into that radio element so I downloaded the Chris Moyles show podcast and listened on an iPod."

Favourite broadcasters "There's someone who stands out, who's shaped how I approach music, which is my first love, the reason I got into radio, and that's Zane Lowe."

Ambition/Dream job "Kiss was my dream station. It was always a goal of mine to be there and now I'm here I'm like, wow! I'm loving it."

Secret skills "I was born in Scotland, then moved down south when I was four and picked up the accent. But when I went back to visit, my father said, 'You're no speaking in that accent in this hoose!' Even today, if I go to Scotland, I drop straight into the accent. I even think in Scottish. Apparently it's called bidialectilism!" DAVID McGILLIVRAY

All BBC local radio stations take BBC Radio 5 Live programmes from 1am

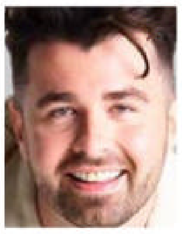
BBC Radio Scotland

Face behind the voice Jordan-Lee Kiss, Heat, Hits



Age 28
Current job Presenter of the Kiss early breakfast show (weekdays, 4-7am) since January. "I'm there for the ones who've been out all night, for the night shift workers, and for people who think that getting to the gym at 5am is reasonable." Also presents the Heat Radio drivetime show (weekdays, 4-7pm), Friday Night Hits on Hits Radio (7-10pm), Hits Radio Pride Breakfast (weekdays, 7-11am) and Kiss Sundays (2-5pm). "I think I'm trying to prove that I don't need sleep!"

CV Born in Dumfries, he was raised in Marlow, Bucks. While still at school he volunteered for Marlow FM. He went on to train at Trinity Laban in contemporary dance. In 2019, he did cover shifts at Hits Radio, which led to presenting their evening show. From 2019-20 he presented Heat's Love Island after-show spin-off on YouTube. He is also a DJ. "For my first gig, in 2019, I was thrown in at the deep end, doing a 12 minute warm-up for Hits Live at Manchester Arena. For six minutes I just looked down. Then I looked up and saw that the crowd were with me. That was the most thrilling thing I've ever done."

Social media – yes or no? "It has both the power for good and bad. But the little moments of joy are the reason I still have faith in it."

Best moments "Launching Hits Radio Pride. It was life-changing, to have the chance to be the first voice on a national queer radio station. Long may it continue! It was supposed to be a six-month pop-up – we're here nearly three years later and we've got big plans."

Worst moments "It was my first drive show on Heat Radio. Our software is so simple, as long as you press the green button. But I don't think I pressed it. So I accidentally filled the ad break with Gotta Get through This by Daniel Bedingfield on repeat!"

Off air Lives in Manchester with his boyfriend, producer Joe Wilmot, and their cockapoo Harley.

First radio memory "We didn't have a radio in the house. Even in the car my parents would put in cassettes. We had the TV on all the time and I really wanted to tap into that radio element so I downloaded the Chris Moyles show podcast and listened on an iPod."

Favourite broadcasters "There's someone who stands out, who's shaped how I approach music, which is my first love, the reason I got into radio, and that's Zane Lowe."

Ambition/Dream job "Kiss was my dream station. It was always a goal of mine to be there and now I'm here I'm like, wow! I'm loving it."

Age 28 Current job Presenter of the Kiss early breakfast show (weekdays, 4-7am) since January. "I'm there for the ones who've been out all night, for the night shift workers, and for people who think that getting to the gym at 5am is reasonable." Also presents the Heat Radio drivetime show (weekdays, 4-7pm), Friday Night Hits on Hits Radio (7-10pm), Hits Radio Pride Breakfast (weekdays, 7-11am) and Kiss Sundays (2-5pm). "I think I'm trying to prove that I don't need sleep!"

CV Born in Dumfries, he was raised in Marlow, Bucks. While still at school he volunteered for Marlow FM. He went on to train at Trinity Laban in contemporary dance. In 2019, he did cover shifts at Hits Radio, which led to presenting their evening show. From 2019-20 he presented Heat's Love Island after-show spin-off on YouTube. He is also a DJ. "For my first gig, in 2019, I was thrown in at the deep end, doing a 12 minute warm-up for Hits Live at Manchester Arena. For six minutes I just looked down. Then I looked up and saw that the crowd were with me. That was the most thrilling thing I've ever done."

Social media – yes or no? "It has both the power for good and bad. But the little moments of joy are the reason I still have faith in it."

Best moments "Launching Hits Radio Pride. It was life-changing, to have the chance to be the first voice on a national queer radio station. Long may it continue! It was supposed to be a six-month pop-up – we're here nearly three years later and we've got big plans."

Worst moments "It was my first drive show on Heat Radio. Our software is so simple, as long as you press the green button. But I don't think I pressed it. So I accidentally filled the ad break with Gotta Get through This by Daniel Bedingfield on repeat!"

Off air Lives in Manchester with his boyfriend, producer Joe Wilmot, and their cockapoo Harley.

First radio memory "We didn't have a radio in the house. Even in the car my parents would put in cassettes. We had the TV on all the time and I really wanted to tap into that radio element so I downloaded the Chris Moyles show podcast and listened on an iPod."

Favourite broadcasters "There's someone who stands out, who's shaped how I approach music, which is my first love, the reason I got into radio, and that's Zane Lowe."

Ambition/Dream job "Kiss was my dream station. It was always a goal of mine to be there and now I'm here I'm like, wow! I'm loving it."

Secret skills "I was born in Scotland, then moved down south when I was four and picked up the accent. But when I went back to visit, my father said, 'You're no speaking in that accent in this hoose!' Even today, if I go to Scotland, I drop straight into the accent. I even think in Scottish. Apparently it's called bidialectilism!" DAVID McGILLIVRAY

BBC Radio Wales

Age 28
Current job Presenter of the Kiss early breakfast show (weekdays, 4-7am) since January. "I'm there for the ones who've been out all night, for the night shift workers, and for people who think that getting to the gym at 5am is reasonable." Also presents the Heat Radio drivetime show (weekdays, 4-7pm), Friday Night Hits on Hits Radio (7-10pm), Hits Radio Pride Breakfast (weekdays, 7-11am) and Kiss Sundays (2-5pm). "I think I'm trying to prove that I don't need sleep!"
CV Born in Dumfries, he was raised in Marlow, Bucks. While still at school he volunteered for Marlow FM. He went on to train at Trinity Laban in contemporary dance. In 2019, he did cover shifts at Hits Radio, which led to presenting their evening show. From 2019-20 he presented Heat's Love Island after-show spin-off on YouTube. He is also a DJ. "For my first gig, in 2019, I was thrown in at the deep end, doing a 12 minute warm-up for Hits Live at Manchester Arena. For six minutes I just looked down. Then I looked up and saw that the crowd were with me. That was the most thrilling thing I've ever done."
Social media – yes or no? "It has both the power for good and bad. But the little moments of joy are the reason I still have faith in it."
Best moments "Launching Hits Radio Pride. It was life-changing, to have the chance to be the first voice on a national queer radio station. Long may it continue! It was supposed to be a six-month pop-up – we're here nearly three years later and we've got big plans."
Worst moments "It was my first drive show on Heat Radio. Our software is so simple, as long as you press the green button. But I don't think I pressed it. So I accidentally filled the ad break with Gotta Get through This by Daniel Bedingfield on repeat!"
Off air Lives in Manchester with his boyfriend, producer Joe Wilmot, and their cockapoo Harley.
First radio memory "We didn't have a radio in the house. Even in the car my parents would put in cassettes. We had the TV on all the time and I really wanted to tap into that radio element so I downloaded the Chris Moyles show podcast and listened on an iPod."
Favourite broadcasters "There's someone who stands out, who's shaped how I approach music, which is my first love, the reason I got into radio, and that's Zane Lowe."
Ambition/Dream job "Kiss was my dream station. It was always a goal of mine to be there and now I'm here I'm like, wow! I'm loving it."
Secret skills "I was born in Scotland, then moved down south when I was four and picked up the accent. But when I went back to visit, my father said, 'You're no speaking in that accent in this hoose!' Even today, if I go to Scotland, I drop straight into the accent. I even think in Scottish. Apparently it's called bidialectilism!" DAVID McGILLIVRAY

‘BOOKS ARE MY DRUGS’

Comedian and presenter Robin Ince reveals why he wrote an ode to British bookshops – and what makes Professor Brian Cox squirm

The Infinite Monkey Cage
Saturday 7.15pm Radio 4

So we’ve got sex, we’ve got cannibalism, we’ve got spiders, we’ve got an audience of 400 people,” says Robin Ince, gleefully, “but the best bit is: I’ve found Brian Cox’s Achilles heel!”

After co-hosting Radio 4’s pop-science programme The Infinite Monkey Cage with rock-star physicist Prof Cox for 14 years, it’s understandable that Ince is keen to get one over on his poster-boy colleague occasionally. But who knew it would be sexy cannibal spiders – at a live recording for the new series, which starts this week – that would do it?

The female St Andrew’s Cross spider tends to eat the male after mating, explains comedian-cum-author Ince, “so we introduced this small male to a female’s web, and all 400 members of the audience and I are waiting impatiently to see what happens next – but Brian’s scared of spiders, so he’s doing that careful ‘leaning away’ thing that people do when they’re trying to look like they’re just casually leaning but actually they’re petrified.”

At least Ince didn’t have to worry about Prof Cox’s phobias on his most recent tour. “I was meant to be on an arena tour with Brian in 2021, but we had to postpone that because of Covid. And because I’m a bit manic [Ince was also diagnosed with ADHD in 2021, at the age of 52], I immediately decided to do something else instead – to see how many bookshops I could get to by public transport in the two months we would have been touring. And it turned out to be 104.”

It was “just intended as an adventure”, Ince insists, but when fellow broadcaster/writer Richard Osman tweeted, “This should be a book!”, such was the weight of the gazillion-seller Osman’s endorsement, that “my publisher suddenly said ‘This really should be a book. Because then it can have a cover quote from Richard Osman.’ ”

Bibliomaniac, Ince’s cheerfully, fascinatingly rambling account of the tour, and of his lifelong obsession with books, was published in October – and does, indeed, have a cover quote from Richard Osman.

So far, so jolly – and much of the book is a lovely, whimsical read. But there’s a melancholy strand to it too, which Ince describes in terms of the lows accompanying his manic highs. “I occasionally imagine that I’m David Banner from The Incredible Hulk,” he says, tongue at least partly in cheek. “Each time, I turn up in a new town with my rucksack, and maybe I change the community a little bit with, um, my recommendation of a particular novel. And then the piano music plays and I sadly put my rucksack back on and head off someplace else.”

While Dr Banner hitch-hikes to the next small American town, however, Ince takes British public transport – which leads, inevitably, to the odd “outburst of fury”. (Readers of a sensitive disposition, relax: “I don’t burst out of my shirt and rip my trousers,” he assures us.)

Other performers might do just that, having to cope with the comedown Ince experienced, of being booked to play 14,000-seat arenas but ending up doing readings for “12 people in a bookshop in Margate”. Ince, though, revelled in the more intimate connection he could get with those smaller audiences (“You can see their eyes! They can interject! You can go to the pub with them after!”). He concedes that life on the road this time wasn’t quite so rock ’n’ roll as when doing the big gigs – it’s more cake than coke, with “a nice Battenberg” on the backstage rider where you might expect the Class A’s to figure. But that’s fine because, as he puts it, “books are my drugs”.

“I don’t mean that in a throwaway manner,” he adds, “they really do calm me, they really do shut off some of the voices for a while.”

“Books are even the reason I stopped drinking heavily. I realised that if I drank too much after a gig, my reading on the late train home was blurry. So now," he jokes, "it's just the crack pipe, the hallucinogenic mushrooms, and the speed. Apart from those three, I've given up everything."

Truth be told, he says, things are never too depraved, even when he is playing huge venues with Cox. "I'm very strict. We're normally in a hotel, and at the end of the evening we'll share a bottle of wine, and Brian will go, 'Should we have another one?' and I'll say, 'No! That will interfere with our explanation of quantum indeterminacy!' Sometimes he'll sigh and say, 'All right,' but other times he does go for that second bottle. And then he ends up saying, 'Ooh, you were right about the explanation of quantum indeterminacy.' "

So two Achilles heels then… ED GRENBY

> 'We'll share a bottle of wine and Brian will go, "Should we have another one?" '

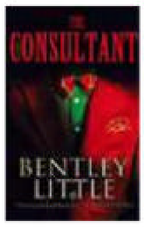
Along came a consultant…

An everyday horror story about working in an office



THE CONSULTANT
BENTLEY LITTLE
Episode one is available from Friday on Amazon Prime

The drudgery of a 9 to 5 working day can sometimes feel like a nightmare, but for the employees of CompWare, the terror of office life is no longer metaphorical. Bentley Little is known for his horror stories, and The Consultant (Cemetery Dance Publications) is another of his everyday settings turned scary. An external consultant (played by Christoph Waltz in the Amazon drama) makes changes to the company structure and soon the employees of CompWare find themselves pushed harder and further than they thought possible. Is it just their jobs at stake, or is something more nefarious at foot? See review page 45

FLEISHMAN IS IN TROUBLE
TAFFY BRODESSER-AKNER
Full series available from Wednesday on Disney+

Divorce is not an easy situation to be in, especially when children are involved, and even more so when the mother drops them off at dad's and promptly disappears. Which is where we meet Richard Fleishman, whose hopes of casual dating and casual parenting are now dashed. Praised by critics for its satire of modern New York and its commentary on marriage, Fleishman Is in Trouble (Wildfire, £9.99) is Taffy Brodesser-Akner's debut novel and now you can enjoy it dramatised on Disney+ with a cast that includes Jesse Eisenberg, Lizzie Caplan, Claire Danes and Adam Brody. See review page 43

EUGENE ONEGIN
ALEXANDER PUSHKIN
Book at Bedtime, 10.45pm Monday–Friday Radio 4

Spurned love, country balls, duels, death, passion and a great deal of philosophical musing, Alexander Pushkin's novel Eugene Onegin bears all the hallmarks of classic Russian literature – and no wonder, since he's considered to be the founder of the genre. A portrayal of Russian culture with a healthy dash of satire, Pushkin's love story was originally published in the early 1800s, the poetic tour de force so innovative that the writing form used was named the "Onegin Stanza". That has made the novel difficult to translate but will surely lend itself to radio. RHIANNON THOMAS

THE TREATS OF VERSAILLES

FIT FOR A QUEEN

Explore the Parisian haunts of Marie Antoinette

Marie Antoinette
Box set available via BBC iPlayer

SHE WAS AN AIRHEAD: the Archduchess of Austria – uncouth, rebellious, extravagant – sent to France in 1770 to do nothing more taxing than marry Louis XV's grandson and produce a male heir. Or so we all thought, until Deborah Davis – writer of Oscar-winning The Favourite – retold Marie Antoinette's story in the eponymous TV series, which climaxed on BBC2 last week. In the dramatisation we see a far more vulnerable, sensitive Marie Antoinette and this deeper connection to the Queen's character is thanks, in no small part, to the exquisite locations. With a cast and crew of 780 people, Marie Antoinette is an astonishing feat in televisual time travel.

The star location, of course, is the ravishing Palace of Versailles, where Marie Antoinette lived with her husband, later to become King Louis XVI. It's not so much a stately home as a small town – and did, in fact, become the de facto centre of the kingdom for almost a century – so you should dedicate one or two days to the estate, an hour's drive west of Paris (en.chateauversailles.fr; entry from £17). Be sure to avoid Mondays when the Palace is closed to the public: Monday, in fact, was the one day each week when the crew was able to shoot at the Palace itself, a necessity when you think of the unforgettable scenes that take place in the chandeliered Hall of Mirrors or the black-and-white tiled Marble Courtyard – both locations that could never be re-created in a studio.

If you visit Versailles this summer, buy a ticket to the Fountains Night Show (every Saturday from June to September), when the gardens come alive after dark. Fountains and pools are orchestrated to music before a magnificent fireworks display, just as is witnessed by the anxious young Queen on her wedding night in episode one of the series.

DAUPHINE OF FRANCE
Emilia Schüle plays the young Queen in Marie Antoinette

DESPITE THE PRIVILEGED access of the production team, there is one experience you can have that they could not: a snoop around Versailles' fascinating Secret Rooms. Louis XVI built these tiny apartments – along with hidden doors and corridors – so that he could visit the Queen without being seen by palace staff, and to provide her with refuge and privacy. Because it was impossible to shoot in these confined spaces, the entire network of Secret Rooms was reconstructed at local French studios, Bry-sur-Marne, where sets took almost three months to build. Production designer Pierre Queffelean also points out that what we see as tourists is a much more polished version of reality: "The palace would have been a dirtier place. Today it is very clean, painted in white with bright golds. But if you think back to that time, there were between 2,500 and 3,000 people living [at Versailles] constantly."

> 'A deeper connection to her character is thanks to the exquisite locations'

Château de Vaux-le-Vicomte – an hour and a half's drive south east of Paris – stood in for the Palace of Versailles when it wasn't a Monday and the crew needed to film exterior scenes. The castle was built only a few years after Versailles, and its glorious gardens make the perfect backdrop to the pomp of Marie Antoinette's courtly walkabouts.

The château is currently closed but reopens on 1 April; if you're very lucky, your trip may coincide with Costume Day, when palace staff wear 17th-century dress, offering musketeer shows and horse-drawn carriage rides. (Don't worry if you don't have a corseted gown of your own – visitors are each given a gilt mask on arrival; vaux-le-vicomte.com; entry from £15; see website for dates.)

Not far from Château de Vaux-le-Vicomte is the Château de Fontainebleau, where the royal family retreats on holiday in episode three (fun historical fact: the Queen also fled to the castle on the eve of the French Revolution). Fontainebleau is the château that spawned a thousand imitations, and there are kitsch hotels with the same name – from Miami to Mumbai – inspired by its ostentatious design. However, the real thing is more delicate than you might imagine, if you know where to look: seek out the subtle lines of the Grand Parterre; the serene carp pond and pavilion where visitors can hire rowing boats; and the hush of lesser-known Saint-Louis vestibule or Saint-Saturnin lower chapel (chateaudefontainebleau.fr; entry from £10).

THEIR MAJESTIES

And, as for the modern-day Marie Antoinette – where did the actor who played the Rebel Queen stay during filming? Emilia Schüle, born in Russia and raised in Germany, wouldn't necessarily recommend the French capital: "I've grown a bit tired of Paris. It's quite small so I got to know every corner. It's not perfect, it's dirty but… it's also beautiful and smells like croissants."

Instead of Paris, we suggest you base yourself at Château de Bourron, a stunning castle hotel that is moments from Fontainebleau (double rooms start from £163; bourron.fr). With its moat, twin turrets and horse-shoe stone stairwell modelled on Fontainebleau, it's as close as you'll get to sleeping like a queen.

ASPECTS OF LOVE
LYRIC THEATRE

SEE MICHAEL BALL ON STAGE

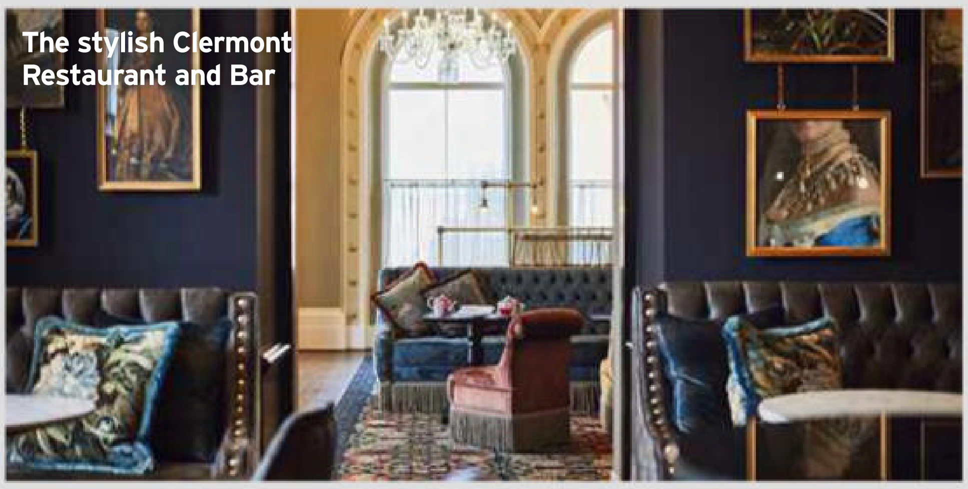
WIN a London theatre break to see Aspects of Love and stay at The Clermont, Charing Cross

Over 30 years since he first starred in the original West End production, Michael Ball returns to Andrew Lloyd Webber's celebrated musical Aspects of Love at the Lyric Theatre for a strictly limited season, this time playing the role of George.

With music by Andrew Lloyd Webber, lyrics by Don Black and Charles Hart, based on the novel by David Garnett and directed by Jonathan Kent, this heart-breaking story of passion, love, life and loss in post-war France and Italy follows three generations of the Dillingham family spanning 17 years.

Alex Dillingham, played by Jamie Bogyo (Moulin Rouge! The Musical), falls in love with actress Rose Vibert and as the pair embark on a passionate affair, the unexpected arrival of Alex's Uncle George changes their lives and those around them for ever as they discover how love – in its many forms – truly does change everything.

One reader can win a pair of tickets to see Aspects of Love and an overnight stay at The Clermont, Charing Cross (theclermont.co.uk) with dinner and breakfast. Enjoy a refreshing return to what every hotel stay should be: the Clermont delivers exceptional hospitality and service, with a warm and distinctly human touch, every time. Their Grade II listed building combines ornate period charm with all the modern comforts you'd expect, and The Clermont Restaurant and Bar is on hand to help you dine and unwind in style.



The stylish Clermont Restaurant and Bar

To enter, please visit radiotimes.com/win

Aspects of Love* will be at the Lyric Theatre in London's West End from 12 May. Book your tickets – from £25 – at AspectsofLove.com

Terms and conditions One reader will win a pair of premium tickets to see Aspects of Love at the Lyric Theatre Shaftesbury Avenue and overnight stay in one twin or double room at The Clermont, Charing Cross in London with a three-course meal from the table d'hote menu and breakfast. The prize is valid from 12 May until 13 July 2023. All elements of the prize are subject to availability and exclude 25 May 2023. No cash alternative. Travel not included. Any additional expenses incurred are the responsibility of the winner. Please note, Michael Ball will not perform on Mondays from 29 May onwards.

EVERYBODY BACK TO WORK!

Are older people really "economically inactive"? Paul Lewis dispels the myths around returning to work in later life

GET BACK TO work! Your country needs you! That is the message from the government to the more than three million people aged 50 to 65 described by statisticians as "economically inactive". In other words, they're not in paid work or self-employed nor are they "actively seeking work", as they must do to claim unemployment benefits.

But many of them are far from inactive. The latest census data found that nearly one in four of those aged 50 to 69 are caring for someone else and charging nothing for it, saving the state the very high cost of looking after those people. They may pay no tax, but they are far from inactive as far as the economy is concerned.

> 'Be positive about your abilities and your experience'

Another large group are unwell. RestLess, the campaigning group for the over-50s, says 1.6 million are unable to work because of their health, a number that has increased 20 per cent in three years.

There are some signs that economic inactivity among this group is falling as the cost-of-living crisis bites. But when people over 50 try to get work they often hit the rock of ageism and, in the case of women, sexism as well. Research by the Chartered Management Institute found only four out of ten managers were open "to a large extent" to hiring people aged 50-64. And a recent survey found women aged over 50 had the biggest gender pay gap of any age – earning £7,000 a year less than men of the same age.

SO IF YOU do want to go to work to make some extra money to help with the cost of living or perhaps just to feel "economically active", what should you do? There are a lot of jobs out there and a labour shortage. Be positive about your abilities, your experience, your commitment, your reliability and your health. They are all things employers will like. Remember that turning you down on grounds of your age or your sex is unlawful. And if a firm does that, you can claim compensation from an employment tribunal (though that, of course, is a last resort).

GETTY; SHUTTERSTOCK

As we continue to hear about industrial unrest, you might wonder what a word meaning to "hit" or "take down" has to do with a stoppage of work. The answer lies with the use of the word by sailors some 300 years ago, who, when unhappy with their working conditions, would "strike" or lower their ship's sails in order to stop any chance of going to sea. The Annual Register from 1768 records how "A body of sailors... proceeded... to Sunderland... and at the cross there read a paper, setting forth their grievances... After this they went on board the several ships in that harbour, and struck (lowered down) their yards, in order to prevent them from proceeding to sea." From there, "striking" was applied to the downing of various tools as a means of protest.

FINE FINALE
Happy Valley's "national treasure" Sarah Lancashire and (below) with one of those lovely blankets

TALKING POINT

…I've just finished watching the last episode of Happy Valley, the best thing on TV since the last time it was on. Sarah Lancashire was brilliant – but of course, she was also supported by a stellar cast. Superb writing, Sally Wainwright. I hope you get another Bafta!
Pam Baxter
Harrogate, North Yorkshire

…There were many possible scenarios for the ending of Happy Valley, but I imagine few of us would have envisaged the one Sally Wainwright came up with. Brilliantly conceived and brilliantly executed. Hats off to Sarah Lancashire for her outstanding performance throughout, and to all the cast and crew for a fantastic drama. What will we talk about now?
Rosemary Marshall
New Malden, Surrey

…An outstanding ending to a mesmerising production. The portrayal of all the characters was amazing – Rhys Connah literally grew into his role of Ryan brilliantly. Our loathing of James Norton's character Tommy Lee Royce was passionate – then, by the end, we felt pity and sorrow for this evil man. Siobhan Finneran was enthralling as a reformed addict whose love for her family shone through. But wow, Sarah Lancashire! What a national treasure you are. This series will become the envy of America and Europe, and is a triumph for the BBC.
Tony Bald Torquay, Devon

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Blanket coverage

What a Sunday night (5 February BBC1)! Three hours of quality television. First the magical and moving His Dark Materials, then the reliable humour and pathos of Call the Midwife. Then… wham… Happy Valley. Such wonderful real dialogue and outstanding acting. Writer Sally Wainwright had us in the palm of her hand. All the loose ends of the storyline were resolved, yet we wanted it to go on.

Even those lovely crochet blankets had their moment. I rely on Silent Witness to do my crochet; no chance of that with Happy Valley, which requires full attention. If all telly was like it, I'd get nothing done!

SUSAN'S GOING FAR

I spotted on Cruising with Susan Calman (3 February, Channel 5) a car in the background with the appropriate registration number SU SI 1682. I cannot believe Susan didn't spot it – it made me chuckle!

Susan (right) is such a fun person, full of an almost childlike sense of adventure and enthusiasm. Many more such cruises in the future, please. As a disabled person I travel vicariously via Susan's delightful travelogues.

PRUE'S RIGHT TO DIE

In response to the article on assisted dying (Prue Leith, RT, 11 February), and having watched on helplessly as both my parents died wretched deaths from cancer and pleaded with me to help them end their lives, it is clear the system is not working, even with the best-intentioned end-of-life care.

Opponents to changing the law have every right to endure unnecessary suffering in the final stages of their own lives, if they so choose, but they have no right to dictate to me that I have to suffer, too. A dignified death, at the time of a terminally ill patient's choosing, should not just be for those wealthy enough to travel to Switzerland, and the sooner we are all granted the fundamental right of assisted dying, the better.
David Peters
Maidenhead, Berkshire

…The law in this country should change. In 2016 I travelled with my husband, who had suffered with multiple sclerosis for 24 years, to the Dignitas Clinic. It took us 13 months to arrange everything, including two independent psychiatric reports in this country and then visiting two independent doctors in Switzerland, before we were given the green light.

He should have been able to stay in his own home, with his son, daughter-in-law and grandchildren and make his own choice, as we do with everything else, when his life should end. I am now a member of Dignity

CULLED
Autumnwatch* presenters Chris Packham, Michaela Strachan and Gillian Burke

THE END OF AUTUMN

I am so disappointed that the BBC is discontinuing Autumnwatch after 17 years. I understand it has the smallest audience of the three Watches, but, compared to so many programmes being produced on the BBC these days, it was a beacon of light in an increasingly grey world.

Winterwatch is to be reduced to one week from two, while Springwatch remains unchanged. Autumn is a stunning season, full of colour, mists and mellow fruitfulness. So why, oh why is Autumnwatch being cancelled?
Elisabeth Nicholls Preston

...What an appalling decision. In an age when the natural world faces its greatest threat, when British species are on the Red List and threatened with extinction, it is beyond belief to learn Autumnwatch is going. There are no other programmes that give proper wildlife information in such detail. For us oldies and children alike this series is important and entertaining. The BBC should save money in other ways.

STAGE AND SCREEN
Helena Bonham Carter played Noele Gordon in Nolly

NOLLY REMEMBERED

I thoroughly enjoyed Nolly (ITVX), as I worked with Noele Gordon in the musical Gypsy in Leicester in 1981, playing Electra the stripper with 42 light bulbs on my costume. But I have to put the record straight about why Gypsy didn't transfer to the West End. It wasn't to do with – as the drama had it – a production opening on Broadway. The reason was that Jule Styne, who wrote the music, refused to let it go to London. Even with Nolly's manager Michael Summerton flying out to New York to try to change his mind, explaining that Nolly was a huge soap star, Styne wouldn't budge. It was a massive disappointment.

I went into Crossroads for a time in 1986, but it felt strange to be on that set with the ghost of Nolly [who had been sacked from the soap in 1981] all around.

GOOD DOGS!

Gardeners' World (BBC2) is a weekly oasis of calm and a welcome source of relaxation after whatever the week has bought. In the past few years this has been so much more evident. I'm wondering if it should be recognised as a suitable form of therapy along with Detectorists and the wonderful Mortimer and Whitehouse: Gone Fishing.

My only concern with the programme is that Monty Don's dogs (left) aren't given a credit at the end of the programme! Patti, Nellie and Ned (who took over a recent edition) really should be given more credit for the joy that they bring on a weekly basis.

KEEP IT LOCAL

How can The Apprentice (BBC1) justify sending the candidates abroad for a task – not once but twice? All of them went away in the first week and now they're off to Dubai (4 February). The crew and Tim and Karren went, too. In these days of cuts to local TV and news channels, plus the carbon footprint, they could have done the tasks in the UK!
David Goodwin via email

NOT SO FUNNY...

Does Nick Hornby (RT, 4 February) really believe that female comedy in the UK only started with Pamela Stephenson and French and Saunders? If so, he's overlooking generations of women who came before them – variety greats like Hylda Baker and Tessie O'Shea, brilliant comic actors like June Whitfield and ▷

†THE FOLLOWING CHANNELS HAVE ALREADY BEEN MOVED TO HD ON SATELLITE: BBC1 SOUTH, BBC1 AND BBC2 NORTHERN IRELAND, BBC1 EAST, BBC1 EAST MIDLANDS, BBC ALBA, BBC1 WEST MIDLANDS, BBC1 EAST YORKSHIRE AND LINCOLNSHIRE, BBC1 AND BBC2 WALES

One of the most frequent questions asked of the RT Reader Services team over the past ten years is, "When will my BBC1 regional news start transmitting in HD?" Up until now, when BBC1 England HD showed any English regional programmes, it couldn't show them on the HD channel.

But after nearly ten years of a caption card or, in the early evenings, a loop video showcasing BBC1 programmes (we published a letter recently from a reader who had learnt the "script" by heart), things are finally moving forward. The main reason for the delay was the expense of upgrading all of the BBC regional news centres to HD, but there was also a delay to ensure as many platforms as possible were ready for the change. But now the BBC is replacing its standard definition (SD) broadcasts on satellite with high definition (HD) versions. And starting in 2024, all BBC SD broadcasts will end.

If you watch BBC1 via the iPlayer you will already receive your English regional news dependent upon which region you selected as part of your BBC1. The rollout of the remaining platforms – or "upgrade", as the BBC is calling it – on satellite has already started. Since 23 January, regions have gone HD on a weekly basis and once your regional news has moved to the HD version (all regions should be done by 23 February), then your regional BBC1 SD channel will be replaced with a UK-wide version of BBC1. See panel above for dates of the remaining regional upgrades.

This will particularly affect people using an SD-only satellite set-top box. From early 2024 you will have to replace it or face losing access to all BBC channels. Need to check if you are still using an SD-only box? If you're on Freesat, go to channel 799. If it tells you that your equipment is not capable of receiving high definition services you will need to upgrade your set-top box. You may be eligible for extra support for this. Go to hdsatelliteupgrade.co.uk/register-your-interest

If you have Sky, then go to sky.com/help/articles/bbcupgrade to learn what to look out for. They will also help you upgrade to a Sky Q box if necessary, at no extra charge.

Regional versions of BBC1 HD on Freeview and YouView will be available by April – BBC1 HD for your region will be on 101 and the SD version will continue on EPG channel 1. Cable and Virgin Media customers are already on board.

THE BRUTAL TRUTH

I watched Cold Case Forensics: the Murder of Rachel Nickell (2 February ITV1) with a rising sense of anger. This programme was centred around a brutal rape and murder and yet the programme-makers seemed to think it necessary to use visual effects and dramatic music, as if the facts of the case itself were not sufficiently horrific. I think it showed a lack of respect for the family of the victim.

THE RIGHT GUY?

What a joy to find Fortunes of War on BBC4. I read the books when they first came out and I was living in Alexandria. Years later I was again living there when the BBC came to film part of the story. All expats were invited to try for parts as extras, and I was able to be part of the filming. I wasn't aware of Kenneth Branagh or Emma Thompson (below left) as actors of note, consequently at a cocktail party at the American Consulate I casually said to Branagh that I didn't think he was right as Guy Pringle, he wasn't as I had imagined him. He took it very well. To this day I'm still mortified.

VIEW FROM MY SOFA

COLIN MURRAY

His one TV ambition was to host Countdown, but he could never beat his grandad

What's the view from your sofa?
I keep my TV out of the living room – that's where I'll read a book, have a cup of tea or do a jigsaw. I turned a spare bedroom into my TV room, so I'm much more acutely aware of how much time I spend watching TV.

How often do you go into this designated TV room?
Still too often, and I like to watch in batches.

Who controls the remote in your house?
It's just me, so me. I'm master of my domain.

What have you enjoyed watching lately?
I've just finished Slow Horses, but the episodes were once a week, and it was torturous. And I loved Acapulco, about a hotel in Acapulco, with local workers having to deal with these idiots coming in – genuinely funny.

What sort of programmes never get an airing in your TV room?
My instant switch-off would be Love Island. When I was younger, I watched Blind Date and it was thrilling, but when you're in your 40s, the last thing you need to do is watch people looking better than you, thinking they know the secrets to the world. But it's not me they're making the show for.

How does it feel making the Countdown chair your own?
Susie Dent and I go back to when I was Love Island age and started at Radio 1. The first conversation I ever had with her, I told her, "I only have one ambition in TV and that is to present Countdown." Fast-forward two decades and I am. I've always loved it. I used to watch it with my grandparents, I could beat my granny, never my grandad. I did Dictionary Corner, then I won Celebrity Countdown, so it's actually my third Countdown chair.

How is presenting on the radio different from on TV?
Countdown is actually a radio show on TV, five days a week at the same time; it's as much about the company as the content. There is zero script, no autocue. We have a Crucial Countdown Conundrum maybe once every four shows, but the format isn't built for a big crescendo, so it has to be about more than that.

Do you feel under pressure because the show has been running for so long?
I think they got the right person, because you have to love a show like that to do it. Just because it's been around for ages doesn't mean it's going to do well. It needs to be loved every day, which I do, and it's working. In December, we had the highest ratings since 2012.

Have more people recognised you overnight from Countdown than decades on the radio?
When I go to my local Spar, I might get an "All right, Colin?" The people know me from what I do, not who I am. It's just a few more people who'll say hello and that's it – it's lovely.

WHILE I'M WATCHING...

MY SNACK OF CHOICE
Salt and vinegar crisps – they are addictive!

LAST FILM I SAW
The Banshees of Inisherin.

THE BOOK I'M READING
Bram Stoker's Dracula – I'm trying to catch up with classics I haven't read.

Who were your TV presenting idols growing up?
Honestly, I loved [first Countdown host] Richard Whiteley, I loved that he put himself out there to be the butt of the joke, to be the naughty one in the room, his giggle. He's always in my head when I'm doing Countdown. And I had a weird crush on Cilla Black.

How quickly can you do the Countdown Conundrum?
I'm terrible at the Conundrum because once I see the anagram my producer has used to disguise it, I can't unsee that word. I get one in about every ten.

What's your favourite word?
My least favourite word is – I can barely say it – "specific". It's too sharp and you never use it in a way that's enjoyable. I love words that are a joy to say, so I would say "banana" – there are only three letters in it and no sharp points. When you say it, your mouth does no work at all. CAROLINE FROST
